SON OF ACHILLES IN TOWN

His Grace the Duke of Pasleigh on Overland Limited.

NOBLE ONE TELLS OF GREAT SIRE'S

Leaps from Greece to Norway in Flimsy Discourse Until Interrupted by Deputy Sheriff in Charge.

His grace, the duke of Pasleigh, passed through Omaha Friday morning on the Union Pacific Overland. Small of stature, smooth shaven, slightly bald, the duke looks like an ordinary citizen. In his eye was noticeable a peculiar light as he talked to a reporter. It was such a light as is not in the eyes of the ordinary citizen.

"I have long been kept from my rightful inheritance, title and estates," said the duke graciously in response to a question. "My ancestry I trace back to Achilles. Yes, the great Grecian warrior was my ancestor. My friends say there is a striking resemblance between us."

A modest smile came to the noble countenance as the duke said this. He looked out of the window, passed a hand over his brow and seemed lost in thought for a moment.

"My ancestor, Swadleton of Prograde, was in command of seventeen companies of Benegambian volunteers at the time of the Danish siege of Constantinople," continued his grace. "A right valiant fight did they wage in that godly field against the unbeliever."

"These are only two of my illustrious ancestors. Then there was William Brad-leigh, dear old Bill. He it was who leaped the Hellespont and captured the flag of the pigmy men which was waving defiantly from the flagstaff on the hated breastworks which the rebel Bramavere had thrown up before Russia. Ah, a fierce fight was that, and courageously did Brad-leigh risk his life. When he returned from the wars the sultan of London decorated him with the Order of the Seventeen millionaires. Then there was Gram-bregre, the lion hearted, who was my ancestor and who—"

"Your grace, your grace, how can you discourse of family matters to a mere common person like this," protested a man who appeared in the car and surreptitiously showed the reporter a deputy sheriff's badge. "His grace" turned his old eyes on the reporter.

"Begone, varlet," he said. The train started east. The duke came from Los Angeles and is bound for a private asylum in Philadelphia.

HOW LIBRARIANS ARE FOOLED

One Young Woman Mistakes Pie Maker for Master of Art.

"Oh, yes, we librarians grow to be fairly good judges of human nature," said one of the young women in the Omaha Public Library, "but we do occasionally get deceived."

"What kind of people deceive you most?" asked an anxious inquirer.

"Long-haired men," she replied. "Only last week one of the long-haired species stroled in and it was some time before I could determine in my own mind whether he was a musician, artist, author or sculptor. He had a vacant and far-away look in his liquid orbits and I thought he must surely be an artist, so I approached him and asked if he would like to see some work on art. I pronounced art like heart and that seemed to grate on his nerves, but he gave me a real soulful look which seemed to say, 'Ah, you recognize genius intuitively.' He told me he had been looking for a certain copy of the famous picture of Washington Crossing the Delaware, but had not been able to find just what he wanted. I scrambled up and down the shelves for three days in an effort to satisfy him and in all that inspection twenty-five copies in must to his inspection. Finally he found one that pleased him and arranged to take it home for a few days. When he brought it back he handed me a parcel, saying it was a present for me."

"Is it one of your own works?" I asked.

"Yes, lady, I makka myself." He darted out and was gone before I could find words to thank him. I hurried to the window to take one lingering look at him and I beheld him climbing into a covered pie wagon and on the canvas cover to the wagon was a crude copy of Washington Crossing the Delaware. In his hand he held aloft a pie as though it were the most precious thing on the boat and in his letters was written "Tony's Pie." My descent from the sublime to the ridiculous was rapid, but I had a mighty good pie for supper."

CUBA LIKES YOUR UNCLE SAM

Will Ask Annexation or Protectorate Finally, Says Consul Max Baehr.

Max Baehr, American consul to Cienfuegos, Cuba, has returned to Nebraska a "furlough." He spent Thursday in Omaha and proceeded to his home at St. Paul, Neb., Friday morning.

