

MERGER PLAN FAILS TO PASS

Effort to Consolidate Rival Humane Societies To Not Go Through

BOTH THE CONCERNS REMAIN IN FIELD

Nebraska Crowd Will Not Consider Consolidation Until the Douglas Branch Renders Its Financial Statement.

The suggested consolidation of the Nebraska Humane society and Douglas County Humane society failed to materialize yesterday afternoon at an informal meeting between some of the directors of the first mentioned organization, Attorney C. G. McDonald representing the Douglas County society and several disinterested persons.

Judge Sutton and Kennedy of the juvenile court appeared with an olive branch, primarily that the general cause of humane work might be placed on a harmonious basis and that some representative of humane work might cooperate with the juvenile court work. Judge Sutton had with him a list of 24 names of persons said to be members of the Douglas County Humane society and a letter from F. J. Ellison, who offered to withdraw from his society if such action would advance the general cause of humane work.

When asked if he was a director of the Douglas County Humane society, as reported in the newspapers on authority of Mr. Ellison, Judge Sutton declared he was not connected with the new society and had sent Mr. Ellison a letter saying he would not consent to the use of his name in such connection. The judge referred Rev. John Williams, who asked the question, to C. G. McDonald, who was present, and representing the interests of Ellison's society.

Then as a preliminary negotiation for a possible consolidation, Father Williams asked Mr. McDonald if his society would consent to render an itemized statement of moneys collected from the 204 persons whose names appeared on the list presented by Judge Sutton. Mr. McDonald answered by asking Father Williams whether the Nebraska society would consent to make a similar showing, to which Father Williams replied by saying that the books of his society were always open for inspection. Further conversation drew the rival societies away from the point of consolidating and the matter dropped with the tacit understanding that the two societies could not get together.

Rev. Mr. Williams said his society was opposed to assuming the moral and financial responsibilities assumed by the Douglas County society without at least an itemized statement of the finances of the new society.

After the meeting Secretary Mann of the Nebraska Humane society said his society would proceed at once to carry on the work of the society as in former years and now had a superintendent in view with prospects of engaging the person in question within a week.

Secretary Mann presented at the meeting a telegram from the state of Junken, who wired that no articles of incorporation had been filed by the Douglas County Humane society.

CORBETT AT THE KRUG

"The Burglar and the Lady" Tells a Story and Gives Him a Good Chance.

James J. Corbett exhibited his form through the four acts of the drama, "The Burglar and the Lady," last night at the Krug theater before a large sized audience. Mr. Corbett's fine physique is not his only justification for appearing before the footlights, for he acquits himself as lover and burglar in an acceptable manner. The play was written especially for Corbett, and as the name implies, is on the Sherlock Holmes order. Corbett takes the part of Hester, the burglar, and makes love to Norma, the banker's niece. One dark and stormy night he breaks into Norma's uncle's bank for the purpose of robbing it, and finds the uncle there for the same purpose. They compromise and share the plunder. From that point on the play abounds in thrilling adventures with sleuths, hairbreadth escapes and a reckless discharge of firearms. Raffles finally confesses his true character to his lady love, but "she loves him," and on his promise to reform forgives him, upon the condition, however, that he return the diamond necklace he stole from her, which he does. He also keeps his promise and reforms, marries the girl, and they go to Europe to begin life over.

Mr. Corbett is supported by a strong company and the play is well staged in all respects. The present engagement of the company will continue Friday and Saturday nights at the Krug.

SWITCHMAN KILLED AT WORK

Harry Morehouse Loses His Life in Union Pacific Council Bluffs Yards.

Harry Morehouse, switchman, was killed early Friday morning in the Union Pacific transfer yards in Council Bluffs by being caught between two freight cars at a Y. Morehouse died in a few minutes after the arrival of an ambulance. He was 35 years of age and single, and was from Iowa.

At the time of the accident Morehouse was swinging on the ladder of a box car which was making a switch at a Y. At the Y. Morehouse's body struck a car on the other track, the two cars being close together as the switched car passed. The injured man was hurled to the Northwestern depot on an engine, but died before the arrival of an ambulance.

