Trace of a Letter.

The prosecution called as the next witness Hull C. McClaughey, the assistant postmaster at San Francisco, who was interrogated as to a registered letter Orchard said he received from Pettibone while in San Francisco. Orchard said he was going by the name of John Dempsey at the time and Pettibone used the name of J. Wolf in transmitting the letter which contained $100.

Postmaster McClaughey produced the registry records of the San Francisco office which showed the receipt of the letter in question on August 13, 1904. The envelope was postmarked Denver, August

The records showing the delivery of the letter from J. MASCOT SUNG AT THE BOYD Beggar Prince Opera Company Begins the End of Its En-

Last night at the Boyd theater the Beggar Prince Opera company put on "The Mascot," which will conclude the engagement of the company at the theater. The opera is one of the well known old timers, and has some very pretty music, the "Gobbie" duet being one of its most beautiful numbers. Miss Blach is back in the cast, singing Bettina, the turkey tender, with much feeling, although her voice still shows the effect of her illness. Mr. Huntington is singing the part of Bippo, the shepherd, and does it very well. The other roles are well placed, and generally the opera is well presented. It will run the rest of the week, with a matinee on Sat-

The convert of whom he was most proud was a fashion able woman in a western city, who had come to his meetings with a secret that was eating out her heart. He said:
