HARMONY AND EMPLOYMENT

Lomax and Anderson Talk on These Subjects at Conference.

FORMER CERTAIN ON OVERLAND

Union Pacific Officials and Employees Like One Large Family, Says the General Passenger Agent.

The operating officials of the Union Pacific railroad, at their second annual meeting at the Commercial club, closed their discussion Tuesday of topics for the good of the service.

Vice President Mohler made a brief talk at the closing session Tuesday, but it was one of the addresses not revealed to the public.

"It was just a little family chat," was the way Mr. Mohler dismissed the matter.

One of the papers of great interest Tuesday was that on "Harmony" by E. L. Lomax, general passenger agent of the road. He said:

"Harmony means accord in feeling, manner or harmony of different causes leading to the result. I am sure the first meaning is carried out in the great family of Union Pacific employees and we will discuss the second meaning. In modern railroading there may be some danger of specializing in the great and the small, and it is sometimes difficult for us to see the picture as a whole and determine what is best for the interest of the property we are all trying to serve.

"It involves no egotism for us to concede that the task of caring for the traffic of a large railroad with satisfaction to the management and the public, is a task which requires ability, discretion and business judgment of the highest type.

Question of Methods.

"When we consider the tremendous increase in railroad traffic that has taken place during the last three or four years, the fact is forced upon us that modern railroading is quite as much a question of devising methods and of procuring adequate facilities for handling the traffic as it is a question of securing it. Intelligent cooperation is absolutely essential and I believe more frequent conferences and less correspondence are necessary.

"Knowledge is power, and the official who makes a study not only of the business of his own department, but of the other branches of the service, is so much the stronger. I do not advocate the study of the work of other departments with the idea of interfering with the administration of such departments, but believe it will be far more useful to the property we serve if we broaden out. It is inevitable the broad-minded, many-sided man will ultimately leave behind the man of narrow views and restricted vision."

Superintendent Anderson Speaks.

H. L. Anderson, superintendent, spoke on the "Employment of Men in the Operating Department." He said:

"Careful investigation should be made before the employment of applicants, of their moral character, intelligence, sobriety and honesty, and under no condition should it be necessary to employ a man who is a business offender, should they be permitted to enter the service unless, in the judgment of the employing official, they measure up to the high standard that it is the duty of the ranking official to fix.

"Once in the employ, the official who comes in daily contact with the men should impress upon them the importance of the strict observance of both the letter and spirit of the rules, cautioning them continuously that the expense, both in time and labor, incurred in the framing and promulgation of the rules can have but one meaning, namely, the management insists that their provisions must be carried out literally."

Hill Commends the Plan.

Prof. Hill of the political economy department of the University of Chicago remained over Tuesday to hear the various papers as they were read by the practical railroad men.

"The idea of that educational meeting is a most excellent one for both the men and the company," said Prof. Hill. "As I indicated in my talk to the men, it is for the men to educate themselves and the more systematic this is the better the results. On a large railroad system like the Union Pacific the chance of an interchange of ideas similar to the present meeting is of great value that it should not be overlooked. The papers were right to the point and clear and could not but be of immense benefit to the road. Superintendent Park is a most capable leader and has excellent ideas on the subject of education. He is so thoroughly posted in his work that he was of great assistance in bringing out clearly the best parts of each man's paper."

WHY COOK MISSES ROLL CALL

He is Out at Cut-Off Lake Catching Crappies with Strawberries.

Trade Tourists Appeal from West for Structure Commensurate with the Requirements of Omaha.

BOOSTERS BOOST BIG BUILDING

Strawberries and cream may be a palatable dish for the human family, but fish care nothing for the juicy fruit when scattered on the surface of the briny deep or on Cut-Off lake. If anyone should have doubts in the matter let him inquire of Police Sergeant Cook, for he spent an hour or more experimenting at the lake Monday.

Sergeant Cook's investigations in the interest of science and the family refrigerator came about through the expert opinion advanced by Keeper Stout of the city jail chain gang, in reply to Cook's query as to what bait is best to catch crappies. Stout's reply was:

"The best thing in the world for catching crappies is strawberries. The fish just love them and will come for miles to feed on them. You anchor your boat in a suitable spot and then cast the berries on the water all around you, retaining a few to put on your hook. Say, you'll have your hands full taking the things off the hook and rebaiting if you do that."