"Conditions are quiet in Cuba," says Mr. Baehr. "Governor Magoon is well liked by the majority of the people and has things well in hand. Some feeling of apprehension exists as to the time when the United States shall withdraw from the island, but the intelligent thinking classes

RAIN BOON INSTEAD OF BANE

J. Pluvius Helps County Commissioners Open Cut-off Ditch on Elkhorn River.

Instead of tearing up roads and bridges and proving himself generally a nuisance to public work, Jupiter Pluvius has for once demonstrated he is as true a friend of the taxpayer as the most active candidate for office could ever claim to be before election. The strenuous rain god has assisted the county commissioners to open a cut-off ditch on the Elkhorn river, a work the commissioners have been trying to accomplish for almost a year and by doing so has saved the Elk City and the river from serious injury. The commissioners have been considering putting in from $200 to $400 worth of ripraping to protect the east approach of the bridge which will now be unnecessary.

Last fall the commissioners found the Elkhorn was eating under the east approach to the big bridge across the river near Elk City. The only feasible method of stopping it was either to straighten the channel by running a cut-off ditch between the ends of a large horseshoe in the river and direct the channel under the center of the bridge or to put in ripraping which would be expensive to construct and to maintain. They decided on the ditch and cut it through the Powers farm. The water refused to flow through the ditch, however, and still kept the old channel. They had about decided the ripraping would have to be resorted to when the recent heavy rains raised the river and caused it to cut through the ditch. A sand bar is forming across the bed of the river and they look for no further trouble as the current is passing directly under the center of the bridge. Mr. Powers has filed a claim for $50 with the commissioners for damages based on the fact the ditch would not work and now the commissioners are thinking of putting in a claim against him for the value of about twenty-five acres of land he will get when the river bed dries up.

The heavy rains have done no material damage to the roads and bridges.

POLICE INSTEAD OF LOVER

Officers Meet Young Girl Who Comes from Chicago to Marry Omahian.

Walter Brittan, manager of the local branch of the J. Rosebaum Grain company, lost a bride Friday morning, if information received by the police department is the truth. Captain Dixon received an early telephone call from the Chicago authorities stating that a young woman of 17, named Lydia Cameron with blonde hair and pink roses in her hat, would step from the Illinois Central train at 8 o'clock and should be immediately arrested. An officer met the girl and she was taken in charge by the matron, Mr. Brittan, according to the word from Chicago, had sent for the girl intending to marry her on arrival in spite of the objections of her step-father, George Sablin of 36 Dearborn street. Mr. Brittan left word at his office that he was going to St. Louis last Wednesday and has not been seen there since. It is rumored, however, he was in town Friday morning, but his bride-to-be, it is said, she was, has slipped beyond his grasp.

MRS. WINSLOW'S BODY FOUND

Omaha Woman Recovered from Waters of the Pacific.

NO TRACE YET OF THE HUSBAND

George W. Edwards, Son-in-Law, Leaves on Receipt of Telegram to Bring Home Victims of Wrecked Columbia.

Female body in charge of coroner at Eureka, Cal., on which were tickets furnished C. A. Winslow and wife. No report from C. A. Winslow.

This telegram, signed by A. G. D. Kerrell, was received by George W. Edwards, 242 Manderson street, Friday morning. It was the first decisive and final news to confirm the fears that Mr. and Mrs. Winslow, left on the Burlington at 5:35 a. m. for Eureka to bring home the body of Mrs. Winslow and hoping to be able to recover that of Mr. Winslow. If indeed he too had been lost, and there is little ground for hoping now that he was saved. Mr. Edwards first wired the Eureka coroner to prepare Mrs. Winslow's body for its return and await his arrival.

While, of course, there is a degree of satisfaction in the fact the body of one dear one has been recovered, the family in Omaha is overwhelmed with grief at its recent affliction. The most earnest hope is entertained that Mr. Winslow's body may be found so that it may be brought home with that of his wife.

