this morning, only seven cars being re-ported in Of this number three cars were Oregon wethers of pretty good quality, which sold at $5.65. There were two cars of fed western yearlings, which brought $6.55 and two cars of fed ewes at $5.25. All these prices looked just about steady and the market as a whole could hardly be described otherwise than a good steady, netive market. The trade as a whole was without any distinctly new or interesting features and is likely to continue that way for some little time to come, or until re-cents are heavier.  as loday's in the power of resistance shown to what were substantially unfavor-able factors. Demand, indeed, was simont utterly prostrate, but selling orders were in insignificant volume and the vibration of prices was of the feeblest. Prices are not thus sustained in a dult market held up in by artificial forces. The small effect pro-duced by today's adverse influences is a proof of the practically stable equilibrium of the market at present. The development that attracted most at-tention during the day was the engage-ment of $1,100,000 of gold for shipment to Paris was extended by the sngagement of an additional $1,500,000. It was understood that the Bank of England, in order to al-low of a profit being made on the ship-ment to London, was allowing interest on the amount to the shipper while it was in transit. This is the device employed by the Hank of France to attract gold when the marrow or is lacking. So far as is known amoorgst exchange suthorities in New York, this is the first time the Bank of England has been known to make this al-low of the state of the Boer war crisis. The knowledge of the initure of the bid made by London had a disquieting effect and aroused apprehen-sion of some occult cause lying back of so urgent a demand. Rumors were rife of further financial difficulties in connection with the over-extension in Expt. The dis-orders in the south of France induced li-quidation for Paris account in London. Selling of securities here for foreign ac-count was insignificant, as it was indeed for any account, but the sentimental effect of the foreign situation was considerable. OMAHA, June 21, 1907. Wayne, Ind. OMAHA, June 21, 1907. Light rains were scattered throughout the Mississippi and Ohio valloys, within the past twenty-four hours, and ars failing this morning at points in eastern Nebraska, Kansas, Okiahoma and Texas. Temperatures are slightly higher every-where, except in the extreme northwest and on the Pacific slope, where the weather is slightly cooler. Generally cloudy and threatening weather prevails in the central valleys and west, and conditions are favor-able for thunder showers in this vicinity tonight of Saturday, with warmer tonight.
