SPRING FOOT BALL TRAINING

Harvard's Move to Abolish Practice Brings Out Much Discussion.

NEW YORK, April 7.—The move made by the Harvard foot ball authorities to abolish spring training, while it has aroused considerable interest in college athletic circles, is not likely to be followed by the other institutions, at least not this season. Until the gridiron code was revised during the winter of 1906 there was a growing sentiment in favor of doing away with spring foot ball, but now conditions have changed and the proposed move will be delayed for at least one or possibly two years. When the rule makers, listening to the demand for a radical change in the playing code, finished their work the result was such a drastic revision in the autumn sport that it left players and coaches practically at sea regarding the possibilities of the new rules. After the close of the 1906 playing season it was the consensus of opinion that the full breadth and scope of the game had not been grasped by the average college eleven and its advisers. Very few of the teams played the new game to the limit and there were many predictions that open foot ball in 1907 would be far more advanced than during the autumn season just closed. For this reason spring practice is considered an absolute necessity at many of the eastern and western universities. A number of the coaches realized when too late last fall that there was much that they and their players did not know about the new game and for this reason the candidates will be out early for preliminary training in the forward pass, outside kick and other trick plays made possible by the revising of the gridiron code. Michigan, in order to encourage the spirit of victory for the game with Pennsylvania, has already planned to make extensive doings with the pigskin next month and Chicago and Illinois are to follow suit. In the east Pennsylvania, Yale, Amherst, Cornell, Dartmouth and a number of the minor institutions will be represented on the turf in squads which will practice punting, passing, some little scrimmage work and other stunts which go to make the finished player when the big games draw near. There can be no question but what the move made by Harvard is a step in the right direction and under ordinary conditions would have found advocates in the other colleges. Just at present, however, it is considered too radical a reform. Spring foot ball practice has always been considered more or less a drudgery and a task which the veteran players always shirked to the limit.

BELLEVUE HAS GOOD SHOW

Overcomes Early Lack of Pitchers and is Now Looking to Successful Season.

Although at first discouraged by the lack of first-class pitchers the Bellevue base ball team is getting into shape and hopes to turn out a team this year that will be equal if not better than the teams of former years. Last year's pitching staff failed to put its appearance this year for the reason that part were graduated and several found it impossible to return to school. Of the material on hand none claimed to be pitchers, but several have made a good showing and will make good. O'Hann, Nichol, Marvel and Mohr are in steady practice and are training conscientiously, and Coach Whitmore and Captain Crossman have the utmost confidence that they will develop into a bunch of first-class pitchers. Plenty of men are trying for the infield and outfield. Several of last year's men will have to fight hard to retain their positions. Captain Crossman will continue to serve behind the bat and is unquestionably the best catcher in the collegiate league. He is working his team well and is putting plenty of spirit and energy into the practices. Harte at first is in good form and is fast becoming the best batter on the team. Of the new men the best are: Lacey, Larson, Martin, Wilder, Kearns and Larrick are working hard to secure a coveted position on the first team. A great deal of attention is being paid to batting this year, a part of the game in which Bellevue has been notoriously weak in past years. Fielding and betting practice is being given up, and the object of the coach is to make the men equally as good at the bat as in the field. In connection with the town team the college is preparing a new diamond on the village commons. A large amount of money has been subscribed and the field will be prepared in the most careful and scientific manner. It will be fenced and seats will be erected. The village team is practicing regularly and its prospects are the best in years. It will play semi-weekly games with the college team, thereby increasing the efficiency of both. The schedule is incomplete, but Manager Rice has games in view for every Saturday. The schedule as completed so far with the members of the college league is: May 1, Doane at Bellevue; May 4, Creighton at Omaha; May 6, Peru at Bellevue; May 13, Coe at Bellevue; May 14, Doane at Crete; May 15, Wesleyan at University Place; May 16, Coe at Bethany; May 17, Peru at Peru; May 25, Creighton at Bellevue.

FAST GAME GOES TO HOME TEAM

Visitors Outbatted and Outplayed by the Hostling Bunch Which Will Wear Omaha Uniforms This Season.

Belden's single in a pinch, with two out and three men on bases in the eighth inning, brought in the only runs of the game between Omaha and St. Paul's American association team at Vinton street park Sunday afternoon, and was an interesting game for the fans. The day was fine for good ball playing, although the wind made it a little cold on the spectators; but all stayed for the finish, as the game was fast and exciting all the way through. The time of one hour and twenty-five minutes for the nine innings shows the speed with which the players handled themselves. Omaha used three pitchers, Thompson, McNeely and Hall, and none was in danger of letting the Saints score except Hall, who got into a couple of tight places, but good fielding back of him saved a run, and the Saints were blanked all the way through.

How the Runs Came.

The only runs of the game came to Omaha in the eighth inning, when Austin started the ball by walking to first. White attempted a sacrifice and Austin was caught at second. Autrey got in the way of a slow one and the bases were filled. Sir John Henry Welch walked, filling the bases with but one out, and Joe Dolan coming to bat. Dolan hit a pop-up which Dick Patten grabbed, and the hope of the fans rested on Belden, Pa's new right fielder and brother of "Red" Belden, who has been in this league for seven last year. Belden was equal to the emergency and lifted one over second base, just out of the reach of the infield, and White and Autrey trotted across the home sack.

Thompson had the Saints at his mercy, the same as he did the White Sox Friday, and the only man who reached first during the three innings he pitched was Smith, the pitcher, who got in a clean single to after he had relieved Thompson, and then all ran smooth until Dick Patten hit for a double, which the wind carried out of Belden's reach, in the fifth inning. Leroy hit a high line which White muffed because he was too eager to make the throw, but Sudden hit to McNeely, who caught Padden at third and Ferris flew out to Welch.

Hall in Trouble.

Hall had a hard inning in the seventh. After Criss had fled out to Autrey, Graham got Norfolk's grand slam, but Sudden hit to White, who in throwing to third to catch the runner, hit Norfolk in the back filling the bases. Ferris, however, popped an easy one to Graham and the danger was passed. In the eighth Harrison led off with a single and the bases were second, but that was as far as he got. The general impression among the fans was that Pa's youngsters outplayed the veterans from St. Paul. Surely they out-hit the hard-hitting ex-St. Louisans. The score:

NOTE HUSTLING IN WYOMING

Strength and Skill of Legs More Important Than Vocal Talent.

When campaign time comes around in such a state as Wyoming the candidate's task is something like that of a scout making a forced march through an uncharted country. The speech of tomorrow may be an all-night ride and more from that of today; sometimes he can catch a Pullman, more often he must trek 'cross country—in the saddle, penury, or catching a few hours' uneasy slumber as the stage jolts along the trail.