I have used Chamberlain's Cough Remedy in my family for over a year, and can say that it has never failed to cure the most stubborn cough or cold. I can recommend it to any family as a sure and safe children's cough remedy.—Andrew Schenk, Ayrton, Ont.

A Time Marker in Window Decorating Every Omaha will see with pleasure, and probably with pride, the remembrance of Horse Show window achievements. He will remember how public interest was keyed up prior to the award of prizes for the best Horse Show windows, for which Omaha's leading stores entered into competition with spirit. For three consecutive years the Bennett company lifted the first prize, and, of course, set a pace which would keep even themselves humping considerably to keep up.

From the impression given a Bee reporter derived from an interview made with the Bennett company's Easter window display there can be no question but that the Bennett company have gone one better. The show will open Saturday evening at 6 o'clock, barring accidents and delays which which in these days of electrical science are liable to happen without notice. This latest achievement in window decorating is in the nature of a panoramic display of the wonders of America, and every window on Harney and 16th St. lends itself wholly to the general elaboration. First thing one sees from the street is a large color picture, a perfect representation of some world-renowned American scene of natural or historic interest. The Falls of Niagara is given as observed from below the whirlpool. Stars twinkle overhead. These are produced by electric bulbs not larger than peas. The sublimity of the Mountain of the Holy Cross will be best appreciated in its weird night effect, with the great symbol of sacrifice cleft in the mountain peak so clearly discernible. Or again, there is Lookout Point, the Grand Canon of the Colorado, the Cliff House and Golden Gate, the Moon Palms, the Old Mill near the home of Garfield, the famous old Apple Tree of Kentucky, etc. One of the most striking of the series is Round Bay, Cape Horn, showing the danger to the mariner of getting too near. The ship is seen to pitch and toss almost among the breakers, while great flashes of lightning—live, vivid and very real—break in over head. Aided from the panoramic picture display there is a decided Easter touch in the accompaniments. Figures of beautiful women, made more beautiful by the exquisite gowns, costumes, robes, embroideries, laces, lingerie and furbelows, are prominent. Each one carries a charming piece of millinery, probably the finest instance of millinery art of which Omaha could boast. A guide book in the hand of the figure tempts one to peek over her shoulder, and there one can read the subject of the picture in that particular window. Sprays of rich, green yucca, cactuses, azaleas, dainty Easter merchandise, fantastic festooning in delicate pink water color shades, and the delicate and evidence of the tremendous task accomplished by the store decorator.

In view of the initial opening Saturday evening at 6 o'clock and the interest which is sure to be evoked, the Bennett company may succeed in securing an extra street car service for the occasion.

DUNN'S REVIEW OF TRADE

Business Responds to Influence of Fettered Spring Weather at West Points.

EASTER SALES ARE UNUSUALLY HEAVY

Many Dealers Underestimate Requirements and Urgent Demands Are Made in Jobbing Houses—Demands for Iron and Steel.

NEW YORK, March 22.—R. G. Dunn & Co.'s Weekly Review of Trade tomorrow will say:

Business has responded to the influence of fettered spring weather at most points and prospects of increased sales of dry goods, millinery and footwear.

Many dealers had underestimated requirements and urgent demands for jobbing houses. Transportation is more satisfactory, but at many cities there are still complaints that considerable goods do not come forward as specified. One of the best features is the steady improvement in mercantile payments.

Congestion in the iron and steel industry and hardness of deliveries were accentuated by the flood, which stopped production at many plants in the Pittsburgh district for three days or more. A heavy tonnage of southern iron has been taken from the Birmingham market at a firm quotation. As a result the volume of new business is welcomed by the cotton mills, as pressure for deliveries has advanced prices to the limit of safety, in the opinion of many manufacturers. Large contracts were placed at most profitable prices during the period of activity and the approach of Easter has checked the efforts of jobbers to accumulate stocks because of the approaching trade will be over by the end of this month, but to welcome the advancing season brings out more business, and goods are in better supply. Dress goods are a satisfactory feature.

Footwear factories in New England receive supplementary orders for reasonable goods, chiefly from the West, but for shipment in May and June, but this class of business comes forward somewhat slowly.

