NEW KIMONO BATHING ROBES

Starting Colors and Designs to Be Worn at European Watering Places.

Modish European bathing costumes are to be built kimono fashion this year, according to a Berlin authority; that is, of course, the tunic part of them. The shape is not good for swimming in, but it is exceedingly fetching on the strand. The great flowing sleeves and loose, graceful lines of the garment contribute enormously to the picture which the wearer makes when seen from inland with a background of sea and sky. The favorite material is to be shantung silk and the color combinations are to be emphatic. Thus one design shows a robe of cream tinted silk embroidered with white water lilies, a third is to be of dull blue with dark green seagrasses in applique as a border.

The hat to be worn with them is to be of straw, wide brimmed and harmonizing in color. It is to be tied under the chin with broad silk ribbons.

SUMMER FROCKS SILK LINED

New Materials Substituted for White Muslins and Blue Ribbons.

"Where are the white muslins and blue ribbons?" sighed a mere man as he glanced about the main room of one of the Fifth avenue restaurants a few evenings ago.

When the lingerie frocks were pointed out to him, by way of substitute, he shook his head and said:

"No; the white muslin and blue ribbon girls are all shut up in old daguerrotypes," he said, mournfully. "These summer dresses are all silk lined."

And he was very nearly right. Our simplicity, even in summer, is of the sophisticated kind and the modish summer frock is likely to be a thing more complicated than one would imagine at first glance.

Heavy tulle or net, silk muslin, chiffon, marquisette and a multitude of lovely sheer silken stuffs are first favorites for dressy summer frocks, though fine lingerie stuffs and laces lavishly embroidered and inset with lace are beloved by those who can afford to wear them. A smart lingerie frock is a more expensive thing than one of some silken tissue; for, though the latter must have its silk lining and veiling, etc., it may perhaps be simply trimmed, while the lingerie frock in order to have distinction at all today must be loaded with hand work.

The princess lines are still the preferred lines for the handsome lingerie frock.

The writer of a recent novel concerning English smart society finds a great deal to say about table manners, or rather the lack of them. Very much the same view as to the usefulness of table manners as they were understood formerly seems to prevail in certain sets in New York today.

"Who would ever suppose that it was considered smart to keep your elbows on the table?" asked a young girl who is to be introduced to society next year and has been allowed to go to one or two dinners in the city.

"It is not to be done and so much to eat all the time?"

"After lunch one has to hurry for bridge. Then there's always something with tea, and supper comes soon after dinner. So if we all sat around and ate slowly in the old-fashioned way we'd never have time to do anything."

Whatever the cause may be, there are many things tolerated at the table nowadays which would not have been excused a score of years ago. Some of those acts observed at Sherry's are noticeable in many other places.

A scallap of mushrooms.

Select mushrooms of medium and uniform size. Skin them without cutting. Wash them. Lay enough to cover the bottom of the dish, stems upmost, in a pudding dish. Dust with salt and pepper and pour into the gills a little melted butter. Then strew lightly with fine cracker crumbs and arrange a second layer upon the first. Season and butter, cover with crumb, the crumbs in cream, dot with butter and bake, covered, for twenty minutes, and brown very delicately. Serve at once. There is no more delicious preparation of mushrooms than this.

Gift for the Traveler.

A steamer basket in the shape of an English hand satchel in ecru and green, and tied with a flaring wide red silk ribbon bow, is an attractive present. The satchel is packed with appropriate delicacies such as stuffed dates, Wiesbaden prunes, figs in a jar, crystallized ginger, guava jelly, plasmom crackers, Philippine crackers, cream peppermints, chocolates and bonbons, hard candies and eating chocolate. The price of such a basket, filled, is $5.

Pineapple Jam.

Five pounds of shredded pineapple, three lemons or three large ripe tomatoes. Slice the lemons very thin. Cover them with sugar and let them stand twenty-four hours. Add the pineapple and boil steadily until the fruit is soft and a little placed on a cold plate proves to be firm and smooth.

Quick Shine Shoe Polish.

Contains no tartronic or acids, gives a satin finish, will not rub off on the clothing.

LATEST MOVE OF THE NAVY

Trip Intended as Object Lesson to World.

JINGO TALK FROM JAPS

Admiral Sakamoto Says American Crews Will Desert if Called Upon to Fight Japan—Gossip from Europe.

OSTER BAY, July 8.—The significance of Rear Admiral Brownson's addition to the somewhat meagre information which has come from President Roosevelt regarding the contemplated two-ocean maneuver of the United States fleet is regarded as having been overlooked in the comment, expert and otherwise, which has been indulged in on both continents. Admiral Brownson came to Oyster Bay Friday to take lunch with the president, professing entire ignorance of the maneuver plans.

