A Look in the Future-Nebraska has a opulation of fourteen to the square mile. The population of Custer county is not far from nine to the square mile; Iowa, 48; New Jersey, 268; Massachusetts, 350; Germany, 450; Belgium, 500. Germany is about the size of Nebraska and Iowa and sustains a population of 65,000,000 people. Custer county has twice the area and eighty square miles more than that of Rhode Isand; is one-third the size of New Jersey and one-sixth the size of Switzerland. When Custer county becomes as densely populated as New Jersey it will have a population of 694,656. Will the day ever come? Will the time ever come when Custer county will have thirty or forty times the population it now has? What do you think about it? What will the price of land per acre be at that time? FUSION LEADERS ALSO ABSENT

Populism in Years Cone By Attended the Convention of the Party --- Talk of Chairmen.

(From a Staff Correspondent.) LINCOLN, Sept. 25.-(Special.)-Looking back over the platform conventions, one the noticeable features marking the revolution in Nebraska politics was the absence of familiar figures without whom in previous years no state convention of any political party would be recognizable. The guardian angels sent out from railroad headquarters to help make the party nominee and censor the platform declarations failed to put in an appearance. Not even a special searching expedition would have uncovered an expert railroad politician within talking distance of a convention delegate, although in all the conventions some members were sitting who had previously been allied with the railroad contingent. The only reminder of old times was Bob Clancy, who stopped over night at the Lincoln, explaining that he was on the way to Wahoo and came here merely by force of habit. For the first time in the history of Nebraska, so far as is known, the railroads permitted the state conventions to assemble and to adjourn without attempting to map out any program for them or to say what should or should not be done.

Some Others Missing. In addition to the absence of the railroad brigade, the absence of distinguished party leaders from the fusion conventions was likewise very marked. In the olden days it required all the persuasiveness of the man Sutherland. Think of a democratic congressman from Nebraska, without our J. R. Smith of Omaha. van, without ex-Attorney General Smyth, platform, but even the nominee of the com- follows: bined fusion party for governor last year, A. C. Shallenberger, failed to show up in appreciation of past favors, although not a candidate for present honors. No wonder it was disheartening to the handful of the faithful who assembled to show that they are still true to fusion and whose chief compensation was the privilege of listening to Bryan's oratofy.

Slates Hard to Make. Practically all traces of the five conventions held here yesterday have disappeared, a few delegates only remaining over until the afternoon trains home, most of them leaving yesterday afternoon. Interest now is centered, of course, in the selection of a state chairman of the republican committee. Several names have been sprung. but politicians here have discovered that that Judge Reese has had experience with an unfriendly committee, meaning the committee of 1899, at which time he was defeated for election, and urged the selection of some person who might be recomrumored that the republican candidate himself was authority for it. Judge Reese is such sentiment, but on the other hand he himself selected the chairman of that comrison. Orlando Tefft of Cass county was the chairman selected by Judge Reese. The committee selected another chairman, and when he resigned Judge Reese requested Orlando Tefft, J. J. McCarthy and Harry Lindsay to come to Lincoln for a conference. Judge Reese said he wanted one of these men to serve as chairman. The men conferred and concluded to make Tefft chairman, providing McCarthy would remain and act as vice chairman and Lindsay would manage the speakers' bureau. This was satisfactory to Judge Reese. All this came out yesterday afternoon thought it has always been a matter of history, when Tefft and Congressman Pollard had a rather heated discussion at the Lindell hotel over the matter. It was reported to Mr. Tefft that Pollard had said Judge Reese was dissatisfied with his 1899 Tefft at once called Pollard, who said he had heard the report as a rumor and did not even know that Tefft was the chairman. Tefft then called upon Judge Reese, who denied emphatically that he had ever entertained such an idea, much less give expression to it. The only reasonable excuse for the publication of such a story is that the Journal got its wires crossed in its zeal to fix up a slate for the state committee.

W. B. Rose, chairman of the old republican state committee, has called a meeting of the new committee for Monday night at the headquarters at the rich. No need of poverty in this land. Lindell hotel. This committee will select outline plans for the campaign. While the old committee went out of existence with the selection of the new, the convention empowered Mr. Rose to call the new members together, as the primary provides this committee shall select its own chairman. Otherwise there would have been no way to call the new committee together.

Incidentally the appointment of Harry Dobbins a member of the state committee is occasioning comment. Mr. Dob hins is editor of the Lincoln News, owned by the State Journal company, which during the last campaign adopted a resolution that none of its employes could accept or be a candiadte for any political position and hold a job with the company. Will Owen Jones, editor of the Journal, was the first to go under when Senator Burkett offered him a federal appointment. Jones explained that the rule did not apply in his case, and it is presumed obbins will do the same thing, unless he esigns from his News job.

The people heer are still talking of the speeches made yesterday by the republican candidates, especially the talk made by Judge Sedgwick and Judge Reese.

> > Unchanged.

NEW YORK, Sept. 25 .- The results of today's primaries for district leaders and delegates to the judicial nominating conventions leave the factional lineups in the two parties practically unchanged. Interest centered in the contests in the assembly districts of New York county. Here there were sharp fights in several instances between the respective followers of Tammany Leader Charles E. Murphy and Mayor Me-Clellan, in the democratic party. In the republican party, there were fewer contests, though in several cases the district leadership was contested where friends of Republican County Chairman Herbert P. Harris were in control.

Two of Mayor McClellan's candidates, Maurice Featherson and Prancis J. Lantry, were re-elected district leaders with many votes to spare. The re-election of these two out of thirty-five districts in Manhattan has been generally conceded by the Murphy supporters. The republican situation remains as before, Herbert Parsons being safely intrenched.
