NO CONTEST FOR THE ALTON

Director of Union Pacific Declares the Report to Be Absurd. AGREEMENT, HE SAYS, WAS VALID

If Any Cloud Exists Now to Rock Island's Ownership it is Through Its Own Competitive Lines.

NEW YORK, June 15.—A director of the Union Pacific Railroad company, speaking of the abrogation of the Chicago & Alton agreement today, said:

The suggestion today's papers that there is to be a contest for the control of the Alton property is absurd. A clear majority of the Alton stock is now owned by the Rock Island interests and has been owned by that interest steady for nearly three years.

RIGHT of the Union Pacific to own stock in the Chicago & Alton is not open to question, since that line is in no wise parcelled off. The Union Pacific could have lawfully held all of the stock but the Rock Island owns a line between Chicago and Kansas City parallel with the line of the Chicago & Alton, and there is any doubt about the agreement being legal it is due entirely to the competitive interest of the Rock Island company.

Instead of being restrictive of competition the effect of the agreement was obviously to be absolutely beneficial to the Union Pacific. It was entered into in October, 1904, the Rock Island owned a clear majority of the Alton stock, thus the Alton would soon have become subject to the control of a parallel and competing line. By this agreement the control was postponed for two years and thereafter the interests were entitled to control only in alternate years. It was to be inevitably relieve the Alton from the pressure of a competing company alternate year. It is very difficult, therefore, to see how the agreement could be regarded as in restraint of trade.

Agreement Was Misunderstood. Mr. Harriman testified before the commission that the main inducement for the Union Pacific to enter into the agreement was the understanding that the Rock Island would use the Kansas City-Chicago line for its through traffic and the Union Pacific would use the Kansas City-St. Louis line for its eastern connection out of Kansas City and westward to Chicago. Harriman, the latter would serve the needs of the two and prove profitable to the stockholders and conserve the money interest. But the Rock Island has never carried out the plan this contemplated and hence one of the main purposes of the agreement as far as the Union Pacific is concerned, has failed, and as the Rock Island desired to have the Alton property acquired, being still of the opinion that the public advantage would be served by agreement is brought into effect. The Alton agreement comes under the purview of the control of the Rock Island with its great control over the public interest. The morning papers that the information in the results of the operation of the Chicago & Alton for the year ending 1906, showed any change in the management of the Rock Island interest was given to the board of directors in 1906, it continued without any change in the management of the road at that time. Mr. Fallon, the president and general manager, continued in the actual management of the property and the results achieved are due entirely to the management of the latter. Harriman's control and continued to date.

advertisement into a great many papers. "Highly connected gent. $5,000 a year, would marry lady from 30 to 40, having sentiment and $800 annual income." Ladies having the requisite sentiment and competency were drawn by the advertisement like flies to the candle. A woman in the best society, in reality the baron's mistress, introduced the butterflies to Fly, one after another, separately of course, and successive engagements followed. During the betrothal sudden financial disaster invariably overtook the baron, who felt compelled to release the ladies from their plighted troth. But they, being full of sentiment, almost always declined the generous offer and would not give up the baron at any price. On the contrary, they were often willing to pawn their jewels to keep him from want. The baron is now in jail and is threatening to kill some of his former ardent admirers.

Pignone Causes Much Trouble. What is a pignone? No ordinary dictionary would give the figurative meaning of the word, and the dictionary of the French academy, which will doubtless fully explain the term, is still at letter C. In the meantime M. Rolland, an actor, has called a player, M. Simirotti, a pignone. In fact, he twice called him pignone. Suddenly in the middle of the operetta, "Vingthuit Jours de Clarette," he stopped singing and shouted to M. Simirotti in the stalls, "You are nothing but a pignone." Afterwards, during an interval, he rushed about the wings, crying, "Where is he, the pignone? Where is he? Where is he that I may chuck him out?" This tragic scene happened at a theater in Constantinople during the tour of a French company. But the affair was of such gravity that it has come to Paris. It was first considered before the French consular tribunal at Constantinople sitting as a police court. M. Rolland was indicted for having addressed a public insult to M. Simirotti. He said that the latter had persistently attacked him in a Constantinople paper. Hence his resentment and his opinion that M. Simirotti is a pignone. It was decided against M. Rolland that M. Simirotti had not abused his right of newspaper criticism. But, on the other hand, there was some technical difficulty in upholding the charge against defendant of having publicly insulted the critic, as it seems doubtful whether a theater is a public place. Anyhow, the consular tribunal compromised by sentencing M. Rolland only to the fine of $1 and giving him the benefit of the first offender's act.

