As a sequel to an incident that occurred in the west a year ago, Margaret Flee, the daughter of a wealthy coal operator of Centerville, Pa., has been married to a former councilman, George W. Brunell of Philadelphia. The couple started on a honeymoon on the Pacific const. A year ago Brunell, who was staying at Eton's ranch at Wolf, Mont., saved Miss Flee from the embrace of a big cattleman named Miller, who had everybody in that wicinity terrorized. While his friends kept than she did the first time she was led to the other cattleman from interfering Brunell gave the man a sound thrashing.

Returning from a circus, a person named Miller jostled Miss Flee and placed his arms about her. Brunell at length knocked out the cattleman. Miss Fice thanked her preserver. Introductions followed.

Brunell then made frequent visits to Centerville and pursuaded Miss Fiee to become his wife.
