The National Magazine for April goes from the ten to fifteen-cent class. It contains "The Truth About Panama," from the pen of the first magazine editor who "had the spunk to personally visit Panama." This is the big feature of the number. It may well be guessed that this distinction belongs to Joe Mitchell Chapple, the editor of the National Magazine, who has a way of his own of "doing things." At the outset of this article, which is illustrated with 100 handsome views, showing every detail of the work being done in digging the great ditch, and which takes sixty-five pages in the National, Mr. Chapple says his trip was undertaken on a sudden impulse in answer to a challenge given by a public official. The decision to make the trip was a sudden one and was promptly executed, for, he adds, "the only way to go, is to go!"

It is a great story that the National publishes, and it is one that will be read with widespread interest throughout the country. The National should be in the hands of every person interested in this great project of the American nation, because it is the most complete and thorough account