Like. As a general thing the troopers fall asleep after a hour or so. Whatever the causes of the wine crisis, the Midi is as determined as ever.

Wealthy Girl Elopes. Tongues are wagging fast in a picturesque little suburban hamlet on the banks of the Seine over the elopement of a millionaire's daughter with a plumber's son. A few days ago the young woman, who is 21, came to Paris, accompanied by her chaperon. In the evening the chaperon returned alone to the villa in the suburbs. The young woman had suddenly vanished out of sight in a crowd, and the chaperon could not give the slightest indication as to what had become of her. The father at once concluded what had happened, and letters he has since received have confirmed his suspicion. His daughter had eloped. She was not of a particularly romantic disposition, but her father's solitary life she led with her father, who is a plumber, not very far from Paris, but lives little in it and prefers his villa in the suburbs. Some little time ago the water pipes were out of order, and the plumber was called. It so happened that the plumber sent his son, a tall, fine looking fellow about 18 years of age, to look after the job. The millionaire's daughter saw him, watched him do his work as a pastime and fell in love with him. For some weeks after that something was going wrong every day with the gas pipes, the water conduits or electric fittings, and the young plumber apparently did his level best to remedy ubiquitous leaks and bad breaks. At last suspicion dawned on the millionaire's mind and he forbade the young plumber all access to the house. The water pipes were not mended, and the young plumber again. But not so the young people. They found means of communicating with each other and arranging their flight. The millionaire's daughter took very little with her on her voyage—a few jewels and a small amount of cash given her by her father. This circumstance gives the latter a faint hope that she may soon be compelled to return to him for supplies, which he is positively determined to refuse as long as present relations continue. The distressed father has been seen visiting his notary in the little suburban hamlet and the neighbor, in speaking for him, said that he is going to disinherite his daughter and do other terrible things calculated to spoil the romance.

Smart Swindler Caught. Swindlers appear to be finding the old-time methods the best. A smart con man calling himself the Baron Fly put this advertisement in the Bee:

If we can get but two-thirds of the value of these figures we shall still have 50 per cent margin over our cost for our journey from the pole to the pole and back.
Alonso in Contact With Earth. "It is our intention during our voyage to the pole to be always in contact with the earth by means of a guide rope. We shall never ascend more than 300 feet to 500 feet, and our guide rope will trail over the surface of the earth. This guide rope is absolutely essential to the safety of our navigation and is of considerable weight. Instead of employing a steel line we have made what I call a leather serpent, fifteen feet in diameter and 160 feet long and weighing about 1,200 pounds. This is packed full of reserve food weighing 1,200 pounds and is suspended from the airship by means of a steel rope. It is covered with steel scales to protect the leather and to make the whole guide travel smoothly over ice and snow. It will also float on the sea. By means of the arrangement of the airship and food contained in the guide rope we are able to carry with us a total of 3,000 pounds of food, or enough to enable the crew of the airship to subsist on its own stores for a period of ten months without having recourse to game or outside supplies."

JAPANESE QUIETING DOWN Conference Held at Tokio on American Question by Government Officials. TOKIO, June 15.—It has been learned that Foreign Minister Viscount Hayashi at a conference on the American question held yesterday by the other statesmen and ministers, advised that the last incident reported in connection with the attacks upon Japanese residents in California was not grave enough to warrant diplomatic action. The views of both governments are fully in accord, and the trust is expressed that the federal government at Washington will furnish a speedy solution of the question at issue.

TRACING FEDERATION DRAFTS

Money Was Sent by Haywood Frequently to L. J. Simpkins.

ADAMS' APPEAL FOR ASSISTANCE Took Form of Telegram Sent to Haywood From Mining Camp in California—Wire From Victorino Mine.

