William Wallace was arrested yesterday morning charged with the theft of an overcoat and other garments belonging to guests at the Martens hotel, on South Main street. CITY COUNCIL MEETS TONIGHT Water Works Question Will Come Up, but Action Is Inevitable. The water works question will be expected, come up again tonight at the regular monthly session of the city council, but whether the special committee, of which Councilman Wallace is chairman, will be prepared to submit any report or recommendations is doubtful.

There has been more or less talk the last few days of a public debate between Councilman Wallace and Councilman Knudson, a member of the special committee, on the water works question. Mr. Knudson is not in favor of municipal ownership, as he believes it impracticable, like a great many other citizens. There has been talk of securing a hall for the proposed debate, but the whole thing, it is expected, will end in talk.

Some of the councilmen are in favor of instructing the special committee to come to some speedy solution of the water works question or else turn the whole matter over to the council again and let it wreathe with it for awhile.

Why not come in if your eyes bother you? I can fit you out with a pair of glasses to your entire satisfaction. O. Maucha, 23 Broadway.

Y. M. C. A. BUILDING CAMPAIGN Committee Will Begin Canvas for Funds for New Structure at Once. Harry McGee, Iowa state secretary of the Young Men's Christian association, arrived in the city yesterday and was in conference with President Day and the other officers of the recently incorporated local association. Mr. McGee will remain in the city today and will assist the local promoters in making a canvas of the city to secure contributions towards the proposed building. It is understood that the committee will go after the "big money" only today and will leave the canvassing for smaller donations to other committees, which will be appointed at a mass meeting to be held Tuesday night at the rooms of the Commercial club.

The musical part of the services was conducted by Miss Winters of Kansas City, a singing evangelist, who will assist at the meetings to be held every evening this week.

Explaining the purposes of the Union mission and its intended part in the charitable work of the city, Rev. Mr. Gierdorf stated that it would be strictly non-sectarian and that it would be a rescue home in all that the name implied. The industrial school, formerly conducted by Rev. Henry DeLong on Avenue F, will be continued at the mission. As soon as the necessary arrangements have been made, a labor bureau will be conducted in connection with the mission and it is the intention of the management to make the charitable work among the needy and sick one of the strong features of the institution.

The building stands on Twelfth street, which is closed at that point by the Northwestern yards and which the city vacated for the purpose of affording a site for the mission. It is two stories in height, constructed of frame, and when completed will be covered with corrugated iron. When finished it will have cost about $3,000, and $200 is needed to complete it.

On the first floor to the left of the entrance will be the office and to the right a room for storing clothing, etc., for distribution among the poor; the main hall in which services will be held, and back of the hall a dining room and kitchen. On the second floor will be six or more bedrooms, two bath rooms, a reading room, parlor and apartments for Rev. and Mrs. Gierdorf, who will make their home at the mission.

Now is the time for getting a nice piano at the Bourgeois piano house. Ask Bourgeois for facts and figures, how his prices compare with those of others. 335 Broadway, where the organ stands upon the building.

PROGRESS OF LEGISLATION

Thirty-Three Bills Passed by Both Houses and Signed by the Governor.

OVER SIX HUNDRED BILLS INTRODUCED Twenty-Nine Senate Bills Are Pending in House and Forty-Nine House Bills in the Senate.

(From a Staff Correspondent.) DES MOINES, March 3.—(Special.)—A little inquiry into what the legislature has done up to the present recess discloses that the session thus far has been a profitable one and that the time has been well occupied. The legislature has been in session just thirty-seven days' actual time, and in that time thirty-three bills have been passed by both houses and sent to the governor and everyone of them has been signed. But in addition forty-nine bills have passed the house and are now pending in the senate and twenty-nine bills have passed the senate and are now pending in the house. About fifty or sixty bills have been indefinitely postponed in each house. Put in tabular form it is something like this:

House bills introduced..... 239 Senate bills introduced..... 239 Bills passed and signed..... 33 Bills passed, pending in house..... 139 Passed house, pending in senate..... 49 Passed senate, pending in house..... 29

In the thirty-three bills which have been passed by both houses and signed by the governor there are some few legalizing acts and bills of only local importance to various communities, but there are also the following bills of state importance: The bill providing for railroad commissioners; increasing the salary of the insurance secretary; prohibiting accident associations to do business in the state; defining the term "insured" as applied to pure foods; prescribing the investments of fraternal beneficiary insurance companies; directing the preparation of the supplement of the "blue book" showing matrons appointed in special charter cities; providing for the transportation of dead bodies; the 2-cent fare bill.

