OLSEN SAID TO BE SHORT

Former Danish Vice Consul and Comptroller is Missing.

SO IS CASH ENTRUSTED TO HIM Alleged Defalcations Run Up to Twelve or Thirteen Thousand Dollars, According to the Reports.

Theodore Olsen, former city comptroller and vice consul of Denmark at Omaha for twenty years, is missing from the city and is said to be a defaulter in an amount ranging from $12,000 to $13,000.

Olsen has been out of town since February, but only recently did his friends and acquaintances doubt that he would return and resume his usual work.

Olsen was comptroller of Omaha at the time the shortage of former Treasurer Bolln was discovered.

SIXTEENTH STREET, GOODY New Name Will Be Nebraska Avenue, if Mayor Dahlman Has His Way.

If the plans of Mayor Dahlman are approved by the city council sixteenth street will be a thing of the past and the street immediately west of Fifteenth street will be officially known as Nebraska avenue.

An ordinance is being prepared to change the name of the street. The mayor says: "When I suggested Broadway as the name of Omaha's principal retail thoroughfare I did it only to cause talk. I soon realized that many other people agreed with me in believing that the street should have a distinctive name, but all did not agree on that name. I wanted something distinctive and considered many. After thinking the matter over I concluded that no name would be as appropriate as the name of the state, Nebraska is what has made Omaha, and in the name of the street we perpetuate the good feeling which must exist between the city and the state. It is a distinctive name and possesses all of the merits which may be claimed for any other name that has been suggested."

Good Chances by Office. By reason of his office of vice consul Mr. Olsen had opportunity to come into fiduciary relations with many of his compatriots in the matter of estates of persons dying in America and leaving heirs in Denmark.

The government had nothing to do with these matters, he acting in a private capacity, but many persons in Denmark, who had no relatives in America, felt more secure in having their interests represented by an accredited representative of the government, and for this reason Mr. Olsen controlled the greater part of such estates. Most of the estates were small, but one of them at Minden, Neb., was comparatively large. With power of attorney from the heirs he disposed of property, and it is stated by the Chicago consul that he received about $3,000 from the estate at Minden which has never been turned over to the heirs. About $4,000 in other estates is said to be in the same condition.

No record of private business was left by Mr. Olsen when he went from the city, and no one can tell of the condition of his affairs. There was $300 in one of the banks to his credit and this has been turned over to the Chicago vice consul and will be held by him until it can be given to persons entitled to it.

A representative of the Danske Pioneer, a Danish newspaper of Omaha, says that he had an interview with Mrs. Olsen, and that she says she has no knowledge of the whereabouts of her husband, but she is satisfied that he is not dead. Mrs. Olsen and her daughter are said to be staying with her mother in Missouri.

Mr. Olsen would have celebrated his silver jubilee as Danish vice consul this year, he having served in that capacity in St. Louis before coming to Omaha, and the two terms, taken together, would have made twenty-five years.
