New Proposals for Parks Received by the Park Board.

SOME VARIANCE FROM FORMER OFFERS

George Ackerman Attempts Suicide by Shooting Because His Wife Refused to Live with Him Longer.

Proposals on park sites formed the chief topic of discussion at the council meeting last night. About the same number of bids were offered as at the first advertisement. The prices were varied to some extent as well as the plots offered. The council required that a correct plot of the grounds offered should accompany the bids. This will assist very much in comparisons. Edward Cassidy offered a plot of four acres on West Q street in tax lot 7 for $5,000. He also offered eight acres north of Missouri avenue and east of Twentieth street for $5,000. A third proposition was submitted by the second, only there were only six acres. This was offered for $10,000. John Sheehan offered five acres known as Bagley park, two blocks in Corrigan's addition, for $5,000. P. J. Barrett offered a park in the southeast section of the city for $5,500. Ed J. Lee offered eleven acres also in the southeastern section for $4,500. Alf C. Kennedy offered a block in the northwest section for $2,500. Then were two propositions for syndicate park for $2,000 and $15,000 respectively. Patrick Hector offered a plot at Twenty-seventh and Harrison for $4,000. All of these offers were referred to the council in conjunction with the park board in a committee of the whole. They will meet Wednesday evening of this week.

Other matters before the council included the payment of the primary election expenses amounting to $490. The judges and clerks drew $4 each. There were sixty of them.

The treasurer submitted his monthly report showing that $18,508.82 had been collected during the month of February. The disbursements were $9,879.98, leaving a net balance on hand of $8,628.84.

The city attorney recommended that the finance committee make arrangements for the payment of the judgment of George M. Nicholson amounting to $500 since the court had denied a rehearing. Mrs. Lucid offered to settle her claim for $500 for personal injuries.

Three ordinances were passed. They were first the ordinance giving the franchise to Dr. W. J. McCrann for the conducting of mineral water to Twenty-fourth and Q streets from Brown park. The second was the ordinance defining the duties and powers of the city building inspector. The third provided for the payment of Q street from Twenty-fourth to Twenty-fifth. An order was passed directing the clerk to draw a warrant for $500 to pay damages to lot 1, block 14, Brown Park addition by reason of the grading of S street. The council then adjourned until one week.

George Ackerman Attempts Suicide.

George Ackerman, who lives in rooms over the Rudersdorf billiard hall on Twenty-fourth street, attempted to commit suicide last night in the presence of his wife and the chief of police. He shot himself through the shoulder with a tiny revolver, inflicting a dangerous wound. The gun he used was a vast pocket revolver and looked like a mere toy. The trend of the bullet was downward through the fleshy part of the shoulder. It had not been located last night. Ackerman's act was caused by a culmination of domestic difficulties ending with the attempt of his wife to take her possessions from the rooms. It is said that he had abused the woman on many occasions and that he had been imprudent and of late had threatened to kill her. She at last called the chief of police to protect her while she removed her belongings from the rooms. While there Ackerman returned and asked the chief to help him persuade his wife to remain with him. The chief refused to do so. He then went to the woman and pleaded with her to remain but she refused, saying that she could stand his treatment of her no more. While she continued packing up he went quietly into another room and secured the weapon and came back with it. He shot her in the head and soon revived. The chief had his hands full, but finally found time to send for a doctor. Dr. C. M. Schindler responded and dressed the wounds. Ackerman was taken to the South Omaha hospital and at last reports was resting easily. The woman prostrate from the shock. She is the daughter of Dana Morrill, a member of the Board of Education, and one of the most prominent families of the city, and has been married to Ackerman for several years.

Reports Being Assaulted and Robbed.

Mike Pucles, of Polish nationality, appeared before Judge King yesterday afternoon after being assaulted and robbed.

Magic City Gossip.

Richard K. Bell, 2510 F street, reports the birth of a daughter.

Mrs. Anna Noon is building an addition to her residence at Fortieth and U streets.

Thomas Ross and Miss Theodorah Stroud were married by Judge F. C. Caldwell yesterday morning. Both of the parties are colored.

Sherman R. Cox is making preparations for a trip to Europe to begin in about two months.