The next day Sergeant Cook did not respond when Captain Dunn called the roll of his subordinates at the police station. No one knew where the tall officer was until Tuesday morning, when he started to get even with Stout.

The story then came out how Cook had gone to Cut-Off lake with a box of red berries from the corner grocery, splitting half of them on the water and then sat for an hour watching a man several rods away pulling in crappies by the dozen, while he himself never received so much as a nibble.

"I forgot to tell you to put cream on the strawberries," was Stout's only defense.

NEW COURT HOUSE HAS TRACK

Other Plans Are Swept Aside by the County Board.

BOOSTERS BOOST BIG BUILDING

Trade Tourists Appeal from West for Structure Commensurate with the Requirements of Omaha.

The county board by a vote of 4 to 1 put to sleep Bruning's resolution providing for the remodeling of the old court house building and also killed Trainer's proposal to award prizes for the best plans for a new court house. The other resolution by Trainer calling for joint action by the city and county in the construction of a building was laid over for future action.

Bruning was the only one who supported his resolution and he said afterward he was not opposed to the new building plan, but he thought a majority of the taxpayers would rather see the present building remodeled and a new jail constructed. Personally he said he would not oppose the new building, but had offered his resolution in order to get both propositions before the board. Trainer's resolution to offer prizes for plans was killed by a vote of 3 to 2, Bruning voting with Trainer on the proposition.

The action on Bruning's resolution leaves now but one general plan, the erection of a new building. Whether or not it is to be built by the county alone or by the county and city together is a minor consideration to be taken up later.

At a meeting a petition favoring the erection of a new court house commensurate with Omaha's requirements and standing was received from over fifty of the trade boosters. It was signed and mailed while the party was at Pocatello, Idaho.

Mrs. W. E. Murray has complained to the board that saloons on Center street, between Fifty-fourth and Sixtieth streets, have been running open on Sunday. She says the saloons provide a loafing place for "chobos." She asks they be required to "close."

He was shown over Omaha by his friend, Julius E. Cooley. "This is my first visit to Omaha, but I must say that, give Omaha time, and it will surely be a splendid city. If Omaha had a dozen more men like Count Creighton, who was a good friend of mine, it would be a mighty fine city." HOSPITAL GETS THE LAND

St. Joseph's is Given Tract by Street Railway First Chosen for Barn Site.

The directors of the Omaha & Council Bluffs Street Railway company decided at a meeting Tuesday morning to turn over to the St. Joseph Hospital association the tract of land recently bought for car barns on South Tenth street.

For some time the company searched all over that section of the city for a site which had depth enough to make a suitable location of large barns which would care for the cars of the Dodge, Farnam and Harney street lines and the only available ground seemed to be that which was bought from eastern parties. A protest was raised by the friends of the hospital to the company placing a barn so near the hospital, as it was contended the noise would disturb the patients. The hospital association at first did not object to the barn, but rather wished to buy the south half of the tract. The company agreed to sell this, but later opposition developed and the directors have now decided to turn the entire tract over to the hospital at the purchase price and to search elsewhere for a location for the car houses.

Rev. Charles W. Savidge, pastor of the People's church, has just returned from Minneapolis, where he held the reunion of his class of the University of Minnesota, which was graduated in 1877. Thirteen of seventeen members of the class were there and all were men but one, Mrs. Mattie Campbell Wilkin, who has been a member of the faculty at the university since her graduation. The manager of a deceased classmate was there to represent him. She is 77 years of age. The son and daughter of another classman were present to represent their mother. There were two preachers and several lawyers.

"It was a grand treat," says Rev. Mr. Savidge. "We had a fine time talking over the old days and visiting the old halls and campus where thirty years ago we left the arena of college for the forum of practical life."

Rev. Mr. Savidge was met in Minneapolis by his son, Robert W. Savidge, a junior in the University of Chicago. He is 19 years of age. He captured first prize in a Greek contest this year. The prize was $100 in cash. Robert Savidge will remain a time in the Twin Cities visiting and fishing and then will return home for the vacation with his parents in Omaha.

For the benefit of councilmen he has secured reports from a large number of towns of the United States, and in but one of them is milk permitted to be offered for sale at a temperature exceeding 55 degrees.
