BOOM OMAHA AND FEAST

Commercial Club Has a Special Membership Banquet at Its Quarters.

RAILROAD MAN TALKS ON CO-OPERATION
After Formal Exercises Are Concluded Some Talk is Indulged in Regarding the Securing of New Quarters.

Fully 200 representative members of the Commercial club gathered in the spacious dining parlors of the club Thursday on the occasion of a special membership banquet designed for the purpose of booming Omaha and discussing the securing of new quarters for the club.

After the consummation of an elaborate array of delicacies the members were entertained by a flow of wit, reason and oratory by many speakers, chief among whom was one of the guests of honor, William H. Mans, industrial commissioner for the Burlington railroad.

"I want to speak to you on the subject of legitimate promotion in its legitimate sense," said Mr. Mans. "The mistake of the railroads, like human nature in general, I will admit are rampant, but the interests of the Burlington railroad and the people and the towns along its lines are one. Whatever can be done that will tend to the advancement of this city and state will have the heartiest co-operation of the Burlington railroad. I hope the day will come when the hand of fellowship and the tie of common interest will be linked in the hands of both the people of the cities and states and the Burlington railroad."

"And I believe that this Mississippi and Missouri valley country will take its place as the industrial center of the United States as well as the world."

"Exploitation is what is absolutely necessary, and that means the burial of self, the jibes and jeers of friends. What the development of this city and nation needs is the development of strong, virile and progressive characters who believe in something; men who can construct something."

Force of Co-operation.
"I believe greatly in personality. It is the most valuable asset of the banker, and in the establishment of a business enterprise in Omaha you should lay more stress upon the personality of the promoters and new citizens than upon their financial standing."

"We forget the string force of co-operation, for in that will your club be a success, as co-operation is the potent force in the building of a city."

"Let me suggest the toast in closing. May there be in your city smokestacks for a city without smokestacks is dead, and may the wind come from your association that will waft the smoke around Omaha and shall say to the farmer boy and girl shoved off the farm that here is a place they can build a home for themselves and a factory for their material substance, so that Omaha may become a city of men who do something."

Another prominent guest and speaker of the evening was Thad H. Howe, president of the Travelers' Protective association, who, with members of the national board of directors, is paying a flying visit to the local post.

President Howe gave a general resume of the work that has been accomplished by the organization which he represented and said:

"The Travelers' Protective association is such a national board of trade as anything else, and I don't think there is a greater crowd of boosters than the traveling men."

President Howe explained in detail the objects of the Travelers' association and the advantages which accrued from affiliation with it, and was accorded a hearty ovation.

Attracting New Enterprises.
Carroll S. Montgomery presented a novel idea for consideration by the club members for the purpose of inducing new industries to come to Omaha. He said:

"We're boosting for Omaha and there are always many business enterprises of worth seeking locations. The idea of offering bonuses has been given up generally, but it is very difficult to build up a city without some general plan of action. An idea of mine and others is the organization of some incorporated institution for the purpose of promoting new business enterprises. On proper lines the business man could afford to subscribe for a limited amount of stock in such an organization without too great a burden being borne by anyone or any organization as such. By such a method you could bring fifty new institutions to Omaha, which would be profitable and help for a 'Greater Omaha.'"

The toastmaster of the evening was Frank H. Gaines and he proved an adept in that position, but relinquished the honors after the reception of the addresses by the invited speakers to C. M. Wilhelm, president of the Commercial club, who brought the question of securing new quarters to the attention of the members. President Wilhelm said that the necessity for new quarters was unquestioned, but considerable difficulty was encountered in securing them. He also gave it as his opinion that the membership fees should be slightly increased in case it was decided to rent new and more expensive rooms and that a committee from the executive committee, of which Frank W. Judson was chairman, had been selected one month ago to consider the matter then under discussion.

Nothing Definite Yet.
Mr. Judson stated that consideration had been given by the committee toward securing the top floor of the new Brandels building for the club's home, but that the rooms were expensive and rather inadequate in size. The top floor of the old Brandels building has also been under consideration, but nothing definite had been accomplished by the committee, as a number of other suitable locations had been offered.

Expressions were requested by President Wilhelm and Mr. Judson from members of the club as to the question of new quarters and an increase in the annual dues and several members responded as being in accord with the movement to such an end. The evening closed with the general discussion of the club projects.

MUZZLE WHAT PART OF DOG?
Legal Question Arises to Freak Proclamation of Our Jim, the Mayor.

A serious legal technical error has been discovered in Mayor Jim's dog muzzling proclamation. The proclamation, as well as the ordinance on which it is grounded, states that dogs must be muzzled, but fails to specify just what part of the canine anatomy must be incased in the muzzle. Some may take this for a joke, but the legal phase is being seriously considered and on this the proclamation and ordinance may be tested in the courts if the muzzling provision should be enforced on April 5, as the mayor said it would. He has instructed Chief of Police Donahue to carry out these orders.

Years ago Ben Butler of Massachusetts took into court a similar law and won the case. When the day for muzzling the dogs arrived Mr. Butler placed a muzzle on his dog's tail and thus laid a foundation for his case. The courts sustained him, in that the law at that time did not state where the muzzle should be placed.

The turned several slipshoes Friday morning when he heard of this.

Mayor Dahlman was asked concerning this legal technicality and said that any one knows where a dog muzzle should be placed.

"It is the spirit and not the letter of the law that still counts" the mayor exclaimed.

HUGHES LOSES ON THE APPEAL

Judgment Granted by Nebraska Judge is Reversed by Circuit Court of Appeals.

Word has just been received by William Baird & Co., attorneys for the Western Real Estate Trustees, that the judgment found against them in the case of Henry J. Hughes, in which Hughes was awarded judgment in the United States circuit court for Nebraska for $5,000, has been reversed in the United States circuit court of appeals.

The suit was one brought by H. J. Hughes for $20,000 against the Western Real Estate Trustees company, the Boston owners of the property located near the corner of Fourteenth and Douglas streets which collapsed August 23, 1906, destroying his grocery establishment and other adjacent property. The suit was brought in October, 1903, originally and lingered along until December 20, 1906, when judgment was rendered for Hughes in the sum of $5,000. The Western Real Estate Trustees company appealed the case to the United States circuit court of appeals on a petition in error and the decision reversing the action of the lower court has just been handed down. The full decision has not yet been received, hence the cause for the reversal is not known in detail. Mr. Baird has merely received the notification of the decision in favor of his clients from Clerk Jordan of the circuit court of appeals.