Mrs. Beatrice Farrar, Twenty-fourth and C streets, is reported seriously ill from an attack of pneumonia.

Mort Cavanaugh, William Langley, James Ward and John Moran were noted in police court yesterday.

Mrs. Olney of Moline, Ill., who has been the guest of Mrs. J. E. Dennis for the last month, returned home yesterday.

The applicant for liquor license was filed yesterday with the Bee. It is not necessary to file in any other paper.

The culture studies are now completed at the office of the city engineer for the construction of permanent sidewalks.

Miss Annie Rush has been granted leave of absence as secretary at the High school to act as superintendent for the balance of the year. She will go to the Pacific coast.

Thomas Kelley, a milkman, while driving in the alley back of the new city hall Saturday, was thrown out of the rig and fell into the manure pits. He sustained several bruises and the fracture of several ribs.

A member of Washburn's tribe No. 23, Improved Order of Red Men, will visit Council Bluffs tonight to attend a dog feast. One of the best dog feasts ever given in Iowa is expected. A special train will leave Twenty-fourth and N streets at 7:30 p. m.

The place of Prof. DeMotte has been supplied on the Young Men's Christian association lecture course by Mrs. Katharine Rich Bowden, who will present the story of Hiawatha. She won a great name on the lecture platform by her story of the Passion Play at Oberammergau. The date of the entertainment will be March 28.

The successors to the Jetter and Duffy baseball team will be known this year as the South Omaha club. G. S. Kennedy is manager. The players are: Catcher, John Cavanaugh; O. H. Crandall; E. Howe; H. Hinkle; pitcher, H. Ballinger; B. Collier; F. Hinkle; James Cavanaugh; W. Smith; first base, Talbot; second base, G. E. Kennedy; third base, Lichman; short stop, E. Clark; right field, Whitecock; center field, John Bowes; left field, John Van Dyke; N. V. Van Dyke. This team challenges all comers and will play on Saturday afternoons and Sundays, two games Sunday afternoon.

RUSH TO GET IN NEW CLUB

One Hundred Applications Are Filed for Membership in Happy Hollow Organization.

A meeting of the promoters of the Happy Hollow Country club was held Monday afternoon at the rooms of the Commercial club, when over 100 applications for charter membership in the new club were received from the most prominent citizens of Omaha. It was decided by the prime movers for the club to begin the improvement of the Patrick home and grounds for occupancy by the club about April 1, when work will also be started on the tract of land which has been leased for a golf course and which adjoins the club estate on the west.

Postal cards have been sent by the club promoters to several hundred business men of the city inquiring if they desire to become members of the new country club, and from the replies received it would appear that the 500 members desired would soon be secured.

TRIBUTE TO THE DEPARTED

McKinley Club Members Listen to Eulogies of E. Rosewater and C. E. Morgan.

BOTH HELPERS OF THEIR FELLOW MEN

Howard H. Baldrige Speaks of High Ideals and Great Work Accomplished by Late E. Rosewater During Lifetime.

In words of praise, reflecting deepest and most sincere feeling, Edward Rosewater and Charles E. Morgan were eulogized by members of the McKinley club at the banquet at O'Brien's cafe Monday evening. There were about twenty members present and the program as arranged called upon Howard H. Baldrige to speak on the life of Mr. Rosewater, and J. H. Adams to take up the life of Mr. Morgan, both of whom were distinguished and early members of the organization. Mr. Adams, however, was unable to be present, but in his stead voluble expressions regarding Mr. Morgan were delivered.

Mr. Baldrige took up the subject of the life, character and works of Edward Rosewater in words which stirred with their eloquence. Not one of those present but was more or less intimately acquainted with the departed club member and great public man and the expressions in the eyes of the listeners showed that a responsive chord had been touched in the heart and mind of each.

The speaker explained he had not been given an opportunity of preparing himself in advance with a speech and his remarks were therefore more spontaneous and plainly born of a sincere feeling of love, honor and respect for the personality of his subject.

Mr. Baldrige described the life of Edward Rosewater briefly from beginning to end in showing the rise the man made in the world, but hesitated for detailed account when he dwelt on the immense breadth and depth of his character. He told of Mr. Rosewater's high and noble ideals as a man and a citizen, and of his lofty purposes, taking up thereafter the man's wonderful ability, strength and courage.

