BIG DAY FOR THE CATHOLICS
Laying of Cathedral Cornerstone Will Attract Many Dignitaries.

ARCHBISHOP TO MAKE ADDRESS
Ireland, Keane and Glennon Are Spoken Of, but Decision is Not Made as to the Speaker.

The first Sunday in October is to be notable in the history of the Catholic church of the diocese of Nebraska. This is the day on which the cornerstone of the new cathedral on Fortieth street is to be laid and during the retreat of the priests of the diocese, which ended Friday morning the first steps were taken looking toward the gathering of one of the most notable assemblages Omaha has ever seen. The matter was taken up with the priests of the diocese and arrangements will be made whereby a delegation from every church in the diocese will be represented.

It is the intention of those having the matter in charge to have special trains run from every parish, those on branch lines of road to be timed as to connect with the specials on the main lines, thus bringing to the city at practically one time thousands of Nebraskans who desire to see the unusual ceremony of the laying of the cornerstone of a cathedral.

Archbishop Glennon has been suggested, but so far an announced no selection has been made. It is expected that practically all of the bishops of the church west of the Mississippi river will be present with a number from the states further east.

The occasion of the laying of the cornerstones of a cathedral is one of the most impressive of the rituals of the church and the occasion is one which brings together more people than any other in a diocese. The recent laying of the cornerstones of the cathedral at St. Paul was remarkable for the attendance and it is hoped that the event in Omaha will rival the Minnesota ceremony.

TIP SEEMS TO MISCARRY
Letter Falls into Hands of Police that May Divulge Swindle.

Acting Chief of Police Mostyn was handed some mysterious documents Friday morning, which may lead to the prevention of a neat swindling scheme. One was a letter addressed to box 48, Omaha, and spoke in indefinite terms of bringing some one to Omaha from Milford, Ia., in order to work "the deal" on him. It was signed Orle Fields. The second was also to box 48 and it was a request that the other letter be sent back to Bert Osborn of Arnold Park, Ia., as it had been sent by mistake.

Captain Mostyn says Bert Osborn is a professional foot racer, if they are not mistaken in the man, and Fields was probably writing to him or to an Omaha pal in a scheme to bring some country man into the city and work the old, old foot race game on him, in which the victim loses something of scientific running and pays very high for it.

PURE FOOD AND PICNIC BOX
Good Wishes and Indigestible Prover-der Are Packed Together.

BETTER TREATMENT FOR KIDS
Mrs. Provident Would Not Stint the Children, but Wants a Well Balanced Ration Served to Them.

Some of the churches and Sunday schools spent a part of Wednesday and a bit of Thursday morning putting up picnic boxes for 400 children, who went over to Manawa picnicking. Probably more than half 400 were interested in getting ready those lunches and they put all sorts of good things into them for the children from the City Mission, the Mitchell chapel the Jewish chapel and the Catholics. In some of the boxes were bunches of roses on top of the food; some had candy and one reporter that a silver quarter was snugly tucked in one corner.

And the good thoughts that were put in with the food and the happy thought in the children's minds as they ate lunches in the best digestible possible, especially as they were assisted by a large quantity of digestors' oxygen and muscular exercise.

As a result it was a pleasure to see the energy evolved in the bodies of those 400 children, and the happiness consequent upon an agreeable use of that energy. To have a long ride, and a chance to do just what they wanted to from 10 o'clock in the morning until 5 o'clock in the afternoon in a pretty place out of doors; to have a roller coaster and a tiny scenic railway and a merry-go-round at your disposal and a chance to have races and to play a game of ten-ten, such a blissful state of affairs would digest tanks, nearly.

Rations Not Well Balanced.
But an investigation of the daintily prepared appetizing foods showed that there was not a single balanced food ration among them; probably if there had been such a box it would have been returned with a disdainful repudiation of it, both by the would-be eater and the distributor. For the fact is, we are learning to feed animals so as to make great, strong, healthy bodies for them, but the whole world knows nothing, almost, about building strong, healthy bodies for human beings. So in these boxes there were sandwiches, a mixture generally of bread, butter and meat, cheese or nuts, cake, pie, candy, hard-boiled eggs, cookies, crackers and fruit of all kinds—much of it bananas. With the exception of the help potatoes and cheese and the small amount of body building food that can be gotten from white flour in the bread and cake, the food was almost entirely heat and energy-producing. Result: A small amount of food to build the bodies of 400 growing children, and a very large amount of food that will make heat and energy to keep that body engine up to a high degree of motion and action. So, the churches, which teach human beings to live an energetic, but calm, controlled, moderate life of the spirit, were unwittingly giving to a class of children who need all the help possible to overcome heated, temperamental lives, the food that would put too much fuel into their bodies for the material contained in the body to hold and work the heat, and thus helping them to an uncontrolled, heated manifestation of life.

Children Deserve Better.
"But children can digest anything," people say. So they give them all sorts of wrong stuff to build up these beautiful bodies, and when, after a while, the children have all sorts of diseases that show that the body was built wrong, they never think that they have put wrong material into it and the result shows, as it would if the should build a house with some good brick and wood and some that was not good. "Know ye not that your body is the temple of the Holy Ghost?" A temple is a house. We build our houses very carefully, but our bodies we put together anyway.

And American citizens have more heat and energy producing food than any other nation, and we are producing a class of human beings the most energetic, but also with the bodies subject to the class of diseases that come from the bodies not built strong enough to use the heat and energy this food produces.

