ST. LOUIS, March 19.-The candidacy of different cities for the holding of the next annual tournament of the American bowling congress has narrowed down to St. Paul and Cheinnati, and there is intense rivalry between them.

The delegation of twenty-five that arrived from St. Paul when the tournament began was augmented today by 198 more bowlers. who marched from the Union station to the Southern botel headquarters, wearing conspicuous red badges and headed by a brass band. A big transparency was borne aloft announcing that St. Paul wants the next tournament. The St. Paul delegation now comprises 125 men, who hold forth that the new auditorium just completed in St. Paul is selected for the next meeting place.

The 140 delegates from Cincinnati, wearing white badges the size of a dinner plate, declare that Cincinnati will eclipse all previous efforts at entertainment if the next tournament is held there. T. J. Cogan, who will present Cincinnati's claims to the congress convention on Thursday, stated that Cincinnati will introduce an innovation in the tournament by providing contests for women bowlers and in addition will provide extra prize money for the enties tournament contests. Cincinnati is also ardently supporting August (Garry) Hermann of that city for the next president of the national congress. St. Paul is sup-ledo, O.
