PURE FOOD AND THE PEOPLE

How the Country Has Grown Faster Than Understanding.

AMERICANS YET MUCH TO LEARN

Mrs. Provident Fills Up on Chautauqua Statistics and Brings Some Thoughts Along with Her Market Basket.

"I have been attending a Chautauqua," said Mrs. Provident, "and have listened to such wonderful statements concerning the wealth and capabilities of my country and countrymen that I'm all puffed up with pride. We are the pivotal country round which the world in the next decade will rotate, and we don't say that ourselves. The thinkers and prophets of other countries say it for us. Other nations, those which are developing and reaching out for the best that is to be found in the material life, are sending their sons and daughters to us to study our applications of art and science to living. Then the rapidly with which we are multiplying our material possessions and the vastness of our country as compared with the little ones of Europe that have been looking down on us in calm superiority. When put in some simple object lesson form almost bewilders one.

For instance, if all the people of the United States were partitioned into families of five, each family could have a little farm of three and one-half acres of Nebraska land and not a human being occupy any other state in the union. Nebraska, therefore, one state alone, could give every person living in the United States almost three-quarters of an acre of ground for a home, and in the more thickly settled countries, enough could be grown to maintain the owner.

Between Theory and Practice.

Now, when I take my basket and start to market I am continually thinking of that happy family of five and the prospects of their future and one-half acre. I buy from 20 to 40 cents for a basket of tomatoes containing perhaps twenty, small and some of them not good, 10 cents for a few new onions, 15 cents for a cauliflower, from 15 to 25 cents for berries of any kind of fruit a box, and there does not seem to be a fruit or vegetable that can be bought at prices that will not make the meal taste of money to an extent beyond what should be forthcoming from the purse of a family of moderate means. To be sure, some of these things are, or have been, shipped in, not home grown, but the home grown ones are little if any cheaper. Then

I visit a friend who lives in a suburb, within a block of the street cars, and on their one good sized lot they produce vegetables that supply them during the summer season, that enables them to put up their own tomatoes, corn and some other vegetables, for the winter, and the grapes and small fruits give them a considerable supply for present use and to can. The work required to keep this garden is done by a person not robust in health and who knows that the outdoor exercise is one of nature's medicines to aid in his recovery, and occupies comparatively a small portion of his time. I also had another object lesson the other day. I went down among some of our foreign population living in little cottages near the river; almost every one of them had their tiny lot, but little wider than the house, fenced off with all sorts of crude fencing, sometimes boughs of trees interlaced, sometimes palings made of old barrels, anything that could gather at little expense, and in these bits of ground they were growing all sorts of "green things" good to eat, enough to give them a vegetable with their meals every day, and the yards looked thrifty and well kept. Later I went into an American district of families of about the same grade and their yards were a sight. Dirty in the rear, weeds and ill kept sod, if any, in the front, the houses ran down and no sign of any understanding of making use of what they had more of than their foreign neighbors. They probably ate baker's bread and cheap coffee, four meals out of five, with a beef-steak of the toughest, fried in grease, when they could get money enough for it, and their sloppy diet showed in their sloppy life.

Problems Before Us Always.

"And that is one of the problems that the congressman wit of Minnesota, J. Adam Bede, said the United States was continually having presented as we advanced in civilization, and were able to solve one after another, the distillings of nine-tenths of the people to working on the land, and the feeling that it is mental instead of the most delightful recreation and pleasure to see things grow, and the greatest health giver to draw force and power from mother earth.

"We are all so interested in our fireless cooker that I can do little else these days, except to prepare some simple salad to supplement the dishes cooked in it. Here are two or three that we use a good deal:

"Banana Pudding—Peel and wash six bananas, beat three eggs, add with a cup of sugar, 20 soft bread crumbs and the juice and grated rind of a lemon. Beat two cups of flour, add them a little over half full with the mixture, put covers on cans and set them in a kettle of boiling water and let them come up as high up on the outside of cans as will permit them to stand firm in the kettle and boil for ten minutes over the fire, the kettle uncovered, then set the kettle wrapped in a newspaper in the fireless cooker and any time after a couple of hours it will be ready to serve with the following:

"Hard Sauce—Cream a half cup of butter, add, beating, a cup and a half of pulverized sugar—granulated will do, in which case use a little less than the well beaten white of an egg that we use a good deal; a tablespoon of boiling water and grated lemon rind for flavoring, beating it rap-

Anything Wanted May Be Had in Limited Supply in Local Market.

Almost anything in the way of fruit, including a few boxes of strawberries, was to be had in the local market Friday morning. To be sure there was not a bountiful supply of all and the prices were far from cheap, but things were to be had.

