UNVEIL GORDON MONUMENT

Impressive Ceremonies Take Place at Atlanta on the Occasion.

GENERAL EVANS MAKES CHIEF ADDRESS

Proper Respect Paid to Confederate Leader Whose Bravery Won Record from Fighters on Both Sides in Late Conflict.

ATLANTA, Ga., May 25.—The splendid equestrian monument to General John B. Gordon, who died January 9, 1864, was unveiled here today.

Thousands gathered from all parts of the state and from many sections of the south to pay the tribute of respect to the general's memory.

Description of the Statue. The equestrian statue of General John B. Gordon, which was unveiled today, stands on a broad pedestal of Georgia granite at the north-west corner of the state capitol grounds.

The statue is the work of sculptor Solon H. Borglum of Norway, Conn. Ten thousand dollars of the cost of the monument was raised by private subscription, the remaining $15,000 being an appropriation by the Georgia legislature.

The dedicatory oration was delivered by General Clement A. Evans. Mr. Francis Gordon Smith of Atlanta and Mrs. Caroline Lewis Gordon Brown of Vermont, daughters of General Gordon, performed the unveiling.

The statue was formally delivered to the state by Captain Nathaniel Harris and was accepted by Governor Terrell.

The oration of General Evans, like the rest of the program, was in the open air, in the shadow of the state capitol.

Address of General Evans. General Evans gave an interesting history of General Gordon from the time he entered the confederate army as a captain until the end of the war.

General Evans told of a conference held with General Gordon after the war when they found their hearts in accord upon the resolve to stand by each other, for or for, that the state must be honorably restored to its place in the union.

General Evans said he had no statement to make at this time further than to state that the charges brought against me are absolutely false and malicious. I shall prove my entire innocence in the court.

THREE LOSE LIFE BY FIRE

East Boston Water Front Has Close Call and Many Narrow Escapes Are Reported.

BOSTON, May 25.—Three men lost their lives in a fire which broke out in the heart of the wood working district along the East Boston water front this afternoon.

The fire was one of the most threatening for years in East Boston. Three alarms were necessary to bring the fire under control.

The fire originated in the box factory of S. T. Lebaron, on Bordes street, and was preceded by an explosion, but whether of a boiler, saw dust or hot air, has not yet been determined.

Many were rescued by firemen and taken down on ladders. Several of the firemen were overcome by smoke.

During the progress of the fire two small boys were caught with a crowd in the fire. The fire cut off their escape and in the scramble for safety both boys were knocked down and trampled upon, receiving serious injuries.

LOCKOUT AT ROCK SPRINGS

Central Coal and Coke Company Takes Steps to Stamp Out Union Organization.

ROCK SPRINGS, Wyo., May 25.—(Special Telegram)—A complete lockout at the mines of the Union Pacific and Central Coal and Coke company here is threatened as the result of the labor agitation which is going on in the camp.

The companies carried out the threat made in the notices posted by them before the labor meeting was held on Thursday evening and at all the mines the men were challenged as they came to work and asked if they had joined the union.

This morning mine No. 2 of the Central Coal and Coke company is closed and it is stated that the families occupying the company's houses have been ordered to vacate. It is the intention of the companies to stamp out the organization in the camp, if possible, and fight the union to a finish.

Mrs. Isabel Dwyer of Terre Haute After Quarrel Resents Intrusion of Spouse.

TERRE HAUTE, Ind., May 25.—Joseph Dwyer was shot and fatally wounded early today by his wife, Isabel Dwyer, while he was trying to force his way into her room through a window. The two had separated after a quarrel. Dwyer was shot four times, one bullet penetrating a lung.

AMERICAN LIFE, THE RESULT IS OFTEN HEROIC

Solon Borglum, born in Ogden, Utah, of Danish parents, exemplifies the truth of the statement. As a boy and youth he gave little promise, however, of being more than a successful ranchman and a timid, quiet child, with an imagination more lively than any one knew, he was considered a failure at school, and at the age of 15 he was permitted by his father to take charge of a ranch.

Then I set out for Paris. But when I got there I said to myself, 'These people have copied from nature and that is what I must do at home. Why have I struggled?' And the whole time I stayed I struggled hard not to let my work lose its stamp of American life. That is what our artists and sculptors fail to prevent. They go to Europe and become Europeans.

As we review his work we see how faithful he has been to this ideal. Wherever his groups are found, in the Salon, in the Louvre in Paris, in the Metropolitan in New York in Cincinnati, Chicago or elsewhere, they express a philosophy which is typically American.

Speaking of his work, some critics have said that Borglum is not a person of self-consciousness, one it becomes the message of the great work itself. What changes his work will undergo and whether it will rise to the full measure of greatness when the ego of the man becomes articulate, it is interesting to speculate.

MAGNIFYING SMALL INCIDENT

Japanese Consul in San Francisco Confirms Report of Attack Upon Restaurant.

TOKIO, May 25.—A report from the consul for Japan in San Francisco confirms the news of attacks made recently upon Japanese restaurant keepers in that city.

