MORRIS ON JUVENILE COURT

of the Good it Has Accome plished During the Past Year. S. P. Morris, secretary of the Associated Charities, addressed the Brotherhood of Lowe Avenue Presbyterian church last vening on the juvenile court and the child labor bill. A. A. Buchanan, president of the brotherhood, presided and H. C. Johnson rang a solo before Mr. Morris' dis-"In this day when business and society together seem to have encroached so much on the home that the children in some families, though regarded with affection are still loked upon somewhat as a hindrance, and when the responsibility which properly belongs to the home is shifted too often o the school, the interference of the hand of the law at an early stage of the child's life is a necessity. In the year ending with last March the Omaha juvenile court had Liff cases before it. Of these nearly half were settled without bringing the child into This is done wherever possible by onsultation with teachers and parents. In no case except where it is utterly unavoidable does the court undertake to separate than that, for it is really a court of fellowship. There the boy meets the law on the level' and there he gets the 'square deal, im by circumstances. The work of the cort has already born fruit beyond the lopes of the founders. The children are learning manliness, independence and onor. Out of thirty-two boys sent to the adustrial school last year more than half took their commitment papers in their hands and went alone to the institution. proud of the fact that they were trusted and better boys for that trust."