Some of the leading tanners have remained out of the hide market so long that most varieties have become scarce. Holdings of native hides are notably large and prices correspondingly high. Facker branded hides are relatively firmer. Receipts of receipts indicates that the tanning market is much firmer than New York.

BRADSTREET'S REVIEW OF TRADE

Spring Turnover Hints Fair to Exceed Last Year's High Record.

NEW YORK, March 22.—Bradstreet's tomorrow will say:

Spring trade is at its height and the turnover bids fair to exceed even last year's, a record being set in the event of a favorable weather, approach of Easter and the visit of country merchants to the business centers. Imports are coming in all around, even in the northwest, which now appears to be getting back to normal conditions, although a position which backward in North Dakota. At some points in the West sales of dry goods and spring account are fully in line with those of last year, while fall business thus far placed in a line in excess of that of this time in 1929. Collections tend to improve, the southwest being conspicuous in this respect, owing to the fact that country merchants are discounting bills. While the car situation in the West has improved, conditions in the East are worse.

The Car iron shows a little more life; contracting, however, for certain forms for distant delivery is not so brisk. Manufacturing in general is active and some lines refuse to look any more anxious for spring shipments. It is reported that some roads intend to abandon work on new construction of better cars, but the public community appears but slightly disturbed by these announcements, feeling that the

ONE OF THE FIVE SURVIVORS

F. S. Thomas, Conductor of Train Wrecked by Explosion, Visits Omaha.

"I Was Sewed Together and Thrown in a Box, with No Thought of My Living," Says He.

Mr. Thomas bears the marks of his terrible experience. The back of his head is a mass of cuts, a scar curves over his left ear and down the left side of his face. The marks of powder are all over his face. He showed a piece of glass an inch long and more than half an inch wide which was removed from his chin just recently. So badly was he injured that he was only roughly "sewed together" by the surgeons and placed in a box. They thought he could not possibly survive the shock of the explosion, said Mr. Thomas. "One moment I was sitting in the train and we were gliding along on schedule time. The next moment we had been converted into a mass of splintered wreckage, which was mingled the still bodies of the dead and the writhing, groaning bodies of the injured.

BEARS SCARS OF TERRIBLE EXPERIENCE

"I Was Sewed Together and Thrown in a Box, with No Thought of My Living," Says He.

To be blown through the side of a rapidly moving train by the explosion of a car of powder on an adjoining side track is an experience through which few people live to tell the tale. F. S. Thomas is one of these rare individuals. Mr. Thomas was the conductor of the train on the Big Four road which was blown to pieces by the explosion of a car of powder a few weeks ago when over thirty people were killed and but five saved. He spent Friday in Omaha and called at The Bee office to see an old friend, George Epperson. He did not know that Mr. Epperson had died two years ago. Mr. Thomas bears the marks of his terrible experience. The back of his head is a mass of cuts, a scar curves over his left ear and down the left side of his face. The marks of powder are all over his face. He showed a piece of glass an inch long and more than half an inch wide which

THE PENALTY OF OVERWORK

Work has been man's lot since the creation, but a day of toil should not have its penalty of pain. Why is it, then, you ask, that backache so often follows? Is it because the modern tendency is to overwork, to tear down faster than nature can rebuild. An unnatural strain is thrown upon the vital organs, and more especially upon the kidneys, which have the work of filtering the blood free of waste and poison.

DEATH, WHISKY AND MONEY

Brother Dies, Man Gets Drunk and Takes Coin Belonging to His Employer.

"I was drunk, your honor. I got on a 'boot' and my brother died and I did not know just how much money I had that was not mine, and spent some that didn't belong to me."

This was Thomas F. Mitchell's explanation to Judge Crawford in police court Friday morning how he happened to be prosecuted on a charge of embezzlement by Thomas Brennan, his employer. Mitchell came to Omaha without a job or recommendation and Brennan "took a chance" with him, giving him a position which required him to make collections. Then he found the display of confidence had cost him $50 and he had Mitchell arrested. Mitchell was very penitent and the judge let him off with thirty days in the county jail.
