He was employed by William ginning to look had for the reorganized Jordan, a coal dealer, but mysteriously Pueblos, who were playing for the first disappeared a week ago. After his dis-time with their new field manager, but appearance it was discovered there was a here Omaha stopped, for Cook returned shortage in his accounts. While in the Welch's drive to the plate in time to catch employ of Jordan he made deposits in the Autrey, who should have been stopped Corn Exchange National bank and thus at third. Cook has a bad arm, but he came to know Benjamin Githens, president was able to get the ball to Drill in time of the institution, to whom he referred as to head off the topnotch hitter of the Western league. Dolan struck out and Austin flew out to Cook.

Melchoir hit for a double in the second, but Ragan caught him between second and third when Ira Belden hit a grounder. The sixth inning looked for a time as though Pueblo might save a shutout, for Elwert, the first man up, hit for a single and went to second on a passed ball. Mc-Gilvray, bristling under the applause he received for a beautiful running catch, walked. Cook hit into a double, started by Franck and ending at Dolan, and Melchair flew out to Autrey.

In the eighth inning Ragan passed three Indians and a fourth hit him and still no Pittsburg run was made. In this inning Johnny Gonding showed the visitors a bit of his nerve and speed. Hatch, who had walked and reached third on Ryan's hit, thought to draw his way home on a throw by Gonding to first. Ryan was in the deal, his part being to take a big lead. This he did. It was so very big as to be nothing more or less than a simple dare. And Gonding took up the dare. Like a lightning flash, he shot the ball to first and nailed Mr. Ryan dead and Dolan got the ball back so quick that Hatch had no show to score. Elwert and McGllvray walked and Cook ended the inning by hitting into a double play with three men on bases.

Three in Seventh. Omaha made three additional runs in the seventh inning after two were out. Graham singled and while the umpire was not watching the play Belden pushed him off first and touched bim with the ball, Gifford called him out at first and then recognized that Belden had pushed him off the sack. Graham stole second and Gonding's single brought him home. Ragan hit for a two-sacker and William Belden walked. Franck hit for a clean single which scored Gonding and Ragan. Autrey walked and with the bases filled, Welch struck out.