BOISE, Idaho, June 15.—The prosecution in the Steunenberg murder case won its fight for the admission of the contents of the telegram, Steve Adams sent from Ogden to the defendant, Haywood, at Denver in June, 1906, and Detective Pender of Ogden was permitted to testify to the contents this morning. The message was an appeal from Adams to Haywood for money.

The state next produced and secured the admission of six drafts sent by Haywood to Jack Simpkins at various times in 1904, 1905 and 1906. One was sent just before and one just after the Steunenberg murder and the purpose for which they were introduced was to show the relations of Haywood and Simpkins, who aided Harry Orchard in the first attempt to kill Steunenberg.

The state next produced the fragments of the pistol and device by which the internal machine placed in the Victorino mine was set off, and this led to a general digression into the whole story of the Cripple Creek strike of 1904, in which the defense sought to show violence and incitement to violence by agents and officers of the Mine Owners' association and high-handed injustice by the militia after martial law was declared.

Then the play went back to the Peabody bomb to prove its recovery from the Cour d'Alene revolver. Former Governor Peabody, Mrs. Peabody and Miss Peabody, who had been within the mine, intensely watched the production of the bomb casing which so long held tragedy for them. Plumber Made Bomb Casing. Charles T. Rosh, a plumber, testified that he made the casing of what is known as the "Peabody bomb." It was made to order. He identified the bomb casing, examining it carefully. He said he did not think he could identify the person who ordered it and did not know Orchard.

Miss Cora May Peabody, daughter of former Governor Peabody, was one of the last witnesses at the morning session. She testified to seeing two men near her carriage during her father's term of office. Her brother and sister were with her. Orchard testified that one night he waited to shoot the governor, but women got out of the carriage.

E. F. Richardson cross-examined Miss Peabody closely. She was extremely nervous, but answered every question without contradiction. Richardson's questions directed to an effort to show that the witness was endeavoring to bolster up Orchard's testimony. Former Governor Peabody was the last witness. He saw Orchard in Canon City at the time Orchard said that he went there for the purpose of killing the governor.

The seals outside the bar were not more than half filled when court opened this morning at 9 o'clock. J. T. Pender, the detective from Ogden, who arrested Steve Adams in a fruit car at Ogden was recalled. Senator Borah stated to the court that in the statement made by Orchard and testimony of Pender, on the stand yesterday that Steve Adams sent a telegram to Haywood, thus linking Steve Adams as a co-conspirator with Haywood, the state had the right to introduce Pender's testimony as to his knowledge of the contents of the telegram. Judge Wood said he had no doubt as to the admissibility of the evidence, but ruled that the state must lay foundation to show that the original telegram had been destroyed. Senator Borah argued at some length and quoted authorities. Mr. Richardson argued that there was no possible rule of law under which the evidence could be introduced. For the sake of argument he admitted that Adams sent the telegram to Haywood, when he was stranded and beating his way back to Denver from a mining camp in California, but maintained that a conspiracy existed between Steve Adams and Haywood.

The court admitted the testimony as a declaration from Steve Adams, whom the state sets up as a conspirator. The telegram read: "W. D. Haywood, Denver, Colo.—I am in trouble, send me $10 at once—Steve Adams." Pender was briefly cross-examined and left the stand. J. C. Houston, assistant cashier of the First National bank of Denver, was called. He said that the Western Federation of Miners did business with his bank and identified Haywood's signature on five drafts, which were marked for identification. The drafts were in favor of L. J. Simpkins and were purchased on the Mechanics National bank of New York, the Park National bank of New York, the National Bank of Commerce and the First National bank of New York, all of drafts except one were signed by Haywood as secretary and treasurer of the Western Federation of Miners. Another draft introduced was signed by James Kirwan, assistant secretary and treasurer. Richardson objected to the introduction of the drafts because immaterial and had no connection with the murder of Steunenberg. He read from the face of the drafts: "The dates and amounts of the drafts follow: January 27, 1904, $20.00, Mechanics' National bank of New York, by W. D. Haywood and endorsed to L. J. Simpkins, cashed by the Webber bank at Wardner. January 18, 1905, $20.00, National Bank of Commerce, New York, by William D. Haywood and endorsed to L. J. Simpkins, cashed by the Webber bank at Wardner. January 26, 1905, $10.00, First National bank of New York, by James Kirwan and endorsed to L. J. Simpkins, cashed by the Exchange National bank at Couser d'Alene. October 29, 1905, $15.00, National Bank of Commerce of New York, by William D. Haywood and endorsed to L. J. Simpkins, cashed by the Exchange National bank with the additional endorsement of Frank Tibbals. December 2 (second figure cut out), 1905, $100, Mechanics' National bank of New York, by William D. Haywood and endorsed to L. J. Simpkins, cashed by the Spokane and Eastern Trust company with an additional endorsement. January 17, 1906, $100.00, National Bank of Commerce, New York, by William D. Haywood and endorsed to L. J. Simpkins, cashed by "Matilda Simpkins" (wife of Arthur's National of Spokane. After some argument Judge Wood ruled that on the state showing the connection between Simpkins and the defendant he would admit the drafts of evidence. Twenty-one other drafts were introduced and the signatures identified. These were not introduced in evidence and were only marked for identification.

