SOCIETY AND SPECIAL MAIDS

AK-SAR-BEN'S Retinue to Get Due Attention This Year.

MUCH PLANNED FOR THE VISITORS

Omaha Women to Be Especially Charged with Seeing that Girls from Out-of-Town Are Well Entertained.

A Born Diplomat.

With long admiration
Woe Nora, three years old, Gazed on her playmate's locket.
A gem of shining gold.
At last, by dint of coaxing,
From her person she dislodged.
For just "one little minute"
Upon her neck it hung.
Then, causing her a instant
Her image to admire.
This wily little adventurer
With plans for prospects higher, Just coaxed, with artful sweetness,
"Oh, Arabella Vaughn,
You do look so much nicer Without a locket on!"

—Rosalie M. Cody.

Every week as the autumn season advances brings its own line of diversions.
Brides and their wedding parties, their visits and their exits have followed in rapid succession until Omaha feels pretty well worn-out.

At present, however, Elery's band, which will be at the Auditorium this entire week, Ak-Sar-Ben festivities and the Horse Show are the absorbing topics of conversation.
The date set for the big annual ball is Friday, October 4, and the first evening of the Horse Show will be October 14, for which society is already saving their fine raiment.

Who is to be the queen? This question has repeatedly gone the rounds of society, but has proved the old saying, "A rolling stone gathers no moss," as no positive conclusion can be reached.

The following is a list of the special maids, numbering thirteen; one of them is to be crowned queen: Miss Elizabeth Congdon, Miss Helen Davis, Miss Hazel Connell, Miss Lucy Updike, Miss Gwendolyn White, Miss Natalie Merriam, Miss Anna Bourke, Miss Mabel Mar, Miss Marion Johnson, Miss Ann Brown, Miss Mary Alice Rogers, Miss Frances Weasels and Miss Mary Morgan.

With this attractive crowd of young women, any one of whom could grace the royal throne with dignity, it is no wonder that each one has had their turn of being in the limelight of suspicion.

One that is particularly so at present is dark, blue eyes and blonde coloring. Last season she would have been formally introduced into society, but she preferred spending her time traveling in foreign lands, but even if this suspicion doth not materialize, it is almost beyond a doubt that she will not be deprived of the chance to say "I told you so."

As an interesting announcement is expected soon, when one of the popular young men of the Country club set in the one suspected.

One who is the daughter of a prominent attorney is surely queen. She would be one of the season's debutantes, but she has exceptional musical ability and a beautiful voice for singing, and has decided to devote her winter to music.

The out-of-town maids of honor, numbering about twenty, are going to have an exceptionally gay time this year. They are expected to arrive on Wednesday, the day of the electrical parade, and remain until Saturday, the day after the ball.

During this time they will be the guests at a number of the prominent homes.
Their hostesses will be Mrs. G. W. Warties, Mrs. F. H. Davis, Mrs. W. J. Connell, Mrs. Ben Gallagher, Mrs. C. M.
Wilhelm, Mrs. Victor Caldwell, Mrs. J. E.
Baum, Mrs. T. J. Mahoney, Mrs. Sam Caldwell, Mrs. M. T. Barkalow, Mrs. George A. Jody and Mrs. F. P. Kirkendall.

Another attractive feature is the addition of boxes at the Den, which will be occupied on the evening of the ball by the wives of the Board of Governors, wives of prominent members of Ak-Sar-Ben and the hostesses who are entertaining the out-of-town guests.

One of the most elaborate affairs of the week was the French tea given Saturday afternoon at the home of Mrs.
Motte-Borglum in honor of Mrs. Charles corated. Pink was the prevailing color used in all of the rooms, carried out in very effectively combined with ferns and amylax and palms were used in profusion.

The house was darkened and the pink-shaded lights and shaded candlelight cast a subdued glow over the pretty appoint-
