Why don't we charge more for our goods? Because Brandeis has in less than 25 years built the biggest store west of Chicago on the principle of giving customers more for their money than they could get anywhere else. NEGRO JANITOR ROBS BANK

Picks Up $6,000 Cashier Forgot to Lock Up and Goes Out to Have Good Time.

KANSAS CITY, Aug. 3.—Charles Jones, negro janitor of the bank at Sulphur, I. T., was arrested here today on the charge of stealing $6,000 from the bank. Jones was arrested while spending money freely among the negroes of the negro quarter of the city.

When Jones was arrested he had $50, and $2.50 was recovered from his wife. The woman was promised her liberty if she would tell where the balance of the money was hidden and she promptly told the officers that $5,000 was buried at her old home at Sulphur. The bank was notified and the money recovered.

Upon locking the bank at night the cashier forgot to lock up a package containing the $6,000 and the negro janitor found it, and with his wife came to Kansas City immediately.

CHEMISTRY AND PURE FOOD

How Man is Delving Into the Secrets of Things.

NATURE STILL HOLDS THE BULGE

Synthetic Preparations Look Good in the Laboratory, but the Housewife Prefers Kind that Mother Used.

"And the Lord God formed man of the dust of the ground."

And out of the dust of the ground or earth which it produces must the body of man continually be formed and reformed.

"I have given you every herb-bearing seed which is upon the face of all the earth and every tree in which is the fruit of a tree yielding seed, to you it shall be for meat. And to every beast of the earth and to every fowl of the air and to every thing that creepeth upon the earth wherein there is life I have given green herb for meat; and it was so."

Mankind have been content heretofore to use these earth-produced foods grown and perfected in Nature's great laboratory by earth and sun and air, but now mankind is beginning to use its years of observations of nature's methods in starting a laboratory of its own and experimenting to see how it can combine and produce facilities of nature's products without the direct aid of the trees and herbs. We have analytic chemists to tear things down and synthetic chemists who build things up, both included in this line of work under the head of organic chemistry.

Synthesis and Foods. Here is a statement from Prof. Thomas B. Stillman, master of science and doctor of philosophy, a member of the Chemical society of Paris and director of the chemical laboratory of the Stevens Institute of Technology in an outline of the situation in relation to the artificial production of food, given in Good Housekeeping:

It is now possible to produce artificially food substances such as meat albumen and starch, which is the same as saying: Give a chemist a laboratory with seventy elements, and starch and albumen and he can make any vegetable dish on the menu. (Mark that, any vegetable dish.) Starch and albumen he can analyze into their elements, but as yet he cannot build them up from these elements. Whenever they are used in synthetic foods they are a natural product. He also is powerless thus far to rival the butcher. Barring these limitations, however, he does marvelous things, for hitherto all our food has been the result of either animal or vegetable growth.

As one instance of this artificial manufacture he says "while the chemical manufacture of sugar is a difficult and expensive process, glucose is obtained by boiling starch with sulphuric acid, which latter is removed by neutralization, and we have a food which our sense of taste cannot distinguish from sugar and which affects the system in exactly the same way. Moreover, it costs 2 instead of 8 cents a pound.

So far glucose has proved the most practical synthetic food, for while it should, of course, be used under its own name, and not be sold as sugar, it is in every way as good as the article for which it is substituted, with the added advantage of being much cheaper."

Housewife Prefers Old. Now there is the statement of a master of science and director of the chemical laboratory that glucose is in every way as good as sugar and much cheaper. It can be made from the starch of our corn in almost endless quantities, "but," he says, "the average housekeeper prefers the article she is accustomed to." How much longer she will when she realizes the difference in price and can be convinced that it is as healthful remains to be seen. Sulphuric acid frightens the uninitiated even when assured that it is neutralized; but in the face of the many adulterations we have been taking of late we might swallow glucose with "neutralized" sulphuric acid when the pure food laws have passed upon it.

He further describes saccharin-oleomargarine, of which he says "the physiological chemists—who are the last authority on dietetics—declare that this oleo product is exactly as wholesome as butter," and artificial milk, "which is a substitute, not a synthetic product." A substitute food, he goes on to explain, is an entirely different food from any natural product, but resembling some natural food in some of its characteristics.

And so he goes on, giving us one statement after another, of the possibilities of taking the contract of producing food out of the hand of Mother Earth in the old way and doing such strange things that we cook and food providers are full of amazement. But it will not all come at once; we may still eat in the good (?) old way for awhile longer.

In Nature's Way. "It is a pleasure to see all the delicious vegetables in market these times," said Mrs. Preparer, "but it seems a pity sometimes that they should be, so much more abundant at the season when we naturally wish to do as little cooking as possible."

