They found the county roads considerably damaged by the recent heavy rains.

Shy Juror Received Damages—In support of the motion of the Union Pacific railroad for a new trial in the suit in which Elizabeth Wally got judgment for $5,000 for the death of her husband, John Wally, a street car motorman, an affidavit has been filed by B. Carroll, one of the jurors in the Wally case, received from the Northwestern $2,000 for his own injuries, $5,000 for the death of his wife and $2,000 for the death of his son in a railroad wreck at Logan, Ia. The attorneys for the Union Pacific contend that having been a claimant against a railroad at one time himself, Carroll was incompetent to serve as a juror in the Wally case.

Max Weller, Where Are You?—The Omaha postoffice is in receipt of a letter from Hermskell, Germany, asking information of the whereabouts of Max Weller, 20 years of age, a horse dealer by occupation. The letter of inquiry is addressed to the postmaster of Evanston, Omaha, and is written by Law Weller of Hermskell, Prussia, Germany. A letter was received from Max Weller about two months ago by his relatives in Germany and they make it out that it came from Evanston, Omaha. The letter has been forwarded to the postmaster at Evanston, Wyo., as it is possible that the two localities have become confused in the minds of Weller's German friends.

Crops Fine in Platte Valley—J. O. Moore returned from an extended trip through the Platte valley at the west end of Grand Island. Of the crop conditions out there he says: "The corn looks green and thrifty, but, of course, very late. In the vicinity of Silver Creek, down in the bottom lands, it has been pretty wet and the farmers have not had the chance to get into it. The weeds have got a big start, and have completely taken some of the fields. Wheat in this locality will do twenty-five bushels to the acre. In the high lands the crop conditions are much better, but still the lateness of the corn is very noticeable, and at the best there will be a lot of only two-thirds matured corn, unless the fall season should be more than ordinarily favorable for ripening before frost comes.

Fight Results in Big Damage Suit—Damage suits aggregating $15,000 have grown out of a pitched battle of words and fists between the Sigal family and the Winthrop family, who reside in the same neighborhood in the east end of town. Wednesday morning Etta Sigal, a minor, through her father, Wolf Sigal, began suit against Fannie and Max Winthrop, asking judgment for $5,000 against each of them for alleged slander. The plaintiff is 17 years of age, says the petition and of good character and the words uttered by Mr. and Mrs. Winthrop July 9, in the presence of a crowd, tending to bring her into public reproach and to impair her good standing in the community. As an outcome of the same affair, Mrs. Winthrop a few days ago began suit against Wolf Sigal for $5,000 for injuries she says she suffered in an alleged assault upon her by Sigal.

TICKET BROKERS ARE CITED

Four Scalpers Charged with Contempt of Federal Court.

PERMANENT INJUNCTION BROKEN Allegation of Ticket Selling Made Before Judge W. H. Munger by the Northwestern and Rock Island Railways.

Philip H. Philbin, Carl A. Larson, David Johnson and Ed Murphy, ticket brokers of Omaha, have been cited to appear before Judge W. H. Munger to show cause why they should not be committed for contempt of court for violation of an injunction issued by the United States circuit court August 12, 1906. The date for hearing is set for September 2.

The complaints are two in number and are filed by the Chicago & Northwestern Railway company against all the ticket brokers of Omaha and by the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific Railway company against the same defendants. The suit is brought for alleged violation of the injunction issued August 12, 1906, by Judge W. H. Munger against the several defendants barring them from engaging in the sale of what is known as scalpers' or cut rate railway tickets, particularly such as are known as signed or limited and excursion or special rate tickets.