Haywood Takes Deep Interest. The bundle of drafts was examined very closely by Haywood, who conferred with Clarence Darrow on each one. In cross-examination Houston said that thousands of drafts were sent out in the course of a year by Haywood, or, in his absence, by Kirwan, his assistant. Major H. A. Naylor of Victor, Colo., assistant secretary of the Mine Owners' association, was the next witness. At the time of the explosion in the Victorino mine Naylor was an officer in the National Guard of Colorado. He went into the mine shortly after the explosion. Fragments of a pistol were identified by the witness. They are believed to be of the pistol with which Orchard said the mine in the sixth level was fired.

Naylor found the fragments himself. They were offered in evidence, objected to and admitted. Naylor also identified a piece of wire found wrapped around the guard rail, the lifting of which, Orchard said, pulled the trigger that fired the powder in the Victorino mine. Under cross-examination Naylor said the National Guard was called out in September, 1905, during the Cripple Creek strike. He was in charge of a camp about a mile from the Victorino and a detail was on duty near the shaft. Richardson asked the witness if he knew anything of the detailing of four men to shoot up the tool shed of the Victorino. In the course of his examination Richardson insinuated that the defense would try to show that the Victorino owners were behind in the payment of their assessment and that the soldiers were employed to create disturbances and destroy property which the Mine Owners' association laid to the door of the Western Federation of Miners.

Naylor knew of No Arrears. Naylor said he knew nothing of any arrears due from the Victorino mine. He is now assistant secretary of the Mine Owners' association but was not connected with that organization during the strike. The witness was asked if he did not have a decided animosity against members of the miners' union. "I don't know that I have," replied Naylor.

"Were you with Major Tom McClelland when he said 'To Hell will the constitution go, sir.'" "No, sir." "Or Sherman Bell, when he said 'To hell with habeas corpus; we'll give 'em post mortems.'" "No, sir." "But you heard of these statements?" "Yes, sir." "Naylor declared he had nothing to do with the actual deportation of union miners from Cripple Creek, although he made many arrests, some of the miners being arrested being men of family. Naylor said he succeeded Michael Connors as marshal of Victor, Colo.

Naylor was asked as to the character of the men who served under him as marshal, among them "Kid" Waters, Jim Warford, Jack Bowman and others. Questions as to whether or not these men were known as professional gun men were ruled out by Judge Woods. Attorney Richardson developed the fact, however, that Warford is now in the penitentiary. Naylor denied ever knowing Tom Hoger or Harry Orchard.

Involving Mine Owners. Mr. Richardson here indicated the purpose of the defense to attempt further to connect the Mine Owners' association with the outrages in Cripple Creek, this time with the Independence depot explosion to which Orchard has confessed on the stand, implicating Steve Adams. The attorney wanted to know if Naylor had not attended a meeting with Orchard and others at Victor the evening of June 5, 1904, and if he had not informed the militia to be ready—that something was going to happen. Naylor denied that he had ever attended any such meeting and said the militia was not on duty at the time. "But you were anxious to get the militia back, weren't you?" "No, sir; there was no reason to have them there." Richardson next attempted to show that as major of militia, Naylor took all such meetings and said the Mine Owners' association, but the witness declared he knew of no orders coming from the association at any time. Former Governor Peabody, who was in office at the
