PROTEST ON SHEEP RATES

Brought About by Abolition of Feeding in Transit Privilege.

Three-Quarters of a Million to Million Head Brought Yearly for Shipment to the lown Feed

Yards.

(From a Staff Correspondent.) DES MOINES, Sept. 7.—(Special.)—The Corn Belt Meat Producers' association will the freight rates on sheep. When the commission heard the complaint of the assoclation last winter on live stock rates the only rate really touched was that on cattle. The association did not press the matter of the rate on sheep because the railroads at that time, while charging a high rate, were allowing the farmers to "feed in transit." They could ship the sheep into the state to their farms, feed them and then ship to market, all for one rate. Now, however, the railroads have withdrawn this privilege and, in addition to charging the old high rate, the shipper must pay two short rate charges, the sum of which is greater than the old single rate. This boosts the rate on sheep "out of sight." The business is important, for there are annually about 750,000 to 1,000,000 and most of these come from Omaha, almost all of the shipment being thus inside the state of lowa. The commission last winter ordered that the cattle rate be cut down about 25 per cent. Secretary Harry Wallace of the Corn Belt Meat Producers' association proposed to the commission that the Iowa rate on sheep should be in the same proportion to the lowa rate on cattle that the interstate rate on sheep is to the interstate rate on cattle. The interstate rates return with a shotgun loaded with buckare fixed by the railroads and are therefore considered as not too low. The old rate on cattle, the old rate on sheep and the proposed rates on sheep are given below, the present rate on cattle being about sheep shipped into Iowa, fed and reshipped,