In the Chicago & Northwestern case the complaint is based upon the affidavit of H. A. Dutton, who on May 24, 1907, went to the office of Larson & Johnson, ticket brokers at 1415 Farnam street, and bought a cut rate ticket to Chicago for $10. This ticket was part of a round trip ticket from Chicago to St. Louis, Mo., and was signed by W. H. Robinson, Dutton in his affidavit states he was told it was a signed ticket, but he would have no trouble, the signature being an easy one to imitate and the sellers would guarantee he should have no trouble, and could go out of the city without any further trouble. Dutton further says he was instructed to go to another broker, P. H. Philbin, and buy a ticket for $10 and paid for it by Dutton. The ticket was a home-seekers' ticket issued to Robinson May 7 from Chicago. Notwithstanding the guaranty made him by the brokers, Dutton alleges he had lots of trouble and had to pay the regular fare. In this case Philip H. Philbin, Carl A. Larson, David Johnson are made special defendants and will have to answer for contempt.

Case of the Rock Island. The affidavit in the Rock Island case is made by Charles Phillips, who alleges that on December 1, 1906, he went to the office of Philip H. Philbin, and asked for and bought a ticket to Chicago, paying therefor $15.00 and was to receive a rebate of $6 from Lyons Brokerage ticket office in Chicago. Phillips says that he paid to the person in charge of Philip H. Philbin's office in Omaha the sum of $15.00 for the ticket, and that this person then wanted Phillips to go to the city ticket office of the Rock Island company in Omaha and purchase a round trip ticket from Omaha to Chicago, the ticket to cost $15.00. The party in Philbin's office put up the money wherewith to buy the round trip ticket. Phillips was advised, however, when signing the ticket, to sign it as "C. Phillips," which he did. He returned to Philbin's office and turned this round trip ticket over to the party to whom he had made the agreement. This party then returned to Phillips a sealed envelope, which he opened and found that it contained a check on the Lyons Ticket Office, 220 South Clark street, Chicago, together with an enclosure stating to Phillips that the envelope contained the rebate order for the $6 on the regular ticket. Phillips says further that on December 5, 1906, he pointed out to J. N. Neely, the person who was in charge of the Philbin office, and with whom Phillips had the negotiations, and he was informed by Neely that this person was Ed Murphy, one of the defendants in this action.

The round trip ticket and the sealed envelope are made a part of the exhibits in this particular case. The Robinson ticket is made a part of the exhibit in the Northwestern case.

ANDREW J. KENDRICK BURIED Former Omaha Newspaper Man Who Shoots Himself at Rest at Fort Smith.

Andrew Jackson Kendrick, who shot himself in New York and died a day or two later, was buried at the Fort Smith, Ark. where he resided and was editor and owner of the News-Record. This information came to his Omaha friends, who were numerous.

Mr. Kendrick's suicide was due to ill health, which preyed upon a highly nervous temperament. He had achieved some success in his chosen pursuit, the newspaper business, and was in a position best to enjoy the fruits of his arduous labor when a nervous collapse came some three months ago. City editor of The Bee, city editor of the Chicago News and finally editor and owner of the most influential papers in his portion of the world, Mr. Kendrick had continued successfully. His breakdown is traced to a collapse he had while city editor of the Chicago News just after the reign of terror of the anarchists, which culminated in the Haymarket riot.

Some year or so ago Mr. Kendrick, who had made a close study of the industrial side of the south, was commissioned by James J. Hill to go to the Orient and exploit the cotton trade. On that trip he passed through Omaha, stopping to visit with some of his old friends.

About three months ago when his breakdown came Mr. Kendrick was obliged to relinquish the management of his paper to his brother and he went to a sanitarium in Buffalo and thence to New York, where he hoped to recover his health.

Thomas L. Sloan, attorney of Pender, was in Omaha Tuesday evening on a brief business trip.

"I think the lynching fever has not completely died out yet up our way regarding Loris Higgins, the murderer of Mr. and Mrs. Copple. But, then, it is confined to a very few excitable persons. The general sentiment," said Mr. Sloan, "favors letting the law take its course, and I think when the time for the trial comes that the excitement will have died down completely.

"We are going to have some great crop in Thurston county and all over the reservation this season. Never saw corn look better at this season. Twenty-five and thirty bushels were the acre average for wheat and the oats crop at the finest ever. We have had rains just at the right time."