Mrs. Winslow was about 50 years of age. She and her husband were in the west on a pleasure trip. Their names were in the first list published of those believed to have been lost on the fated steamer and from Monday morning—when the original news came—the family had been hoping against hope to hear that Mr. and Mrs. Winslow were safe.

Complaints Against Hawae.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 25.—The Bulletin says that Third Officer Hawae of the wrecked steamer Columbia, whose sworn report of the disaster, filed with the federal inspectors, charged Captain Hansen of the San Pedro with refusing to aid in the rescue of the stricken passengers, is now charged by survivors who occupied the same boat with him with conduct more cruel than that specified by him in his formal report. The charges made against Hawae are:

1. Refusing to give his coat to an unconscious woman rescued from the water in a freezing condition, his remark being: "My coat is my own."

2. Shutting cabin door to strike a crippled man whom he believed occupied too much space in the lifeboat.

3. Shutting cabin door to strike a crippled man whom he believed occupied too much space in the lifeboat.

Mexican Has Water Bicycle.

ITHACA, N. Y., July 25.—Jose Antonio Oates, a Mexican student at Cornell university, has invented a water bicycle on which he has taken several rides on the waters of Lake Cayuga without danger.

NEWS IN THE ARMY CIRCLES

Department Issues Circular Relative to Accepting in Pawn Soldiers' Clothing.

A circular has just been issued from the War department relative to the punishment of persons who lawfully buy or accept in pawn the clothing of soldiers. The circular recommends that officers of the army continue to seize the clothing, and if made in a district where a federal judge holds that clothing is the private property of the soldier and that a prosecution will not lie, the goods if seized should be held and the alleged civilian owner be forced to seek recovery by civil process. The circular is stimulated from a recent decision by a federal judge in Texas, who held that the property being the private property of the soldier, he could not be criminally prosecuted for disposing of it in a civil court.

Bids were opened Friday morning at the office of Captain T. B. Hacker, chief commissary of the department for the quarterly supplies of commissary stores for the military posts supplied from Omaha. The supplies will comprise nearly 200,000 pounds of flour and every variety of food products, canned goods, toilet articles, soap and salt. The bidders were almost entirely Omaha jobbers. The names of the successful bidders will not be made known for several days.

Honorable discharges have been granted the following enlisted men from the regular army in this department: Regimental Sergeant Major Harry B. Bunce, Sixth regiment field artillery; Private Charles Svoboda, Troop C, Thirtieth cavalry; Sergeant Joseph Crighton, Company A, and Private Henry McCauley, Company D, Fourth infantry; Private Emile Keller, Battery F, Sixth artillery, and Private Bert Miers, Company I, Third battalion of engineers.

The Seventh cavalry, consisting of thirty-five officers and 415 enlisted men, arrived at Fort Riley Thursday evening from the Philippines. The regiment is short 23 men from its full number. It has been in the Philippines two and a half years and is General George A. Custer's old regiment. It was relieved in the Philippines by the Ninth cavalry.

The bids for the balloon house and hydrogen gas plant and wireless telegraph station at Fort Omaha will be opened August 8 at the office of the chief quartermaster of the Department of the Missouri.

Orders have been issued from Department of the Missouri headquarters for the payment of troops in this department for the month of July. Major George T. Holloway will make the payments at Forts Des Moines, Crook and Omaha; Captain J. M. Sisworth at Forts Riley and Leavenworth; Captain H. G. Lyon at Jefferson, Harpers and Captain C. B. Sweeney at Fort Robinson and Meade.

Leaves of absence have been granted the following officers: For ten days to Contract Surgeon E. E. Roberts at the conclu-

UNCLE BILLY ON FIRING LINE

Omaha's First White Settler Tells How He Fought in Mexican War.