When he left Sagamore Hill to take the train for Washington the admiral had one thought which he wished to emphasize—that it was desirable and important to demonstrate to the world how quickly the American navy could transfer its fighting strength from one ocean to the other. This was distinctly an addition to the president's previous statements, issued through Secretary Loeb, wherein the object of the maneuver was said to be an exercise movement for the benefit of the navy, to perfect its training in fleet exercises on an extended scale, the purpose and effect of the plan being for the benefit of the navy alone. What came from President Roosevelt through Admiral Brownson is decidedly different and of much broader design. President Roosevelt has been consistent in advocating a large navy as the surest guarantee of peace between the United States and all foreign powers.

Heretofore a large navy has been recommended solely from the point of view of the number of ships, their tonnage, armor, guns and fighting capacity. With this idea the American navy has grown steadily, ship by ship.

To the somewhat uninteresting array of ships and tonnage President Roosevelt now proposes to give the world a somewhat startling demonstration of what the American navy is capable of doing to protect either of both of the extended shores of the United States. As Admiral Brownson said, "There is no time like the present for such a demonstration," a time when the United States is at perfect peace with every nation.

In everything that has come from the president regarding the movement, it has been indicated that the fleet, wherever it may go, is to be brought back to the Atlantic, and that the return is to be as great a demonstration of speed as the outward journey.

While it is asserted with all possible emphasis that there is no foundation for apprehension of trouble, immediate or future, between the United States and Japan, the proposed demonstration is regarded as looked upon in no other light than that President Roosevelt intends to use the American navy for exactly that purpose for which he has advocated its augmentation, a guarantee of international peace.

It was stated here today that Ambassador Grier, in his last report to the president, said that the latter part of the present week, will not be able to confer with the president before going to his new post in Tokyo. The ambassador finds it necessary to devote some time to his personal affairs in Michigan, and will not find it convenient to return to his post in Tokyo.

It was remarked that there was no occasion for a conference between the president and Ambassador O'Brien, other than the formality of official etiquette.

Talk of Tension Abroad.

LONDON, July 8.—The present tension between the United States and Japan is regarded as the keenest interest among all the European diplomats. None of them, however, believe that it will reach the stage of warfare, because the heavy burden of debt Japan is carrying as a result of its failure to obtain indemnity from Russia forbids it embarking on a similar costly policy in the next decade. It is recognized nevertheless that the United States is acquiring the enmity of Japan as one of its national assets, which may prove a handicap in the event of trouble with any other power.

Great Britain finds itself in an embarrassing position also, because it is obliged to stand between its colonies and the matter of anti-Japanese laws. Transvaal has just put into operation a law regulating the entry of Asiatics, which applies to Indian subjects as well as to the Japanese and the Chinese, and which compels them to submit to an examination and registry with thumb prints, like criminals, which is exceedingly irritating to them. Australia threatens legislation on the same lines.

Alfred Deakin, the Australian premier, during his recent visit to England, repeatedly said in his speeches that the chief nations of the world should deal with the menace of the inflow of Japanese labor.

Opinion at The Hague.

THE HAGUE, July 8.—The sentiment of the delegates to the peace conference regarding the question that has arisen between the United States and Japan, is that the situation is unfortunate for both countries in the original incident causing tension between the two countries is disproportionate to the grave results which may follow. The question the delegates think, is likely to create a hostile atmosphere, endangering their reciprocal commerce, to which the former friendly relations have opened vast fields. Although the sending of a fleet by the United States to the Pacific coast is generally interpreted as a threat, it is generally admitted here that such action may give rise to dangerous popular excitement which the administration at Washington might not be able to control.

The Spanish representatives say that the United States has found a hard nut to crack. The Russians remark that the negotiations which the United States will be between Japan and the United States is approaching realization. The English,

CONCERNING TABLE MANNERS

Leaning on One's Elbow and Sipping Sauce with Bread Permissible.

"Will you look at that woman over there?" exclaimed a pretty girl with a trace of southern accent. "How in the world did she get into Sherry's?"

The eyes of the woman she indicated were fixed intently upon the girl. With the grace of a roll she was chasing all over it the last trace of sauce Bernaise it contained.

She did it with the skill of an expert. The bread deftly sopped up every drop of the sauce. Then she swiftly made a comprehensive sweep of the plate, leaving it as dry as a bone, and deposited the bread in her mouth.

All this time her thoughts were fixed on what she was doing. When she had polished the plate and landed the bread in her mouth she looked up for the first time. As her eyes moved from table to table she greeted some persons who had just come in.

"There's Mary Parsons," she started to say to a friend with her.

This person must have had a trained understanding, for the bit of roll still filled the mouth to which it had carried the sauce Bernaise and the result of conversation was a string of stifled, choking, incoherent, incomprehensible to anybody not accustomed to them.