If any one who studies how to build such bodies had seen the entrance of the coaster roller and seen the throng of children struggle and rush and claw each other to be first, their spindling legs and arms flying in every direction, and their faces contorted with the desire to "get there," and had noted that the only well developed children were of foreign blood in the first generation in America, children whose parents had eaten simple, body building foods in their own land, and still gave them to their children, they would have put down a few facts for future work.

Berries in Their Season.
Our own home grown strawberries are nearly gone, and raspberries and blackberries are here. Mrs. Provident puts some raspberries into her basket and wishes as she does so that she could pick them from the bushes herself and have some delicate branches of the leaves to garnish the dish in which she serves them; perhaps, also, she might find a bunch or two of related blossoms to put with her leaves. She has always been accustomed to making her dishes look well, as well as taste good, and her family always having been accustomed to it, it would not surprise her to digestion through the eye. She knows, too, the value of proper preparation of fruit, and as a result her family can digest them well.

"The small, acid berries and fruits should be washed lightly, strawberries before they are hulled, as well as any kind of fruit that is bought with the hulls or stems on; put them in a strainer and run water through them gently, drain and then pick over quickly. Chill them a little, but not very cold, as that makes them more acid, heat and sunshine developing the sugar. Sweet fruits can be made quite cool; peaches moderately so."

She knows, too, that much acid in fruit is nature's way of telling us that it is not good for food, and that, however, much sugar may be put on it our digestive organs will still have to make way with the original amount of acid, and of the sugar too, so she looks for ripe, sun sweetened fruit and teaches her children to use but little sugar, so she saves on the sugar and puts it into the natural sugar of the fruit, which is more easily digested, as well as permitting the acid to be properly used by the digestive organs. She uses the berries mostly as they are, and does not make many desserts of the berries that come after the strawberry. She serves with the berries a cracker or bit of bread or wafer with little sugar in that, that the sweetness of the fruit may be distinctive. At the meal at which fruit is served very little if any meat is used.

Mushrooms as a Flavor.
The season has been so wet lately that mushrooms have grown abundantly. Mrs. Provident knows that the usual idea that mushrooms take the place of meat and are very nutritious is erroneous, as they are largely water, are dense and difficult of digestion, and should therefore be used more as a pleasant food flavor, and in small quantities, but so used they are pleasant to the taste. So she puts in a few "meadow mushrooms."

Creamed Mushroom on Toast—As the mushrooms are quite tender they are not peeled, simply washed carefully, gill sides down, the stems cut off, chopped fine and put in a couple of tablespoons of hot butter and cooked for five minutes, being careful not to brown the butter too much; then the remainder of the mushrooms are put in and cooked about ten minutes; then the mushrooms are removed and a rounding tablespoon of flour is stirred into the butter and cooked until it stops frothing, when a cup of thin cream is added and cooked until well thickened, the mushrooms are returned to the sauce and heated. Round of bread are toasted, arranged on a heated dish, the mushrooms arranged on the top and the sauce poured over.

Mushrooms Under a Bell—Wash and drain sufficient mushrooms, cut out the stems and peel if very tough; toast rounds of bread, arrange in a granite or earthen baking dish, or in the plates for the "individuals," put three or four mushrooms on each round, pour over them, basing carefully, a couple of tablespoons, rounded, of melted butter, pepper and salt, and pour round the toast a half cup of cream. Cover with the glass bell or bells if they are "individuals," put in a large dripping pan in which is a little hot water and cook in a hot oven twenty minutes or half an hour. Serve without removing the glass covers, as they hold the aroma.

BERRIES IN FULL MUSTER
Season's Variety is Represented, but Prices Hold Up Well.

LOCAL MARKET ON VEGETABLES
Everything that Might Be Expected

... this season is offered, with some novelties from California.

The season's offering in berries is complete so far as variety is concerned, but the newer things are high priced, of course. Black and red raspberries and currants have come in during the week, and while they are not all that may be expected a little later, they are fairly good for the first. The currants are still small and a little green and sell for 15 cents a quart box, or two boxes for 25 cents. Both the red and black raspberries sell for 10 cents a "pint" box, that is literally of traditional "raspberry measure." Gooseberries are larger and riper and sell for 15 cents a quart box. Home grown cherries of fine quality are plentiful at 15 cents a quart box, 30 cents a small basket, or $2.50 a crate. Strawberries range from 15 to 25 cents a quart box, but it is safe to investigate the boxes to the bottom.

A few stalks of celery were the novelty of Friday morning's market and sold at novelty prices. Spinach has grown too rank to be desirable and the smaller and more tender sort is very scarce. It sells for 5 cents a peck. Mustard greens are in, and sell for 15 cents a peck. New peas have gotten down to 5 cents a quart and the pods are well filled. Wax and string beans are 10 cents a quart. Home grown beets are here in time for the Fourth of July and are tender and of good size. Small cucumber pickles have come in also, and sell for 5 cents each. They are too small for slicing and too large to bottle, but just right for dill or sweet pickles. Cabbage in 5 cents a pound. Home-grown lettuce is all that could be desired, the round lettuce selling for 5 cents a head and the leaf, two heads for 5 cents.

The California fruit promised came according to schedule. Apricots and blue plums sell for 25 cents a basket of three dozen each. Peaches are 25 cents a dozen and cherries 40 cents a pound. Florida pineapples are better than they have been and sell from 10 to 20 cents each.

Watermelons have gone down to 50 cents each and are of good size and quality. Cantaloupes sell from 10 to 20 cents each.

"Fresh" eggs are selling from 15 to 25 cents a dozen, but the safest for general use are about 15 cents a dozen, the higher priced eggs being "fancy."

Creamery butter still holds at 25 cents a package and other butters sell from 20 to 24 and 25 cents a pound, the country and dairy butters equaling the package creamery in quality.