Great Work Accomplished.

In bringing his talk to a close, Mr. Baldrige tried to impress his hearers with the things accomplished by Mr. Rosewater in his career on earth. "He lived to see the fruits of his efforts. He lived to see the accomplishment of those things for which he had labored. And, like the Greek soldier after the battle of Marathon, which was to decide the fate of Greece, who ran with all his strength to Athens to give the news of the victory and fell from sheer exhaustion just as he reached the gate, but shouted to the waiting people the words, which, translated, mean 'Rejoice ye, for we rejoice, also,' so Edward Rosewater, after the convention, wrote an editorial, the title of which I shall never forget, the essence of which, contains the call to the people to 'rejoice, for they have won.'"

Mr. Baldrige's speech closed with the statement: "The impression of Mr. Rosewater on the politics of the state will live as long as Nebraska lives," which was met with prolonged and hearty applause.

In a short talk, wherein the speaker failed to hide the intense sincerity of his words, Henry Leavitt told what he knew of one side of the life of Charles E. Morgan. Martin Sugarman took up the talk in the same strain. Both men testified to the purity of the man's character and of his unselfish nobility. His helpful attitude to struggling and deserving young men, a feature of Mr. Morgan which was not generally known was related. The goodness of his character, it was said, could hardly be estimated except by those who knew him most intimately.

A motion was made that a committee be appointed to draw up an eulogy on the two men to be spread on the records, and the chair selected one committee, composed of Charles E. Foster, Henry Leavitt and M. L. Sugarman for Mr. Morgan, and another composed of N. Bernstein, Frank Crawford and W. A. Yonson for Mr. Rosewater.

During a short business session, which closed the program, the members were cautioned about the annual election which takes place at the next meeting, April 1, and the necessity of attending to the matter of dues in order to be eligible to vote.

This very interesting program was given last night at the Lyric theater before a fair sized audience that was attentive and appreciative.

Mrs. Welpton sang her songs with the intelligence and charm which Omaha people have come to expect of her. The pleasure which she gave was very plain to see. A most graceful compliment was her selection of an encore, "Buttons," by Carrie Jacobs Bond. Mrs. Bond was in one of the boxes, having come here to give the annual artist recital before the Tuesday Morning Musical club. "Buttons" is a fascinating little child song. Mrs. Welpton sang it charmingly.

Duffield and Mr. Scherzer were the assisting artists. Mr. Duffield is very conscientious in his work. He lacks strength, he needs to add about forty pounds more to his physique. This is quite possible—witness several of our leading musicians. Our old friend, Mrs. Elbertus was right when he said, "First the good animal." Mr. Duffield has the qualities that indicate progress.

Mr. Scherzer was heard to the best advantage in the "Swan Song" of Saint Saens, and the "Tranquill" of the concerto in D minor of Wieniawski.

Miss Brown and Miss Paulson acquitted themselves with great credit as accompanists. The City Mission, for whose benefit the concert was given, realized a goodly sum of money. MARY LARNED.

OLD MAN LONGS FOR FAMILY

Octogenarian Asks Aid to Reach Son and Daughter on Pacific Coast.

Frank A. Davis, 85 years of age, tottered into the office of the Associated Charities in the city hall Tuesday afternoon and told Miss Hager he wanted to go to California. "I want to see my son William and daughter Susan. They live in Oakland, but I do not have the address. I want to get half rate," the old man said, as he rested his weary head on a crooked stick. "He looked every bit the way he said he was. 'We cannot get half rates any more.' Miss Hager said, 'but perhaps we may be able to help you some way. How much money have you?'"

"I might be able to get $10 together. All I want is to see my son and daughter again. What do you think they would charge if I should have to go to the General hospital? I am not feeling very well and it may be I will have to go to the hospital a few weeks before going to Oakland," Davis said.

But then hope again sprang eternal in his breast and he talked as if he would be able to start the trip on the morrow. His eyes brightened just a little and he talked of himself.

Davis said he came to Omaha during 1872 and was proprietor of the old Pacific house on South Tenth street. His knowledge of early events gave credence to his statements.