"Uncle Billy" Snowden, Omaha's first white settler, is now living at the Midland hotel. There he smokes contentedly all day and fights all his battles of the three wars over again. No, it is really only two wars, the Mexican and the civil. "Uncle Billy" tried to enlist in the Spanish-American war, but a prejudiced army regulation regarding age prevented him. He was 72 years old.

"My colonel in the Mexican war was one of the finest soldiers that ever lived," said "Uncle Billy." "I marched with him from Fort Leavenworth out to Santa Fe and went through the whole war. We didn't fight many battles, but when we did we licked the Spaniards to a standstill. They always ran as soon as we charged them."

Christmas day, 1846, we had a little fight just after we had marched across a desert for a day. We had 300 men and the Spaniards had 1,200, but we sent them running in short order. Then at Sacramento creek 600 of us beat 4,000 Spaniards, and then in 1847. We ran them away from their cannon first with our six pieces of artillery and then we went up the hill on the gallop. When we got close we formed in single file and counted by tens. Every tenth man had to stay behind with his horse and attend others. The rest of us charged the Spaniards foot in the breastworks. We sent them skedaddling down the hill into the creek and there we pumped the lead into them from our little old Missouri short rifles. It took us old Missourians to do the fighting."

"Uncle Billy" is still enjoying the best of health. He has his own ideas about taking care of himself and his age bears testimony that he knows what he is about. He has quite a grudge against the National Soldiers' home at Leavenworth, where he stayed a year.

"They dosed me with medicine three seven times a day whether I needed it or not," he says. "When they got a man in bed there he generally doesn't leave it except foot first."

"I smoke almost all the time but I don't care much for drink. When I was in the twenty I just went to the canton twice. Twenty cents was all they got out of me. Out at the hospital I could have beer or anything I wanted, but I just told them if they hadn't puttermilk they needn't bring anything. I got out to this saloon around the corner here once in a while. When they heard my crutches coming they always used to have a glass of whiskey poured out and insisted that I should drink it, but I told them not to do it any more. They're all awfully good to me; I guess it's because I was the first settler in Omaha. They always hand out some 'seegars' too."

WOMAN CURSES POLICEMAN

Recovers from Supposed Faint and Is Locked Up as Drunk and Disorderly.

An unidentified woman, who was booked as Jennie Doe, 531 Jones street, when she arrived at the police station caused some excitement at Sixteenth and Harney streets Friday morning. She was seen to fall as if in a faint on a pile of sand in front of the Bill store and was picked up and carried into the Owl drug store. While she was being worked over she came to with surprising alacrity and then began swearing unmercifully at those who were trying to help her, one of whom was a policeman. She ripped out oath after oath at him and tried to spit in his face. Her conduct soon convinced her attendants she had not fainted and did not need a physician and fairly staggered the good women who had come in bunches to her relief.

She was well dressed, young and very good looking. It was thought for a while she was insane as the result of nervousness.

S.S.S. KILLS THE GERMS OF MALARIA

When the germs of Malaria get into the blood they destroy the rich, nutritive qualities of this vital fluid and reduce it to such a weak, watery condition that it is unable to furnish the system with the nourishment and strength necessary to keep it robust and healthy. The complexion grows pale and sallow, the appetite fails, digestion is deranged, a bilious condition of the system is set up, and often chills and fever make life miserable for the person in whose blood this insidious poison has taken root. There is but one way to rid the system of Malaria and that is to purify the blood of the germs of the disease, and S. S. S. is the remedy to accomplish this. It goes down into the circulation, destroys the germs, purifies and strengthens the weak, watery blood, making it a rich health-giving and health-sustaining stream, and makes a lasting cure of Malaria. Malarial persons will find S. S. S. not only a prompt remedy but a pleasant acting one, as well as certain cure for this debilitating disease. Besides removing the cause of Malaria, S. S. S. builds up every part of the system by its fine tonic effects. Book on the blood containing information about Malaria, and any medical advice desired free to all who write.
