Be it said to the credit of the women of Idaho...

The Knox presidential boom seems to be running on pneumatic tires...

Editor Watterson has asked the newspaper paraphraser to please quit making light of his dark horse.

The Fourth of July is the one day in the year that the average American boy wants to prove that he is not a mollycoddle.

An investigator asserts that "measurements show that the Japanese have increased in size in late years."

The moth is said to be destroying the trees in New England.

"Kissing must go," declared Dr. Knopf at the annual meeting of the Conference of Charities and Corrections.

The latest democratic ticket in Johnson of Minnesota for president and Johnson of Ohio for vice president.

In commenting on the Russian situation the newspapers up to date have heroically refrained from remarking that it sounds like the crack of Duma.

Senator Knox refuses to retire from the presidential race, even after the published announcement that he is to have the active support of Senator Foraker.

Joe Weber says the rich men of the country are depleting the chorus.

"What," asks the New York Mail, "is the June bride of last year doing?"

Mayor Schmitz says he does not see how San Francisco is going to get along with him in jail.

A visitor at the Jamestown exposition has been fined $20 for kissing a Norfolk girl.

The political pipe-dreams being incubated hereabouts for consumption by the uninformed bear unmistakable earmarks that indicate their paternity as well as their motive.

A competition between the various public enterprises in Omaha that are looking to the community to furnish funds to complete new buildings is hardly in order.

A Department of Agriculture expert declares that wolves kill from 10 to 15 per cent of the cattle on the public ranges each year.

A freight department spokesman of the Burlington denies that it is going to ignore the Aldrich maximum freight rate law.

The resolution, if adopted by the commons, would have no immediate effect, nor is it certain whether it

WHAT THE BOARD SHOULD DO.

Deputy County Attorney Magney has furnished the county board with an opinion intended to relieve the sheriff from the necessity of turning back the money he has been pocketing...

The question is not entirely free from doubt, as there is no specific statute governing the point, but in my judgment a claim of this character cannot be maintained against the sheriff as the law now exists.

The trouble with this opinion is that it assumes, as its language indicates, with reference to the sheriff's control over the county jail that it is "his jail," when in fact it is not the sheriff's jail, but was built and is maintained by money drawn from the taxpayers of Douglas county.

The sheriff may be under obligations to take in outside prisoners on agreed terms, but that does not justify him in converting to his own use the money thus collected.

Because this graft has been the newspaper paraphraser to please quit making light of his dark horse.

Responsibility for accidents. In an address before the Master Car Builders' Association at Atlantic City Secretary Moseley of the Interstate Commerce commission makes the charge direct, in language that admits no misinterpretation, that "too tight-fisted boards of directors are responsible for a majority of the railroad accidents of the last year."

Marked development must come to the tropics, since it has been demonstrated that northern energy can create and maintain wholesome and suitable conditions for labor there.

After the university has lost a few more members of its faculty perhaps the state of Nebraska will realize that something must be done—Lincoln Star.

The World-Herald has suddenly discovered that the slot machine is an evil and a standing invitation to gambling. The cause of this sudden discovery is plainly the simultaneous discovery that the extinction of slot machine gambling was one item on the original reform program mapped out for the police board at the time of its appointment by Governor Sheldon.

A Philadelphia minister has resigned because his congregation criticized him for failing to have his trousers creased. That congregation should get a tailor for its pulpits the next time.

Quite a bit of the Nebraska state school fund has been invested in the past in securities bringing as low as 3 per cent interest returns.

Douglas county bonds at 3 1/2 per cent would be a good proposition for the state financially as well as in other respects.

Our old friend, John Jenkins, is to be transferred to another post in the consular service because "his usefulness as American consul at San Salvador has been impaired" by entanglements in the fight between Nicaragua and Salvador.

Mayor Hector of South Omaha has stolen a march on Mayor Dahlman of Omaha and succeeded in being first to touch of his Fourth of July proclamation.

Richard Croker declares that his father was not a blacksmith, but a gentleman. Blacksmiths are naturally congratulating themselves.

An appalling thought. Colonel Bryan says President Roosevelt chooses his official advisers from among those associated with corporations.

Colonel Bryan says President Roosevelt chooses his official advisers from among those associated with corporations. It is harrowing to think what the president would have done to the corporations if his advisers had been chosen from the plain people.

President Roosevelt's appointments and those to come. Of the nine members of the supreme court President Roosevelt has appointed three—Associate Justices Holmes, Day and Moody.

Some remarks on Chancellor Day's lamentations. Chancellor Day of Syracuse university, weeping over the Wall street mark-down sale of slips of engraved paper as "six billions of shrapnel in the properties of the people" is like an awe-struck child watching a drunken man write checks and touch "burnt" matches to them.

BITS OF WASHINGTON LIFE.

Minor scenes and incidents sketched on the spot. Washington scribbles who have endeavored to fasten upon President Roosevelt the stigma of carrying a revolver in his hip-pocket are skimming for shelter.

It happened on one of the United States cruizers now at Hampton Roads, relates the Washington Herald.

One of these ever old but ever new propositions that probably will receive some attention at the coming session of congress is the signing of mail by cabinet officers.

Some of the secretaries spend two hours a day in the busy season simply signing their names. A messenger stands at their elbows and removes and blots the sheets as fast as they are signed.

High finance is not confined entirely to Wall street," said John E. Wilkie, chief of the secret service.

The president's trips are never of long duration or for very long distances, and he travels so simply as to keep the expenses down to the lowest possible minimum.

Commissions of Pensioners Warner has taken steps to compel the return of thousands of dollars by attorneys who swindled out of the benefit of bounty land warrants.

Mr. Warner decided that these four firms had been guilty of fraudulent and unprofessional conduct, and served notice on them to show cause why they should not be disbanded.
