EMPTY POCKETBOOKS FOUND

William Mowrey, Arrested for Knocking Down Man Who Falls on Track and Loses an Arm, is Discharged.

Justice Peter Rief of Lewis township decided yesterday that the evidence was sufficient to warrant him binding over to the grand jury Mrs. Agnes Morris of Omaha, who was arrested Sunday evening at Lake Manawa on suspicion of being pickpocket. Mrs. Morris' bond was placed at $500, which later in the day she succeeded in furnishing and was released from the county jail. Mrs. Morris was arrested by Deputy Sheriff O. T. Frary, who testified that several persons had called his attention to the woman, and when he arrested her she had her hand in the pocket of a man who later proved to be L. Cohen.

Mrs. Morris, who is a young woman 2 years of age, denied the charge and sai she had been at the lake with her mothe and father and had been in their company the whole afternoon, with the ex ception of a few minutes before she was taken into custody. This part of her textimony was corroborated by her father and mother. L. Cohen, the man in whose pocket Officer Frary said Mrs. Morris had her hand when he placed her under arrest testified that he was unaware that the woman had her hand in his pocket and he had lost nothing. Mrs. Morris resides with her parents

One pocketbook found yesterday is evidently the property of J. C. Trumbull, an employe of the Western Car Service association, as it contained a number of railroad passes made out in his name. All of the men arrested Sunday at the lake for disorderly conduct were fined $10 and costs each yesterday by Justice Rief. Frank Judson, one of the men arrested, was a bit taken back when brought before Justice Rief yesterday to recognize in the justice the man whom he had struck and who had him arrested. Judson, with some companions, started a free-for-all fight in Rief's place outside the enclosure and in the mix-up got his face more or less badly marked. Mowery Discharged. After a hearing before Judge Snyder in police court. William Mowery, who was charged with having knocked William Milbourn down with a lantern in the yards of the Northwestern railroad, leaving Milbourn unconscious by the tracks where he was run over by a switch engine and his right arm severed by a passing switch engine, was discharged. Milbourn's statement was to the effect at he. Mowery and James Kelly, after visiting several saloons, went to the Northwestern roundhouse to enquire about some work Kelly was expecting to get. On the return Milbourn said he was struck from behind with a lantern which he believed Mowery was carrying. He did not remember anything more until he regained consciousness in the ambulance on his way to the hospital the next morning.

The testimony of several employes of the Northwestern was to the effect that Milbourn was found 800 feet from the place where he claimed he was knocked down. Other evidence showed that Milbourn and his companions had been drinkand that there had been a dispute among them as to who owned what was left.

Police Block the Game. Thinking their intended victim had wealth about his person, I. Miller and W. I. Grant enticed W. H. Ray, a farmer from near Missouri Valley, Ia., over from Omaha to Council Bluffs. It happened, however, that Ray possessed only $2.65 in cash, but Miller and Grant had succeeded in "winning" $2 of the amount when Officer Lorenzen swooped down on them and placed them under arrest.

Miller accosted Ray on the Tenth street viaduct in Omaha and after a few minutes conversation suggested a car ride to Couneil Bluffs. Miller and Ray alighted from the car at Bayliss park, where they took a seat under one of the trees. Then Grant happened along and recognized Miller as an old friend. Grant was introduced to Ray and then a dice game was proposed. Some one spotted the trio and suspecting that the man from Missouri Valley was being played for a sucker telephoned police headquarters with the result that Miller and Grant, whom it later developed are known to the Omaha police as grafters, were arrested. Eleven Months for Daily. Lafavette Daily, who fired into a gang of boys on West Broadway because they taunted him by calling him "Tin Can Johnny," and wounded one of them, Russell Williams, was yesterday sentenced by Judge Wheeler in district court to eleven months imprisonment in the county jail, the court taking into consideration the fact that Daily had been behind the bars since May 9, the day of the shooting. Daily was indicted on a charge of assault to commit murder but the jury, as in the Matheson and Southwell cases, found him guilty only of assault with intent to inflict great bodily injury. In passing sentence Judge Wheeler referred to the fact that the prisoner's friends had interceded for him and said, "If I give you the maximum, that will be leniency enough. The jury has given you the benefit of everything else."
