BEFORE THE PEOPLE'S BAR

Albert Edleman Gets an Awful Bump Over Head From Flatiron. John Jacob Heber Meek as a Sheep Raging Lion of Tuesday Night is Mild as Summer Evening's Latest Sligh When Called Before His Honor. Albert Edleman had been struck on the head with a flatiron, Wednesday morning he was before the bar of the "C. P." to be punished for being so careless as to get in the way of such a missile. His head was swathed in bandages and the laundry tool had evidently made a deep impression on his cranium. He stepped before his honor reading the report of the arresting officer, observing plainly that he had been over the shoulder of Sergeant Vanous who charged the havoc which had been wrought on the prisoner and then craned his neck to look over the crowd. "Watehe lookin' fer?" asked "Paddy" Rinn, bailiff. "It was just looking for the woman that did all that damage," he replied. "It wasn't a woman that hit him," enlightened Clerk Mahoney. The three were about to make up a pool on the question of whether it was Mrs. Edleman that wielded the flat iron or some other man's wife, when Judge Crawford read the report of the arresting officer, saying Edleman got into a scarp with another fellow at the Martin flats, Seventeenth and Webster street Tuesday night, and the fellow, who had probably been up against the domestic struggle in crowded quarters before, and knew how to act, omitted the example of the wife in such instances and grabbed a flatiron. He sent it flying through the air until it collided with Edleman's head, ripping a furrow in the latter's scalp. Then he made his getaway. Someone telephoned for the police during the fracas, but when the officers arrived they found no one but the bleeding Edleman and took him to jail, where his wounds were dressed by Police Surgeon Arnaut. "I guess I'll let you go," said the judge, but next time you want to pick out a weapon worthy of your metal to bait your head against, like a bullet, for instance."

BLOW AT OMAHA MARKET

Iowa Roads Make Rate That Checks Grain Shipments West. CHICAGO IS FAVORED BY NEW SCHEDULE. Proportional Plan That Aided Omaha as a Primary Market Abolished in Order to Secure Traffic for Windy City.

Railroad men say the decision of the Interstate Commerce commission in the Union Pacific bridge case cuts little figure one way or the other because of the action of the roads in not giving proportional rates from Omaha east to grain which originates in Iowa. The roads all agreed to discontinue April 1 the practice of letting the Iowa grain have the same proportional rates which are given to western grain. It is said this action on the part of the roads has stopped the Iowa grain from coming to Omaha. Some of the roads made a hard fight to get these proportional rates to the east taken away from Omaha. They were first taken up by a couple of the roads, but other roads standing pat, they were forced to again resist the rates. Pressure was finally brought to bear on the Iowa lines and all agreed to abolish the proportional rates on Iowa grain, beginning April 1. This was one of the hardest blows the Omaha Grain exchange had ever received, as it cut out practically all Iowa grain from the Omaha market. It is now cheaper to ship grain from the smaller towns in Iowa direct to Chicago than to ship through the Omaha market, as was formerly done. A very small amount of grain now comes to Omaha from western Iowa, as it can be shipped to Kansas City on the proportional rates, but not to points beyond, the same ruling applying to points in the south as to Chicago. This concession in favor of grain to Kansas City is of no practical value, as there is no market there for the grain. Some of the grain men are hopeful that some road will again come to the help of the Omaha grain market and make the proportional rates apply on Iowa grain. Just what road will make this move is not known, but there is a rumor that some road will do it before time for heavy grain shipments in the fall.

CONTRACTORS FORM A UNION

Men Who Do Heavy Railroad Work Unite for Mutual Protection and Advantage. Railroad contractors of the middle west have formed an association in Omaha which bids fair to become national in its character. The title of the association is the National Association of Railroad Contractors, and the officers and club rooms are in the old United States National bank building. The officers are T. F. Stroud, president; E. B. Winn, vice president; J. A. Ashley, secretary, and J. A. Freeland, treasurer. The members of the association are J. W. Crowley of Davenport, Ia.; T. F. Stroud, P. J. Peterson, Jerry Dunlay, E. B. Winn, Charles Tompkins, Fred Peterson, John Peterson, D. Trendway of Wall Lake, J. A. Freeland, Ed Peterson, R. K. Moody of Lawrence, Kan.; Dave Tom and J. Fitzgerald, Tim O'Keefe, J. H. Goodman, Harry Nicholson, A. J. Kane and Chris Loehren. The object of the association is for the mutual benefit of the members to provide a means of keeping track of new work which may be ready for bids, to provide rooms for social intercourse, and rooms where visiting contractors may find a desk at which to work while in the city, and to help keep one another in touch with new work. One of the largest grading outfits in this section not now at work is about to move to Canada, where a large railroad contract

PROGRESS OF THE LAND TRIALS

Reading of Record of Richards-Comstock Trials Still Goes On Before Judge Munger.

Very little of general interest developed in the land trial now on before Judge T. C. Munger Wednesday morning. The same monotonous wearisome reading of testimony from the Richards and Comstock case was gone through with, with Mr. Rush and Mr. Goss alternating in the reading, with occasional objections of a technical nature being interjected by counsel for the defense, as a basis for future action. It was expected that some of the Iowa witnesses, who had direct dealings with Huntington, Hoyt or Todd would testify during the forenoon, but the delay in the arrival of Irving D. Hull and James Hull, who are the alleged go-betweens in the case, relating to the three defendants and the soldiers witnesses from Iowa, necessitated the postponement of expected oral testimony for Wednesday morning. A dozen or more of these Iowa witnesses are already in Omaha to give in their evidence when necessary. These are men who were brought direct to the offices of Huntington and Hoyt at Gordon and who were located within the State from the evidence by the defendants. Several of these witnesses did not testify in the Richards and Comstock cases. The purpose of introducing their evidence is to show the connection of Todd, Huntington and Hoyt with the general conspiracy as alleged in the indictment.

Neither a scarcity nor an oversupply of labor exists and to crown all these pleasant conditions in the building world, the dove of peace with a sprig of laurel in its bill hovers over capital and labor. A disposition is noted on the part of contractors to be liberal in considering of what hire the laborer is worthy. Wages paid to men in the building trades in Omaha now are as follows: Masons, 62 1/2 cents; carpenters, 50 to 45 cents, according to ability; iron setters, 67 1/2 cents; plasterers, 62 1/2 cents; lathers, 45 cents; tile setters, 50 cents; plumbers and steamfitters, 62 1/2 cents; stonecutters and setters, 50 cents; painters, 45 cents; sheet metal workers, 40 to 50 cents; electricians, 40 cents; laborers and hodcarriers, 25 to 30 cents. These prices are all for an eight hour day. Much building of suburban residences will be done during the summer, particularly in the West Farnam and Benson districts. In the district nearer the center of the city many flats are to be erected.
