his efforts to unharness a horse which was hitched to a buggy. At the same time he had one arm around the neck of the animal and was whispering into its ear. When the attention of two police officers was called to the young fellow he commenced to wave his arms as if he was a human windmill and kept shouting, "Get busy with that carriage there; get busy, I say." When the officers attempted to lead him away the young fellow, who appeared to be possessed of the strength of six ordinary men, struggled and fought. Several citizens hastened to the assistance of the officers, but it took the combined efforts of eight men to carry the struggling stranger to the patrol wagon. On reaching the city jail the stranger fell into a deep sleep, from which he had not awakened late last night, and this leads the officers to suspect that his condition was due to alcoholism.

Brothers Find Their Papers Books All Right.

The larger of the two safes in the office of Keys Bros., whose carriage factory in the western part of the city was destroyed by fire early last Sunday morning, was opened yesterday. The contents were found in excellent condition and practically intact, despite the intense heat the safe had been subjected to. In this safe were the ledgers and other account books of the firm, together with the insurance policies. Men were at work raising the other safe from out of the debris yesterday afternoon and it is expected that when it is opened its contents will also be in as good condition as are those of the larger safe.