"Yes," said Mrs. Preparer, "it perhaps means that the opportunity is presented to us to cook uncooked foods, and also to appreciate the difference between the two French words, gourmand and gourmet, one meaning a person who eats immoderately and the other a person who eats discriminately, who studies how to combine foods in healthful and appetizing ways and how to use them in proper quantities. The summer season means less food of the solids, more of fluids and oxygen and sunshine. Care to stop with just enough, and then there will be no need of articles telling how to proceed in a case of cholera morbus, which means always nature's effort to get rid of too much food."

"I keep a few macarons always rolled fine," said Mrs. Preparer, "as she pursued some nice fresh ones. I mix them with whipped cream to serve over any kind of a dish that whipped cream adds to."

"What, for instance?" said Mrs. Preparer.

Chocolate and Clabber. "Why, a chocolate junket is what we shall have for tomorrow. Dissolve a junket tablet in two tablespoons of slightly warm milk; heat a quart of milk until it feels warm to the finger, or 100 degrees; which is a little warmer than the body temperature; add two rounding tablespoons of sugar, dissolve two squares of chocolate in a half cup of water and the milk, put the chocolate and add to the milk, put the dissolved junket tablet in, stir and turn into sherbet cups; set in a warm place until it has set, then in the ice box until well chilled. Whip cream, sweeten slightly and add while whipping any desired quantity of macaroon crumbs. Pile it on top of the junket just before serving."

"I saw something the other day I am going to try," said Mrs. Preparer. "A cup of dry oatmeal added to a quart of ice cream, vanilla flavored. It tasted like macaroon cream, the recipe said. I rather doubt it, but will try it on a small amount."

"It will add food substance to the cream and sugar," said Mrs. Preparer, "and will carry out the idea of the raw foods."

Some Recipes. Peach Rolls—Make a rich biscuit dough, roll out and cut in squares large enough to cover a peach. Pare sufficient peaches to serve halves; take out the pit and fill with sugar. Lay a peach on each square of

FIGHT IN BOSTON CHINATOWN

Three Celestials Killed and Three Fatally Injured in Battle Between Factions.

BOSTON, Aug. 3.—Burning with hatred for their deadly enemies belonging to the rival On Leong Tong society, a band of New York Chinamen, numbering a dozen or more, and said to be members of the notorious Hep Sing Tong organization, entered a narrow alley in Chinatown tonight and, drawing revolvers, opened fire upon half a hundred Chinamen, killing three and injuring seven. At the first volley the Chinamen rushed for their quarters, stumbling over one another in their haste to reach shelter. The Hep Sing Tong men chased their victims into their own doorways and shot them dead as they rushed upstairs or into side rooms. Then casting away their guns, the strange visitors ran from the Chinese section, most of them escaping the police.

The dead: WONG SU JUNG, aged 50; restaurant proprietor. CHIN MAN LET, aged 35; laundryman, South End. CHIN MUN KUIN, aged 48; merchant, Chinatown.

Of the Injured Lee Kai, aged 24; Shang Gu, aged 28, and Jong Gon, probably were fatally injured. The others are in a serious condition.

Immediately after the shooting one of the Hep Sing Tong men from New York was captured by a policeman as he was running away. The man gave the name of Nim Sing. He was dressed in American clothes. Later an officer at the South station took into custody Hong Woon, aged 34, of New York, whose hands were powder stained. Both prisoners are charged with manslaughter.

DOCTORS FOR MEN

THE RELIABLE SPECIALISTS DON'T'S FOR WEAK MEN

Don't put off a duty you owe to yourself. Half the evils of this life come from things deferred. The time to see a doctor is when you realize you have violated nature's laws. Don't wait until you are forced to pay the penalty. Don't wait until your nervous system is tottering under the strain and you are a physical and mental wreck, unfit for work, business or study.

Don't experiment with FREE TREATMENT or QUICK CURE schemes. Unskilled or improper treatment can only do harm. Don't think because others have failed to cure you that there is no cure for you. The specialists of the State Medical Institute cure obstinate cases. Start right, and start at once. Delays are always dangerous. Don't put it off too long.

We do not quote misleading prices in our announcements. We make no misleading statements or deceptive, unbusiness like propositions. We cure men at the lowest cost for efficient and successful results. We believe in fair dealings and honest methods.

We treat men only, and cure promptly, safely and thoroughly and at the lowest cost, BRONCHITIS, CATARRH, NERVOUS DEBILITY, BLOOD POISON, SKIN DISEASES, KIDNEY AND BLADDER
