TELEPHONE COMPANIES WIN OUT

Judges Meet and Fix on Time and Place of Holding Court in the Counties Comprising the Fifteenth District.

By the ruling of Judge Wheeler in district court yesterday that he had not authority to issue a writ of mandamus as asked by the city to compel J. C. Hollenbeck to remove a building from the public streets and to require the Inde pendent and Nebraska Telephone companies to remove their cables and wires in order to permit to do so. Hollenbeck is placed in a position where he apparently cannot help himself. As under the ruling of the court the case cannot come up for hearing before the next term of court which opens August 27, City Sc. licitor Kimball will advise the city coun cil to either close the street or fence off that portion on which the building is, in order to avoid any liability for damages that might result from the present obstruction of the thoroughfare by the

In its petition the city asked that the court order the house moved off the street to its proposed destination to determine the route along which the building should be moved, to order the telephone companies to remove their wires and cables to permit this being done and to determine at whose cost the removal of these wires and cables should be.

Counsel for the telephone companies contended that the court had no right to grant a temporary writ in such a proceeding and that the case would have to follow the regular procedure and come up at the second term of court after it was filed. Judge Wheeler, who heard arguments on this phase of the con troversy Thursday afternoon handed down his ruling on convening court yesterday morning. The ruling' sustained the contention of counsel for the telephone companies.

The ruling of the court came somewhat as a surprise to City Solicitor Kimball, although it has been long conceded by the bar that the mandamus law of Iowa needs amending. Under the ordinance granting franchises to the telephone companies the city has the prerogative to cut the wires itself in such cases where the companies refuse to, and it is possible that the city may exercise this prerogative, although nothing probably will be done before the city council meets at the regular session on July 1.

The supervisors of Pottawattamie county in session yesterday as a drainage board decided that assessments on the Pigeon creek drainage ditch cannot be paid after July 1. The supervisors have granted extensions from time to time in which the assessments might be paid by the owners of land benefited by the ditch in order that the bond issue might be made as small as possible. The time, however, when action on the bond issue must be taken is now approaching and those who want to avoid payment of interest on their assessments will have to settle with the county treasurer before July 1. County Treasurer Mitchell reported to the board that up to date there had been paid $19,460 of the total assessment of about $42,000. The contract called for the completion of the ditch by July 1, but owing to a breakdown in the dredging machinery a short time ago it is expected that the board will be called upon to grant an extension. There is about one mile of the ditch yet to be dug, one stretch being about eight feet in depth. The board thought it best not to draft the resolutions for the bond issue yesterday, but to await until the last session laws are issued, it being feared that otherwise there might be serious errors which would possibly invalidate the issue. The board

It is extremely doubtful, however, as to whether a rise in prices can be arranged. The fourth international congress of delegates of the Master Cotton Spinners' and Manufacturers' associations has just been held here under the most favorable great manufacturing processes and the is-of auspices. Herr Kuffler said that the congress had usual interest, grown in usefulness, as was shown by the presence for the first time of direct representatives of the American planters. The only person they wanted to exclude was the manipulator, who was no good to anybody except himself. The cotton trade and only in fleshlings and a .ransparent was, perhaps, the only trade organized on | gause cloak, a permanent international basis, and their statistics, which had been warmly welcomed by the Washington statistical bureau, led the way for the compilation of trustworthy universal statistics of all raw materials, which was the aim of the newly created institute of agriculture and which would be of first importance in the management of all trades

Reviews Work of Year.

Mr. C. W. Macara, chairman of the international committee, in a review of the work of the year, reported that the Cotton Employers' association in Japan had joined the federation, and that several of, the cotton using countries were forming associations with a view to becoming amalgamated. He pointed out that the half-yearly statistics of cotton in the hands of spinners prepared by the federation now applied to 17,000,000 spindles more than were included the year before, and that by harmonious working arrangements with the census bureau at Washington they had now had actual returns from nearly 100,000,000 spindles. When to this were added trustworthy figures pro-Agriculture as to the supply of raw cotgarded cotton growing the most remark- | halls." able development during the year was in East Indian cotton, the government forecast showing an increase of more than a 1,000,000 bales. Recently a cotton investi- opinion. gation committe from England visited the United States, and in a report on a proposal for the acquisition of land in the southern states for experimental cotton growing, stated that any attempt of the kind on the limited scale to which they were authorized to commit themselves would not be commercially successful. But having in view the great value and importance of an experiment carried out on the lines suggested, the association considered that the subject should be brought before the international congress.

Return on Capital in Industry. Concluding, Mr. Macara said experience had conclusively proved that speaking gen erally the return on capital invested in staple industries throughout the world, if taken over a period of years, showed only tions and ignoring the losses which might have been suffered at other periods. This was most misleading, not only to the investing public, but to the wage earners industrial strife. How much could be accomplished by organization and united action the last three years' working of the International federation had conclusively demonstrated.