The sources of supply for the shipped fruits especially are changing constantly now, which accounts in a large measure for the difference in quality and flavor of many things. The California cantaloupe has passed and in its place has come the Arizona melon, which sells from 10 to 15 cents each. Watermelons, too, are cheaper, selling from 20 to 30 cents each for the best. A few crab apples were offered early Friday morning, but did not last long. They sold for 50 cents a peck. Lemons still sell from 30 to 40 cents a dozen and oranges from 40 to 60 cents. California peaches are cheaper, selling from 20 to 25 cents a dozen, while the Arizona peaches sell from 25 to 30 cents a basket, according to size. The baskets held from 15 to 20 peaches in the original.

Berries are all cheaper than they were earlier in the week, but the quality is by no means reliable. The first of the home grown blackberries are in and are very nice, selling for 15 cents a quart box. Red and black raspberries are of doubtful quality, the red selling for 15 cents a pint and the black for 15 cents a quart box. The

PIEBITERS BACK HIGH LEVY

Eight Councilmen Vote to Sustain Action of Committee.

THREE MEMBERS ARE AGAINST IT

Rate Sixty-Four and Half Mills, Total Appropriation City and Schools Nearly a Million and a Half.

The piebiters win in sustaining the 6 1/2 mill levy rate for the city.

By a vote of 16 3 the city council decided to stand by the report of the committee of the whole, which carried with it a total appropriation of $1,482,500 for city and school purposes for the year 1908. The first vote came on a substitute offered by Mr. Bedford to Funkhouser's amendment to reduce the levy. Those voting to sustain the report were: Bedford, Brewer, Davis, Hansen, Elmsasser, Jackson, McGovern and Sheldon. Those opposed were: Funkhouser, Zimman and Johnson. The same vote was recorded on the passage of the resolution.

Two members—Hansen and Bridges—were absent at the opening of the adjourned session Friday morning, but Hansen came in later. The first matter presented was the report of the committee of the whole, which recommended the levying of $60,000 for general purposes, $232,500 for school purposes and $250,000 for city sinking fund, or a total assessment of $1,082,500 for all city and school purposes. Some informal discussion followed as to the proper form of certifying the school fund levy and that portion of the resolution was adopted separately from the other parts.

Talk Over the Levy Matter.

Then the council went "at ease" and the members could talk over the city levy without formality. This discussion lasted for half an hour and then Jeff W. Bedford moved that the committee report other than that referring to the school funds be adopted. Mr. Funkhouser moved to amend by fixing the amount of the general fund at $545,000 and the sinking fund at $235,000. Bedford moved as a substitute that the figures included in the report be approved.

Mr. Zimman spoke in favor of the amendment, pleading for the lowest levy possible to produce satisfactory results. He declared that every fund had received an increase by the legislature and that any levy above the figures offered by Mr. Funkhouser would be an unnecessary burden on the taxpayers.

Mr. Funkhouser also spoke for his amendment, declaring that the council is not responsible for an increase of $160,000 as the legislature fixed the amount. He was in favor of the extreme levy at first, wanting to take up some bonds, but was later willing to acquiesce in the idea that the next generation should pay part of the present burdens of city government. He asserted he opposed the low levy of last year, but was forced to vote for it in order to adopt the school fund levy.

Bedford Defends Report.

Mr. Bedford defended the report, saying the large increase in taxes is due to the legislature and the $125,000 in the gen-

OWNERS WILL DO BUILDING

Proprietors of Sixteenth and Harney Will Erect for Sale.

TWO STRUCTURES MAY GO UP

Syndicate Will Build Pair of Five or Six-Story Structures for Purchasers of the Property.

Whoever wants to add two new buildings to the list of those in Omaha's retail center can do so by finding a buyer for the southeast corner of Sixteenth and Harney streets. The owners of the property, according to C. C. George of George & Co., who heads the syndicate in control, stand ready to erect a five or six-story building on half of the lot if somebody will buy the other half for a building site.

The property is 132 feet on Sixteenth street by ninety-nine feet on Harney street and thus would afford room for two buildings 66 1/2 feet high. The syndicate will sell the whole place, but prefers to keep half of it as a site for itself.

George & Co. has sold to Mrs. Sarah Ann Ferguson for the Dundee Realty company a lot at the northeast corner of Fifty-first and California streets. She will build a 35,000 house there, one of a group of three which will be built. Herbert I. Gannett will build one and Mrs. Ward one just across the street.

Seven Thousand-Dollar Deal.

Robert L. Robison has bought from the Insurance Company of North America a house and ninety-nine-foot lot on the north side of Dodge street at the head of Twenty-fifth avenue, paying $7,000.

The Union Pacific Railroad company has bought for $700,000 lot 11, block 21, South Omaha, from the South Omaha National bank. This line just north of the company's freight depot and gives it possession of the entire block west of the alley.

Fayre, Postwick & Co. reports the following recent sales: To A. J. Jennings, from Henry Maddock of New York, lot at Thirty-fourth and Taylor streets; to W. A. Speelman, from Henry Maddock, lot at Thirty-fourth and Taylor. Both of these purchasers will build.