Of the important bills that have passed the senate and are pending in the house there is the bill by Senator Hughes providing that a pass in a juror's pocket is grounds for challenge for cause; providing for pure paints and oils, prohibiting corporations contributing to political campaigns; providing for the examining and licensing of graduate nurses; amending the juvenile court law so as to allow supervisors and cities to erect detention homes; appropriating $6,000 for the railroad commission for extra help for investigating freight rates.

Of those that have passed the house and are pending in the senate there is the bill fixing minimum rates for fraternal insurance companies; the Doran minimum speed limit stock train bill; Marston's bill limiting the hours of continuous employment of railroad trainmen; Omlil's free-cracker bill; providing for county agricultural societies; providing for means for drawing juries in cases of emergency when for any cause a legal jury cannot be drawn from the regular lists; requiring employment offices to make reports to the state labor commissioner; increasing the amount of support to the county teachers' union; providing for the investigation of the funds of insurance companies other than life.

Anyone familiar with legislation knows that the showing so far as the number of bills passed is concerned comes late in the session. The first part of every session is taken up quite largely in committee meetings held in the various offices of the legislature, and the first week practically is given over to organizing and the inauguration. Following that for a time only bills of minor importance are passed, because the time is quite largely given up to committee hearings in which the members seek to study the various subjects presented for legislation. Furthermore, after a bill has passed one house, with its committee hearings, it is nearly always necessary for it to go through the process of committee hearings in the other house.

Twenty-nine bills passed by the senate and pending in the house and forty-nine bills passed by the house and pending in the senate, the prospects are bright for a final test within the next week or two. On the house calendar ready to be acted upon as soon as the legislature reconvenes are twenty-five bills, including the Smith wage desertion bill, the Pearson bill prohibiting corporations contributing to political campaigns, the bill to license graduate nurses and the bill providing for pure paints and oils. On the senate calendar are thirty-nine bills, including the bill prohibiting corporations contributing to political campaigns and the bill controlling the price of grain and the bill providing for pure seeds.

A bill introduced in both the house and senate last Thursday seeks to make the warehouse receipt for grain or goods negotiable paper just as the certificate of deposit of a bank is negotiable. It is an interesting looking bill, with an appearance of needing a Philadelphia lawyer to explain its provisions, but it has back of it more big influences demanding its enactment than any other bill that has been introduced at this session. It is backed by the American Bankers' association, which drew the bill; the American Warehouse association and by Chief Justice Emlin McLean of the Iowa supreme court and H. O. Weaver, both of whom are members of the uniform laws commission appointed by the governors of these states; the Iowa members of the commission; and the banks could put their money to remunerative use in taking up negotiable warehouse receipts if the business is legitimate, and if they knew they were protected. Furthermore, manufacturers and jobbers will not store goods in this state now because when stored in other states if the necessities of business demand they can quickly turn their warehouse receipt into cash while they cannot do so in Iowa. If the law was in operation here it is claimed there would be enormous warehouses built in this state such as are now standing in other states.

Kinne Agricultural Bill. The Kinne agricultural bill, introduced in the senate just before the legislature adjourned for the recess, provides for dividing the state into four geographical divisions and arranging for establishing in each of these a high school for teaching manual training and agriculture. Since the showing made by Judge Deemer before the senate the other day it has been considered likely that the legislature will take some action looking towards agricultural education preparatory to the state college.

Flight Over Wage Exemption. At every session of the legislature since some ten years ago there has been an effort on the part of the retail grocers to secure a repeal or modification of the wage exemption laws. When the attempt was first made the bill was indefinitely postponed on motion of Attorney General Byers, who was then a member of the Cape and Gowns at Ames. AMES, Ia., March 3.—(Special.)—At a meeting of the senior class of the Iowa State college Friday night, it was decided that the class will this year appear at the commencement exercises of the institution in cape and gowns. This question has been fought pro and con for the last twenty years and only once or twice has a majority voted in favor as they did Friday night. The 1906 class wore cape and gowns, but it was generally thought that the 1907 class would not, as the C. E. course students were almost a unit against it. Two or three, however, yielded at the last moment and voted with the cape and gown supporters, carrying the measure.
