TEXTILE INDUSTRY'S GROWTH

Census Reveals This to Be Branch in Which Great Advancement Was Made. WASHINGTON, July 6.—Bulletin 74, just published by the Bureau of the Census, presents the statistics of textiles at the census of manufactures of 1905. Reports on cotton manufactures; hosiery and knit goods; wool manufactures; flax, hemp, and jute products; and dyeing and finishing textiles were prepared by Edward Stanwood, expert special agent; and a report on silk manufactures, by Franklin Allen, expert special agent.

tributed as follows: Cotton goods, 1,977; cotton small wares, 77; hosiery and knit goods, 1,977; wool manufactures, 1,231; silk and silk goods, 621; flax, hemp, and jute products, 131; dyeing and finishing textiles, 360. The total number of establishments shows a net increase of 21 since the last census. The salaried officials, clerks, etc., employed numbered 24,118, and the average number of wage earners was 78,233. Salaries and wages paid were $2,464,599 and $28,987,271, respectively. The cotton industry is concentrated for the most part in southern New England, and in the state of Pennsylvania, North Carolina, South Carolina, and Georgia; the wool industry and knit goods in southern New England, New York, and Pennsylvania; and the silk manufacture in Pennsylvania, New Jersey, New York, and Connecticut. The United States ranks second in cotton manufactures, as measured by the number of cotton spindles; either third or fourth in wool manufactures; and, in silk manufacture, second to none of the countries for which the statistics of raw silk consumption are available as a standard for determining the magnitude of their silk manufacture. The hosiery and knit goods industry in this country is one of the most rapidly growing branches of the textile industry and has now become one of its most important branches. The number of mills was 1,079 in 1905, as compared with 921 in 1900; the capital invested, $108,963,331; the average number of wage earners, 166,715; wages, $1,238,621; the cost of materials used, $78,298,752; and the value of products, $138,538,125. There have been increases since 1900 as follows: Capital, 53 per cent; wage earners, 24 per cent; wages, 23 per cent; cost of materials used, 50 per cent; and value of products, 48 per cent. More than three-fifths of the total number of establishments are still located in the five middle states, 132 in the New England states, 113 in the southern states, and 181 in the western states. So far as the industry has developed in the south and west the manufacture is almost exclusively of vestery. There were 236 silk mills in 1905, 233 per cent more than in 1900, and their capital was $108,963,331, an increase of 81 per cent.

The average number of wage earners employed, 75,000, 217 per cent more than in 1900, and $2,707,943, 214 per cent more than in 1900. The cost of materials used was $78,298,752, and the value of products, $138,538,125. Exclusive of duplications, the cost of materials was $59,460,467 in 1905 and $59,268,398 in 1900, and the net value of products, $118,251,269 in 1905 and $12,232 in 1900. There were in all only 132 establishments reporting flax, hemp, and jute products, a decrease of eight since 1900. The establishments were distributed as follows: Cordage and twine, 197; jute and jute goods, 16; linen manufacture, 15. Capital increased from $1,291,722 in 1900 to $4,423,231; the average number of wage earners, from 20,908 to 24,508; wages, from $4,331,741 to $4,546,788; cost of materials, from $2,197,336 to $4,890,529; and the value of products, from $47,901,647 to $62,225,228. Many happy, well-dressed children Monday for the less. Discount sale starts Monday morning. Benson & Thorne, 1015 Douglas.

LETTER TO POPE PIUS

(Continued from First Page.) upon us the most shameful titles and accuse us of the most loathsome infamies in spite of the clerical dress which many of us wear and far from unworshipful. The whole of Italy appears to be suffering from a strange and almost superstitious outbreak of fury against electric trams and the people omit no occasion for causing accidents in order to have a pretext for attacking the cars and their conductors. The other day at Naples one of these scenes nearly led to a revolutionary riot and a quasi-homicidal fight over two corpses, the victim of a coachman who wished to get ahead of an electric tram. In a single moment more than 60 people, the greater number of them women, as called the tram, throwing petroleum over them, setting them on fire, the policemen and soldiers being kept off with sticks, knives and stones. Meanwhile another army of rioters tried to seize the bodies of the two victims and carry them through the streets so as to rouse the fury of the population. After a five hours' fight the police and two squadrons of cavalry succeeded in removing the bodies in a hearse. The present Italian parliament, which brought Signor Giolitti into office and except for a short interval has maintained him in power ever since, was elected towards the end of 1904 its chief mandate from the country, being the defense of the monarchy and constitution against the revolutionary action of the subversive parties in the state. The measure of its fulfillment of that mandate is therefore the test by which the Giolitti administration will be finally judged; and unless a change for the better is soon effected it is doubtful whether the verdict will be a favorable one. Excesses Worked Own Cure. The government can hardly take the credit to itself for the non-recurrence of the rioting which for a few days paralyzed the life of the great northern cities three years ago and profoundly stirred the conscience of the whole country. These excesses worked their own cure and the industrious and law-abiding population of Italy has itself prevented their repetition. Nor has the disintegration of the socialist and republican parties in Parliament been due to Signor Giolitti's statesmanship, but rather to their own internal dissensions. These dissensions among the enemies of the throne should have made the task of the ministry more easy and helped greatly to restore confidence in constitutional government. Nevertheless whatever progress has been made in this direction has undoubtedly been due in a large measure to the king himself. The country will not soon forget the unselfish devotion he displayed at Calabria and at Vesuvius, nor is it blind to his untiring industry in its service and his sympathy with all of its aspirations as well as sorrows. But his efforts have met with little assistance from the government. When you have anything to say—send advertisement in The Bee—What, 4th column.