HAMM GETS AFTER TRADE St. Paul Brewery with Distributing Center in Omaha Begins Crusade for Business.

J. E. Davison, local manager of the Omaha branch of the Theodore Hamm Brewing company of St. Paul, which has just opened its branch in Omaha, has started his crusade for business. Omaha is "We expect to make the Hamm product one of the best known brews in Omaha," said Mr. Davison. We have the largest and best known brewery in the northwest and have started our crusade for business in this territory. Our business at St. Paul has shown a wonderful increase and we are branching out."

Mr. Davison formerly had charge of the Iowa and southern Minnesota territory, where he was successful, and has been put in charge of the Omaha branch because of his well known ability to push trade. N. B. Abbott, advertising manager of the Theodore Hamm Brewing company, arrived in Omaha Wednesday morning to look over the situation with reference to an advertising campaign.

"Our firm has decided upon Omaha as a distributing point for the western territory," said Mr. Abbott. "Our business has shown an enormous increase this year and we are spending over $200,000 in the erection of a new stock house to keep pace with our growing trade. There is an increasing demand for bottle beer each year and the output of our bottle beer department increased over 40 per cent last year, and this year's record bids fair to beat that of last year."

"The firm looked over several other western cities before locating this branch and finally decided that Omaha offered the best advantages. With Mr. Davison's well known ability as a hustler there is no question but Hamm's beer will soon be one of the best known in the west."

Basil Mullen Says He Only Helped Kill Han Pak.

LAYS ONUS ON HIS TWO PALS Admits Getting Part of the Money—Police Express Confidence in Capturing Pumphrey, Last of Trio.

Basil Mullen the second of the trio to face the charge of murdering Han Pak the Douglas street Chinaman, was brought to the Omaha city jail by Detective Steve Moloney early Wednesday morning from Lenox, Ia., where he was arrested.

"The others did it," he says, "I helped, but they started it. I went away with them and I got part of the money."

The confession which he made to the police Wednesday morning does not agree with Allmack's story of the crime. The police believe each of the boys is trying to shift the burden of the blame on the other two.

"Too" Pumphrey will soon be apprehended if the plans of Chief of Detectives Savage are successful.

The two captives were taken into police court Wednesday morning for arraignment, but the county attorney decided to delay that action. The complaints were filed against them before extradition papers were obtained and the only process necessary before they can be tried is the arraignment before the police judge, after which, if the state is successful, they will be bound over to the district court. The boys have not yet engaged lawyers to defend them.

Both Boys Are Scared. Allmack and Mullen were together in police court, but did not speak. They both appeared to be wrestling with an attack of excited nerves, which their extreme youth does not help. Chief Donahue positively refused to allow the newspapers to interview Mullen.

If either Allmack or Mullen has thrown any light upon the present location of their pal, Pumphrey, whose card to Miss Farr gave the tip which led to the arrest of Allmack in St. Louis, the police have not divulged the fact. They appear confident, however, of having Pumphrey within a little while. He is said to be with some relatives in a small town near St. Louis.

Mullen Rather Loquacious. Mullen has been much more talkative since his arrival in Omaha than Allmack, but has not been allowed to confer with anyone, but the detectives and the county attorney. His confession to the police was practically a clear broadcast of the whole matter. He told how the three beat the Chinaman into insensibility and then took his money, a little over $100, and went on the first train out of Omaha.

"It's a pretty bad business," he said to one of the officers. "I don't like to be mixed up in anything like a murder."

The two boys are imprisoned separately and have not conferred together.

DAMAGE SUIT UNDER NEW LAW Ten Thousand Dollars Asked for Death with Limit Extended by Statute.

Suit for $10,000 has been started in district court by Benjamin S. Baker in behalf of the estate of Walter J. Williamson against the Racine-Sattley company. Williamson was an electrician and was sent into a dark part of the Racine-Sattley building to do some wiring. He was directed to take the elevator and in trying to do so fell down the elevator shaft, suffering fatal injuries. It is alleged in the petition the elevator shaft was not sufficiently lighted and had no protection across the open entrance to prevent one unused to the building from falling down it.