The public here is indignant, but the press here is not so much so. The incident is not a personal or self-conscious one, it becomes the message of the great work itself.

STATUE IS BEAUTIFUL WORK

Great Sculptor, Solon Borglum, Talks of John B. Gordon's Statue.

The man who rose to greet me with his arms outstretched, his face lit with friendship on the instant, I knew for Solon H. Borglum, "the prairie sculptor"—he whose genius has caught and embodied in bronze and marble the fierce, elemental spirit of the vast west, and whose work not only records him a place in the foremost rank of American sculptors, but gives promise of universal greatness as a writer in the Atlanta Sun.

These facts, extraordinary interest and importance attaches to Mr. Borglum's hasty visit to Atlanta, inasmuch as he comes to confer with the Gordon statue commission in regard to the statue of General John B. Gordon, upon which the sculptor is now at work.

The unveiling of the statue will take place in Atlanta late in June. Instead of in May, as was at first intended, and will be an event in which centers the love and enthusiasm of thousands of loyal southern hearts.

THREE TALESMEN QUALIFY

God Freer is Made in Selecting Jury for Steunenberg Murder Case.

BOTH SIDES ACCEPT DISQUALIFIED MAN Juror Who Objects to Death Penalty Except to Protect Society Against Anarchists is Passed.

BOISE, Ida., May 25.—The unusual spectacle of accepting a juror opposed to capital punishment, except as an extreme measure for the protection of society against war and anarchy, came today in the Steunenberg murder trial and his retention after he had clearly showed that he was disqualified, raises a question as to the regularity of the proceedings.

J. B. Tourtelotte, an architect of Boise, is the juror, and his retention seemed to be clearly due to a willingness of both sides to gamble on his views when the jury reaches the supreme solution of the case, the state on the hope that it can meet his ideas as to anarchy, the defense on his opposition to the death penalty.

Mr. Tourtelotte came with the rest of the talesmen early in the day and his direct examination by Senator Borah developed in a mild form his scruple against the infliction of the death penalty in ordinary murder cases.

His acceptance by the state was a surprise that was within a few minutes intensified by the views brought forth by questions propounded by Clarence Darrow of the defense. Tourtelotte swore that the state was opposed to capital punishment, except in time of war and when society must defend itself against organizations seeking to destroy it.

When the jury filed in after lunch Tourtelotte stood in his place and, claiming the attention of the court, said that he was disqualified to serve in the case. He again asserted that he was opposed to capital punishment and pointed out that it would be impossible for him to take the oath necessary at the outset of the trial. Judge Wood ruled the statute covering the matter, and it showed that a juror having conscientious scruples against capital punishment could not be permitted or required to serve.

FATAL FIRE IN SAN JOSE

At Least Fourteen Lives Lost by Destruction of Lodging House on Market Street.

SAN JOSE, Cal., May 25.—Two unidentified bodies were taken from the debris of a disastrous fire on Market street this afternoon, and with the one identified as that of John McDonald, an employee of the San Jose Water company, and one recovered from the ruins of the burning premises, which were in the ruins the firemen and searching parties have little doubt from an examination of the burned premises, which were a veritable haystack, and from the statements of the keeper of the lodging house.

G. W. Lavery was arrested today on suspicion of having set fire to the feed store, where the blaze started. Lavery was seen yesterday by one of his former employees in the act of cutting up a lap robe, portions of which, found by the police and firemen, were well soaked with kerosene.

At 3 o'clock this morning fire broke out in the rear of Brown's commission store in North Market street and in a few minutes spread to Lavery's livery stable above the Union lodging house, directly above it. Twenty horses in Lavery's stable were burned, but those in Brown's barn were saved. A large bucket in which a piece of candle and a quantity of rags saturated with kerosene was found in the rear of Brown's place near a lot of hay, indicating that the fire was the work of an incendiary.

When the fire was first discovered there were about forty people asleep in the

MASKED MEN RAID A CAMP

Sheep Herders Made to Walk Two Miles—One Is Bound and Other Beaten.

CHEYENNE, Wyo., May 25.—(Special.)—Word has been received at the office of the Wyoming Wool Growers' association here of a raid made a few days ago on a sheep camp of the Shoshoni Sheep company, of which J. A. Deitler, president of the Wyoming Wool Growers' association, is the principal owner.

The camp is on the Upper Wind river in Fremont county and was attacked by a gang of fourteen masked raiders. The herders and camp movers were compelled to walk two miles to the town of Guns, where they were bound to trees. One of the herders, Joe Chavis, recognized one of the raiders and called him by name. He was instantly attacked by the raiders and given a severe beating. It was apparently the intention of the raiders to return and destroy the camp or slaughter the sheep, but after a long discussion they rode off, first warning the herders to move the flock to a point six miles from the site of the camp.

It is reported that a well known wool grower of that section was at the sheep camp at the time of the raid, recognized several of the raiders, and has given their names to Sheriff Cough of Fremont county. It is expected arrests will follow.