Mr. Harvie Jordan, president of the Southern Cotton Planters' association, said that under the impetus of modern thought and education the American cotton planters had awakened to the needs of giving greater intelligence to growing, gathering, ginning, baling, storing, transporting and marketing their great crop, so as to place the staple in the hands of spinners in a better and more acceptable condition than before. The growers of American cotton were being rapidly taught better method of culture and greater care in the selection of seed, so that the staple would be greatly improved in both length and textile strength. He wished to disabuse the minds of spinners of any intention on the part of American cotton growers to organize for the purpose of unduly advancing the price of their cotton to unreasonable figures or to undertake in anywise to so ex ercise the monopoly of cotton production which they now realized they possessed as to jeopardize or injure the steady progress of the spinning industry of the world

Cotton Futures an Evil. Perhaps the greatest recognized evil of the cotton industry was speculation in cotton futures. Their association had been conducting a vigorous campaign against in stitutions called "local cotton exchanges" and "bucket shops," and they had secured prohibitive legislation in the large cotton growing states of North and Bouth Caro lina, Georgia, Alabama and Texas and Arkansas. America would no longer submit to the control of the price of their cotton by a horde of gamblers and speculators, who neither produced, spun nor wove the staple. Mr. Henry Gigson of England submitted a paper prepared by the British Cotton Growing association. He said that notwithstanding the fact that the cotton crop of the United States in 1906 was one of the largest yet grown, the scarcity of good cotton was greater than ever, and cotton much as ever dependent on one part of the world for its main supplies and therefore covery of the fact that a local furnishing now proved that all of the cotton required house had donated a pair of suspenders for the cotton trade of Great Britain could which do not bear the union label to be be grown within the limits of the British given as one of the prizes at the steam empire, but the industry would require engineers' picnic, which will be held at fostering for many years, and it was essen-Union park next Sunday. Lady Godiva Raises Storm. A storm of indignation has been aroused at Coventry by the decision that La Mile shall represent Lady Godiya in the pageant

Residents are appalled at the decision and are declaring that the procession must not be tolerated. Among those interviewed is Canon Beaufort, an influential churchman, who has resided in Coventry for more than forty years.

"The entire thing is unspeakably vulgar," he said. "Nay, I will go farther and say that it is positively demoralizing and that the whole business ought to be stopped." Canon Atkinson, another leading churchman, declared: "I hope that it will yet be killed through

Control of European Market Next. Other important developments besides the purchase of the La Plata company are expected to follow, as purchase negotiations have been in progress for some time past. The Chicago packers expect with the enormous resources at their command they will have little trouble in buying up a majority of the Argentine meat freezing companies. The price paid for the La Plata business is not disclosed, but it can be fairly well estimated from the fact. that the capital of the company, which was registered in Buenos Ayres in 1903, is $2,000,000. Its principal business was the land. A remarkable story of half-pennies being substituted for half-sovereigns was a moderate average profit. Such being the told at the Manchester city police court case, incalculable mischief might be done when Henry Douglas Anderson, who had by giving undue prominence to profits made been employed at the Manchester branch over a short period and under special condi- of the Bank of England and after absconding had been arrested in Canada

On July 21 he absented himself and on August 2 the bank issued twenty-five bags of half-sovereigns to Mesars, Williams, Deacon's bank, and fourteen of them, which had been made up by the prisoner, were found to have been tampered with, half-sovereigns having been replaced by the necessary number of halfpennies to make up the correct weight. The prisoner practically admitted his

WILL DEVELOP NEW COUNTRY Transaustralian Railroad Line Will Open Up Vast Territory to Modern Agriculture.

MELBOURNE, June 22.-(Special.)-One of the most interesting and momentous railway schemes ever put forward-to be bracketed with the Canadian Pacific and the Transsiberian lines-is about to be taken in hand by the commonwealth government. Arrangements have practically been made between the commonwealth government and the South Australian ministry subject to the consent of both parliaments by which South Australia will raise in the London market a loan guaranteed and to be ulitmately taken over by the commonwealth government for the purpose of constructing a railway line across Australia from north to south, which in turn will be connected with western Australia on the west, and Queensland, New South Wales and Victoria on the east.

This will mean the development of the "back blocks" of Australia containing hundreds of millions of acres of some of the finest pastoral country in the world and a considerable area of mineralized country. The total cost of construction of the Transaustralian line will probably not be less than $50,000,000. The branch connecting with Kalgoorlie will probably require not less than $35,000,000, and the eastern states will also come into the market as borrowers in order to carry out their pertion of the program. One of the more inmediate effects of the carrying into execution of this imperial scheme will be that the London-Australian mails will probably travel via Port Arthur to Port Darwin in Northern Australia effecting a saving in time of something like ten days between Adelaide and London.

Prof. Laurent Rather Modest in His Claims of Accomplishment Along These Lines.