Under the new law enacted by the last legislature suit may be brought for any amount. Under the old law $5,000 was the limit, when death resulted from the injuries. Williamson has a father, mother and sister living and it is asserted he was in the habit of giving them $50 a month out of his wages.

Garnishment proceedings under the new law will soon be numerous in local justice courts, says the July number of the Retail Merchants' Journal, whose editor is the manager of a local credit bureau and ought to know. The Journal says:

Reports coming to the office indicate there will likely be about 300 garnishments proceeding in the justice courts of this city against people who owe money long past due that they have purposely refused to pay. This is a new feature of the new action on the part of the employers as such people concerning having their salaries garnished, which they or their employees must avoid. It is asserted that all their such people must avoid. It is asserted that all their such people must avoid. It is asserted that all their such people must avoid.

STEPFATHER SEEKS CHILD Christian Rasmussen Asks Court to Give Him Daughter of His Wife.

The unusual situation of a stepfather asking for the custody of his wife's child by a former marriage is presented in the divorce suit brought by Helen Rasmussen against Christian Rasmussen. Mr. Rasmussen filed his answer and cross-petition Wednesday. He says when they were married he legally adopted little Gladys, the young daughter of his wife. He admits he has not been living with his wife, but he says he has good reasons for leaving her.

He says on two different occasions she has left him for other men, leaving her daughter in his care and custody. He says he will not live with her again and on account of her conduct he insists she is not fit to have custody of the little girl, so he asks the court to give her to him as he says he has become greatly attached to her.

BRIDGE TO BE REPAINTED Douglas Street Structure First Being Cleaned by Means of Sand.

How long would it take to sandpaper the Douglas street bridge? The street railway company isn't worrying about that; it can clean it much more quickly by using sand without the paper. The company is about to repaint the bridge and, of course, all the old paint and so rust must be removed. This operation is one that is now being done by the use of sand. Sand is forced through a hose against the ironwork under a pressure of eight pounds to the square inch. It cuts the paint and dirt like a knife and leaves the iron clean for its new coat. It will require a small trainload of sand to clean the bridge.

BRIDGE TO BE REPAINTED Douglas Street Structure First Being Cleaned by Means of Sand.

How long would it take to sandpaper the Douglas street bridge? The street railway company isn't worrying about that; it can clean it much more quickly by using sand without the paper. The company is about to repaint the bridge and, of course, all the old paint and so rust must be removed. This operation is one that is now being done by the use of sand. Sand is forced through a hose against the ironwork under a pressure of eight pounds to the square inch. It cuts the paint and dirt like a knife and leaves the iron clean for its new coat. It will require a small trainload of sand to clean the bridge.

COUNCIL MAKES EXTRA WORK Separation of Street Contracts Equals Some Added Expense. ACTION VIOLATES ALL PRECEDENT Allows Final Estimates for Paving and Rejects Them for Curbing and Guttering Leavenworth and Vinton Streets. The city engineer's office is facing extra work on account of the action of the council in allowing the final estimates for paving Twenty-fourth street from Leavenworth to Vinton street and refusing to allow the final estimate for curbing and guttering the same. Since the memory of man runneth not to the contrary it has been the custom of the council to allow these final estimates together and the statistician of the engineer's office always has figured the assessments against abutting property on the basis of both contracts. This time was no exception and when the recommendation for allowance of the estimates were made the assessment figures were combined. Now the council has insisted that the figures will be compelled to revise the entire work and two assessment sheets for this district will have to be prepared. Incidentally the city engineer invited Councilman Elsasner to take a ride over South Twenty-fourth street Wednesday. In his remarks before the council Tuesday night Mr. Elsasner asserted there were a hundred places where defects had been found in the sidewalk. Mr
