(From a Staff Correspondent.) LINCOLN, July 7 .- (Special.)-The plan adopted by the State Board of Purchase and Supplies to buy supplies for the state institutions from dealers having the lowest bid on the individual items, rather than sticking to the old plan of giving the bidder with the lowest total the entire conare down this morning in all directions tract for an institution, has proven entirely satisfactory to the state board at least. At the recent letting more than a few thousand dollars was saved. While it is impossible at this time to figure just what amount was saved, reference to a few items shows that the saving was a large sum. On one item alone there was a difference eral buildings. The plaining mill, bruss of was only 1800. This was for apricots for a state institution. The highest bid was $600 and the lowest $202. The total bids made by these two firms were very close together. On twenty-five items the difference was from $2 to $3, and on fifty items, in some instances, the difference was $15

Each member of the board held a bid. and item by item the bids were read and checked, the lowest getting the contract. The meeting was open and numerous contractors and bidders were present, and these made no complaint of the way the board has begun to do business. Some of the bidders not present object strenuously to this method of procedure, and as a resuit there are a few threats to stop bidding in the future. Davis' Name to Be Restored.

Inations they can believe they are may be a good time at a summer resort.

When you go out on a dark plazza and a girl jumps about nine feet away from a fellow there, it's a sign she thinks you won't suspect anything.—New York Press.

It really begins to look as though the felly of the early '60s, when some mistaken. overzealous patriot mutilated the government bridge across Cabin John creek, is to be corrected. When that bridge, which carries the watermain from the falls of the Potomac to Washington, was being constructed Jefferson Davis was secretary of war. The fact that he held that portfolio and was in consequence the commanding officer of the United States Army Engineers was duly recorded in the stone which was used for the record. But subsequently some one had the name of Jefferson Davis effaced after he went with his tha," Bright Water and Happy Lands; state into the confederacy. For years desultory efforts have been made to have the name of Davis restored. The fact that there is a vacant line in the record always ing on the American continent. All attracts attention and every visitor to the reached at special low round trip fares via bridge learns very quickly what that vacant line means. He is likely to remember Davis' name in connection with the structure far more clearly than he would if that name had been allowed to remain. But in any event Davis was the secretary of war during the construction of the bridge and the record should be complete or it should be eliminated entirely.

Recently the matter has been called forcibly to the attention of the president and it is believed that as soon as he returns to his duties in Washington he will take steps to have the name restored. The matter appears to be purely an executive function and if the president finds this to be the case he will simply direct that the stone be recut, without going to congress for authority.

President Buchanan and the Pass. An interesting contribution to free pass literature has just been found in the archives of the Pennsylvania railroad com-It is a letter from President Buchanan returning a railroad pass to the Northern Central company, a corporation absorbed by the Pennsylvania company.

The letter reads:

WASHINGTON, 24 March, 1889.

Dear Sir: I return the free ticket which Mr. Gittings has directed to be forwarded to me for the Northern Central railroad, with as many thanks for his kindness as though I had accepted it. It has been the practice of my life not to travel free on any railroad, being opposed to the whole system of granting such privileges to individuals not connected with these reads. Yours very respectfully.