"Why, I never saw such table manners in my life!" commented again the soft southern voice. "Who in the world do you suppose she can be?"

That question proclaimed how much of a stranger the speaker was in New York. The woman who had attracted the attention is very well known indeed, and most of the many persons to who she was bowing appeared to be flattered by the attention, or at least it was very welcome to them.

The writer of a recent novel concerning English smart society finds a great deal to say about table manners, or rather the lack of them. Very much the same view as to the usefulness of table manners as they were understood formerly seems to prevail in certain sets in New York today.

French and Japanese delegates believe that both governments at Washington and at Tokyo sincerely wish to reach an understanding and will not be influenced by jingoism.

Some of the Germans here are of the opinion that the situation may lead to an American-German entente, which, while preventing the isolation of Germany, would be the strongest compact against British supremacy that could be made.

Germany Expects War.

BERLIN, July 7.—The conviction of an ultimate conflict between Japan and the United States appears to be widespread in Germany. It is one of the subjects certain to be referred to wherever diplomats and military and naval officials and others accustomed to follow international politics meet. The newspapers agree that president Roosevelt is earnestly trying to satisfy the Japanese requests. They agree also that Japan asks nothing unreasonable. They recognize that the difficulty lies in the question of race, the economic antagonism of California against the Japanese, and the possibility of federal coercion. It is believed by many that the group of ruling statesmen in Japan are preparing to fight the United States for the mastery of the Pacific, regardless of the San Francisco incidents.

The strategists of the admiralty regard a naval war between Japan and the United States as the most interesting problem of the day. Careful studies that have been worked out are unfavorable to the United States because the American fleet, although of greater power than that of Japan, would have to seek a fight in Japan's home waters.

Jingo Talk from Admiral.

TOKIO, July 7.—The Hochi this morning prints an interview with Admiral Sakamoto, in which the admiral is quoted as follows:

"Should hostilities break out between Japan and America, the result would be indecisive, owing to a want of proper bases of operations. Such bases as exist are too distant for practical purposes. Even the nearest bases, namely, the Pescadores, Cavite and Manila, are at a distance of 60 miles from one another. Even if the Washington government should decide on a war, it is doubtful if the Americans serving in the navy are sufficiently patriotic to fight."

"American naval officers are brilliant figures at balls and social gatherings, but they are very deficient in professional training and practice. It is too much to expect a burning patriotism in the American naval service in case of war with Japan. It is very likely that most of the crews would desert and leave their ships."

COREANS CALL ON AMERICANS

Choate and Porter Refuse to Receive Delegates from the Hermit Kingdom.

THE HAGUE, July 8.—The Korean delegation, which is seeking recognition in the peace conference, again called on Joseph H. Choate and General Horace Porter today, but they were not received, the representatives of the United States being engaged in work on arbitration propositions.

Barthold is also interested with the task of presenting the Dutch peace flag sent by the arbitration and peace congress held in New York in April last, to the Dutch peace parliamentary group, comprising members of 150.

The speech of Andrew Carnegie at St. Andrews has been translated into all languages and sent to the various delegates to the peace conference. The preface of the French edition has been written by Baron D'Estournelles de Constant, the president of the conference.

There will be no sitting of the conference until Tuesday, the delegates meanwhile showing some uneasiness regarding the practical results of the conference.

SCHMITZ DEMANDS SALARY

Auditor Will Pay No Warrants Unless Signed by Both Schmitz and Gallagher.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 8.—Mayor Schmitz yesterday sent a formal demand upon Auditor Horton for his full salary for the month of June and for the $300 contingent fund allowed the mayor's office for July. The letter contained a warning against paying these or any other sum upon the order of James L. Gallagher, the acting mayor. The auditor was notified that, with his bondsmen, would be held responsible. Auditor Horton has decided that his only safe course is to refuse to pass mayoral demands unless they bear the signatures of both Schmitz and Gallagher.

District Attorney Langdon has decided, it is said, to advocate the selection of W. J. Lebrton, to succeed Eugene Schmitz as soon as the latter is sentenced by Judge Dunne. Mr. Lebrton is a banker and philanthropist. He has been active in previous nonpartisan political movements.

Married Women

Every woman covets a shapely, pretty figure, and many of them deplore the loss of their girlish forms after marriage. The bearing of children is often destructive to the mother's shapeliness. All of this can be avoided, however, by the use of Mother's Friend before baby comes, as this great liniment always prepares the body for the strain upon it, and preserves the symmetry of her form. Mother's Friend overcomes all the danger of child-birth, and carries the expectant mother safely through this critical period without pain. It is woman's greatest blessing. Thousands gratefully tell of the benefit and relief derived from the use of this wonderful remedy. Sold by all druggists at $1.00 per bottle. Our little book, telling all about this liniment, will be sent free.
