The Problem -of Agricultural Advertisers -of Buying-Farmers

How both discover the solution of "getting together" on a mutually profitable basis as business men.

F the business man-you-with a good product to SELL-

And the man-farmer-and his wife-and children-with prosperous pocketbooks wanting to buy now-today-

If you all could get together and stand over your product, you yourself believe that the cash would change hands.

You are keen to increase your business.

Farm People everywhere have money today "burning in their pockets."

Your problem is how to tell your story to the American Farmer as a "buying unit."

The Farmer's Problem is how to distinguish bebetween the true and the false spaces that he sees covered with type and lines and illustrations in his Farm Papers.

And the Farmer as he is today-keen and prosperous-intelligent and experienced-in touch with the world through reading ably-edited Farm Papers and from close telephone gossiping relations with his neighbors the county over-

That American Farmer has got the best of you.

He has got the best of you if you don't know him Intimately and individually as he is-a different man than he used to be, and even a different class man in each different part of this country today-

So if you are a business man advertising, or ready to advertise, to sell to the Farmer, and don't seek advice which is based upon success in solving the Farmer's Problem for him as well as the problems of other leading Agricultural Advertisers as to "Copy" and "Media," etc., you lose in two ways.

First-You don't get the results you ought to get during these prosperous farming times, in proportion to your expenditures, large or small.

Second-You take all the risks of speculating, when with the right kind of advice your expenditures would be a profitable investment.

Do the results you are now getting satisfy you that you have cut down the element of speculation in your Agricultural Advertising to the most profitable investment basis?

Think that over and remember that you will put yourself under no obligations by writing for an interview with a Lord 68. Thomas representative. A Lord & Thomas man will be sent anywhere to tell you and show you how this Largest Advertising Agency in America has, through its Agricultural Advertising Department, solved the problems of the Buying Farmer, and thereby solved the problems of more successful large and small Agricultural Advertisers than any other Agency whose advice you might seek.

With Lord & Thomas you will find a service based upon nearly one-third of a century's successful experience with Agricultural Advertising.

The Tabulated Results of this experience will prove interesting and profitable to you when you consult Lord & Thomas about your Advertising Problems.
