CHANGES IN THE GAME LAWS

Department of Agriculture Shows What States Have Done.

YEAR PROVES RECORD BREAKER

Legislatures of Country Have Made Sweeping Reforms Giving Greater Protection — License System.

(From a Staff Correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 20.—(Special.)—The United States Department of Agriculture has issued a bulletin to serve as a guide to sportsmen generally as to when to shoot and when not to shoot. The bulletin is wide in its scope, containing a synopsis of the game laws in force by state or federal enactment in all the states and territories of the union. It is, in brief, a summary of the provisions relative to seasons, shipments and sale of game, and instructs the hunter generally how he may keep within the bounds of the law to various localities while in search of sport. The object of the bulletin is to present in convenient form a summary of the game laws of the United States and Canada which govern seasons, shipment, sale, licenses and limitations of amount that may be taken. The bulletin includes legislation enacted in 1907 by legislative sessions held in all of the states of the union and territories except seven: Kentucky, Louisiana, Maryland, Mississippi, Ohio, Oklahoma and Virginia, and also in the provinces of Canada.

Game bills were under consideration in each of these states and provinces and new laws were passed in all except Arizona, Florida, Georgia, Nevada, New Jersey, North Dakota and British Columbia. Including the local laws of New York, about six in number, and seventy-one in North Carolina, the statutes affecting game numbered in all about 150. Several states, including Alabama, Missouri, Texas and West Virginia, passed the American ornithologist union law, giving complete protection to song-birds.

Many Changes Made.

In the number of bills introduced and in the general demand for a change of some sort, the record of 1907 is second to that of no previous year, although the number of bills actually passed was equalled by the legislation of 1908. In spite of the large number of bills introduced there was a manifest tendency toward conservatism. Most of the changes of season were made with a view of securing greater protection. In several states the seasons were closed entirely for certain kinds of game, and in others measures were allowed to fall rather than to pass in an unsatisfactory form. Much attention was given to license as a means of providing funds for game protection, and also to legislation extending or strengthening the warden service.

Some of the Laws Passed.

Among the novel or more striking features of the year's legislation were acts prohibiting the use of automatic guns for the hunting of game in Pennsylvania, New Brunswick and Ontario; establishing an elective office of game commissioner in Alabama; providing for an optional license in Tennessee for a resident hunter with verbal permission on lands where otherwise he would have to obtain written consent; authorizing rewards for information leading to conviction for killing big game in Wyoming; and the increase in such rewards in Idaho to requiring the state warden of Idaho to investigate means of destroying noxious animals; providing that all heads of big game secured in Alberta must be stamped or branded by the Department of Agriculture before being sold; requiring that anyone who kills a deer in Vermont must report the fact and exhibit the head to the nearest game warden; limiting hunting and the lumber camps in Maine to the use of six (6) a season, and applying the residue over and above expenses of the game protection fund in Missouri to the improvement of roads.

License System.

The license system was adopted for the first time in Alabama, California, Connecticut, Rhode Island and Texas. Alien licenses were established in Alabama, California, Connecticut, Maine, New Hampshire, South Carolina, Rhode Island and Texas and resident licenses in Alabama, California, Tennessee and Utah. Michigan, Vermont and Wyoming established a bird license and Alberta and Nova Scotia guide licenses. Nova Scotia and Ontario made provision for licenses for sports of residents. Missouri changed its state license to a county license, and Tennessee and Alberta provided licenses for game dealers. That of Tennessee being graduated in fee according to the population of the town in which it might be used. Two optional licenses were established, that of Tennessee already mentioned and a license for hunting deer in New Brunswick, the issue of which was made discretionary by the surveyor general of the province. Prince Edward Island provided a special license for non-residents paying taxes on real estate valued at $225 or more. Among the miscellaneous provisions adopted should be mentioned the authorization of Pennsylvania and Wisconsin of the confiscation of boats and other appliances used in unlawful hunting and the provisions made by New Hampshire, Massachusetts, Rhode Island and New Brunswick, permitting the use of shotguns in protecting crops from the depredations of deer.

Japanese Question to Fore.

State department officials are anxiously awaiting the return of Secretary Root in order that matters in relation to the Japanese question, which has been temporarily transferred to the officials of the Canadian government, may be put upon some permanent basis and that future embroglios may be avoided. Washington has shown the very deepest kind of interest in the outbreaks at Vancouver, realizing that the use of shotguns in protecting crops from the depredations of deer.

Chinese, Japanese and Hindu) the peace is looked upon as being but temporary. There are those high in official authority who look upon the situation which confronts Canada and the United States, so far as labor from the far east is concerned, with serious misgivings, and they are by no means reassured with the optimism with the Japanese foreign office on the question. State department officials here are waiting anxiously to know what Ottawa is going to do with the Hindus, who, landing at Vancouver, were sent directly to the Canadian capital, where the government of Laurier might take primary steps looking either to their exclusion or placing them in a section of the country where they could do little or no harm. The United States suffers by contrast with Canada when it comes to the question of the exclusion of undesirable immigrants. In Canada a treaty of right, in the United States treaty, while looked upon by the supreme court as the law of the land, are set aside at the whim and caprice of states—a condition which the Englishman cannot possibly appreciate—and it is to this dual power of the federal government to legislate and make laws for the wellbeing of all the people that an anomalous condition exists.

While a temporary peace prevails regarding the coolie situation (and by that word is meant all eastern labor, including riots at Vancouver and take repressive measures to stop the influx of the undesirable from the far east, and they are hoping that Secretary Root will make it plain to Japan that the United States and England are a unit in safeguarding the interests of their citizens, and that while more cannot be too severely dealt with, at the same time it takes a mob sometimes to bring the government to a realization of existing conditions and puts it in the way of correcting abuses which have been ignored. In a sense, speaking to a government official today relative to the Vancouver and Ottawa situations, he said that the time was coming when England, the United States and Russia would form a tripartite agreement looking to the open door in China and the vested given Japan that its too aggressive policy in the way of immigration, its treatment of the Koreans and its desire to establish a permanent government in China would be looked upon by the great nations of the west as an encroachment upon the broad principles of humanity and that agitation in the large country of Japan would have to cease. While everything seems serene in Washington, as it undoubtedly is in Ottawa, it is understood that notes have been exchanged between England and the United States looking to a co-operation in the Eastern question.