"I lived in Omaha until 1886, when my wife died. I went to California and during the earthquake my daughter's house was burned out. I stayed in Oakland four months and then returned to Omaha, and have been staying with an old friend near Thirty-second and Burt streets," he continued. He said he moved from Illinois to Lincoln in 1872.

"You come back Wednesday morning and we will let you know what can be done to help you," Miss Hager said.

Miss Hager, who is acting during the absence of Superintendent Morris, telegraphed Oakland authorities to locate Davis' son and daughter.

"Poor old man, 85 years old and alone, and his only ambition in life is to see his own children once more," Miss Hager remarked as Davis left the office.

Nursing Mothers and Over-burdened Women

In all stations of life, whose vigor and vitality may have been undermined and broken-down by overwork, exacting social duties, the too frequent bearing of children, or other causes, will find in the most potent, invigorating, restorative, strength-giver ever devised for their special benefit. TRAINING UP OF THE CHILD

DR. PIERCE'S FAVORITE PRESCRIPTION

Two Phases of the Subject Discussed Before the Y. W. C. A.

PRESIDENT WADSWORTH ON THE SCHOOL

Judge Sutton Talks on the Juvenile Court and the Problem of Starting the Little Feet in the Right Path.

The last of a series of a course of educational programs was given last evening in the rooms of the Young Women's Christian association. The speakers were Rev. Guy W. Wadsworth, president of Bellevue college, and Judge A. L. Sutton. Both speakers gave interesting talks and were thoroughly appreciated. Mrs. Edith F. Byers presided, in the absence of Mrs. Harford, and Miss Vera Allen sang several solos. After the program refreshments were served.

President Wadsworth divided his talk into two parts, namely, the so-called practical studies and the culture studies, making a strong appeal for the latter class as necessary in the running out of a life that is noble and beautiful.

"The culture studies are of great importance in my mind," Dr. Wadsworth said. Continuing, he said: "The pressure, poetry, joy, comfort and ambition of life come through culture studies. Some mistake the meaning of culture studies to mean a mere inflection of the voice or some other surface indication, but Webster defines it as 'enlightenment and discipline acquired by mental training.'

Mind Needs Discipline.

"The study of certain subjects, such as history, science, psychology, higher mathematics and others, enables us to appreciate the world as it is. It teaches the child an outlook that makes life worth living—makes life a real joy. The human mind needs discipline to reach a cultured state. The mind needs something more than a mere jumble of facts. The mind should be developed symmetrically, that new problems may be grappled with as they arise. It is largely a matter of will power. There is culture study of the Bible, which is the text book of text books. One cannot obtain a proper culture training without a study of the Bible. One should be careful what he reads. There are many superb classics of our language that are neglected for the books of the day.

"The great classic of them all is the Bible, without which one cannot fully appreciate art, poetry, music, oratory or law." While not deprecating the importance of the so-called practical studies, such as reading, arithmetic, writing and spelling, Dr. Wadsworth believed everyone should devote more time and energy to the culture studies.

Work of Juvenile Court.

Judge Sutton spoke of juvenile court work with an earnestness that bespoke heartfelt interest. He touched a sympathetic note and presented the work and results of the juvenile court and its workers in a splendid manner. He said that 1,300 juvenile and over 100 adult delinquents passing before him during 1906 made a deep impression on his mind. He said such institutions as the Young Women's Christian association could do much work by cooperating with the juvenile worker and help solve one of the foremost problems now before the people of the United States. This problem, he said, was that of getting hold of the child in tender years and preventing him from becoming a criminal.

"The moral seed planted by our forefathers at Plymouth Rock is now breaking forth all over our land in a manner that is wonderful," the judge said. "The time is not far distant, I believe, when people divide their deeds of praise between he who builds a child's character and he who arrests a splendid education. We must strike at the foundation of crime and keep the child from becoming a criminal. I am glad to say that when the legislatures of the various states shall have adjourned most of the states will have had a juvenile court law."

Referring to the exploitation of children for mere gain, the judge said: "Many children whose smiles, sunshine and sweetness have been coined into dollars, become criminals or grow up without proper appreciation of citizenship. The juvenile court seeks to help the child and is truly its friend. The sweetest work in all the world is that of keeping the feet of the children from treading paths of wrong doing and leading them along the better way."
