Men and Women of Iowa: I am glad to see you and to speak to you in this thriving city of your great and prosperous state.

I believe with all my heart in the people of Iowa, for I think that you are good, typical Americans, and that among you there has been developed to a very high degree that body of characteristies which we like to regard as distinctively American.

During the last few years we of the United States have been forced to consider very seriously certain economic problems.

We have made a beginning in the attempt deal with the relations of the national fivernment—that is, with the relations of the people of the country—to the huge and wealthy corporations, controlled for the velt, in his address here today, said; he people of the country—to the huge and wealthy corporations, controlled for the most part by a few very rich men, which are engaged in interstate business—especially the great railway corporations. You know that I believe that the national government, in the interests of the people, should assume much the same supervision and control over the management of the interestate common carriers that it now exinterstate common carriers that it now exses over the national banks. You know, hermore, that I believe that this super-on and control should be exercised in a of rigid fairness toward the corpora-exacting justice from them on behalf to people, but giving them justice in Lessons from the Past.

Recently I have been reading the work of the eminnt Italian scholar. Ferrero, on the history of the Roman republic, when the life of the Roman state had become that complex and fuxurious industrial civ-on. I am happy to say that the dif-ces between that civil zation and our are more striking than the resem-ous; and there is no warrant for our being drawn into any pessimistic compari-son between the two civilizations. Butthere is every reason why we should study there is every reason why we should study carefully the past in order to draw from it lessons for use in the present. One of the most striking features of the years which saw the downfall of the Roman republic was the fact that the political life of Rome became split between two camps, one con-taining the rich who wished to exploit the poor, and the other the poor who wished to plunder the rich. Naturally, under such circumstances, the public man who was for the many the public man who was circumstances, the public man who was for the moment successful tended to be either a violent reactionary or a violent demagogue. Any such condition of political life is as hopelessly unhealthy now as it was then. I believe so implicitly in the future of our people, because I believe that the average American citizens will no more tolerate government by a mob than he will tolerate government by a plutocracy; that he desires to see justice done to and justice exacted from rich man and poor man alike. We are not trying to favor any man at the expense of his fellows. We are trying to shape things so that as far as possible each man shall be such as far as possible each man shall. lows. We are trying to shape things so that as far as possible each man shall have a fair chance in life; so that he shall have, so far as by law this can be accomplished. the chance to show the stuff that there is in him. We have no intention of trying to work for the impossible and undesirable end of giving to the lazy, the thriftless, the weak and the vicious the reward that belongs to, and in the long run can only come to, the hard-working, the thrifty, the resolute and the honest. But we do wish to see that the necessary struggle in life shall be carried on under genuinely democratic considions; that, so far as human action can safely provide it, there shall be an approximately fair start; that there shall be no oppression of the weak and that no man are trying to shape things so imately provide it there shall be no approximately fair start; that there shall be no oppression of the weak and that no man shall be permitted to acquire or to use a cast furture by methods or in ways that are tortuous and dishonest.

Need of Wise Laws. Therefore we need wise laws, and we need to have them resolutely administered. We can get such inws and such administration only if the purple are sive to their littlewals. The other day I listened to an admirable sermon by Elshop Johnston of western Texas. His theme was that the wind thement in Judging any man should admirable sermon by Rishop Johnston of western Texas. His theme was that the vital element in Judging any man should be his conduct, and neither his position nor his pretensions: and, furthermore, that freedom could only stay with a people which has the habit of self-mastery. As he said, the price of liberty is not only sternal vigilance, but eternal virtue; and may add, eternal common sense. Each nan here knows that he himself has been this to use his freedom to advantage only provided that he could master himself, that he csuld control his own passions and direct his own faculties. Each of your fathers and mothers here knows that if your sons are to do well in the world they must know how to master themselves. Every man must have a master; if he is not his own master, that somebody class will be. This is just as true of public life as of private life. If we can not master ourselves, control ourselves, then sooner or later we shall have to submit to outside control; for there must be control is to comowhere.

One way of exercising such control is to contain the laws of the laws.

way of exercising such control is the laws of the land. Ours is a One way of exercising such control is through the laws of the land. Ours is a government of liberty, but it is a government of that orderly liberty which comes by and through the honest enforcement of and obedience to the law. At intervals furing the last few months the appeal has been made to me not to enforce the law against certain wrongdoers of great wealth because to do so would interfere with the business prosperity of the country. Under the effects of that kind of fright which when sufficiently soute we call panic, this appeal has been made to me (Continued on Sad Page.)

The morning was fair, but a sprinkle of rain began shortly after the presidential party started in carriages to Rand park, where speeches were delivered.

Following the address, which was heard by 20,000 people, the president was driven to the lower lock of the government canal and boarded the steamer Mississippi for the trip south. He reviewed the display of one hundred pleasure launches in the river, and departed, leading the flotilla of twenty big steamboats and the launches. The government.

Secretary of War Makes Notable Speech at Tokio Banquet.

SUGGESTION OF WAR INFAMOUS

Neither Nation Desires It and No Question Exists that Cannot Be Settled by Diplomacy.

TOKIO, Oct. 1 .- Secretary of War Taft aroused the wildest enthusiasm and loud cheers when in the course of his speech at the banquet given in his honor by the municipality of Tokio and chamber commerce, he declared that war between the United States and Japan "would be a crime against modern civilization and as wicked as it would be insane," adding that neither people desired it and that both governments should do their utmost to guard against such an awful catastrophe. You have concluded treaties with your former antagonist, and the wounds caused by the war are healed. The growth of Japan from a hermit nation to its present position in the last fifty years is a marvel to the world. Americans are proud to record the fact that Japan has always had the cordial sympathy, and at times the effective aid, of the United States. For a moment-for a moment only—a little times the effective aid, of the United States. For a moment—for a moment only—a little cloud came over the sunshine of the fast friendship of fifty years. Prince Wilhelm Responsible.

Prince Witheim Responsible.

NEW YORK, Oct. 1—It is thought that the idea of a Swedish challenger for a race for the America's cup was prompted by the visit of Prince Witheim to this country recently. The prince was much interested in maritime affairs and met among others some yachtsmen and through them became interested in the America's cup. Axel Josephson a Swedish lawyer, was with the prince a good deal of the time while he was here and talked things over with him.

Mr. Josephson lectured before the members of the Royal Swedish Yacht club on the America's cup and urged them to try for the trophy. Haron Herman de Lagercrants, the Swedish minister who is here, said when he heard of the contemplated challenge: "I hope it is true and that they are really going to challenge. It would really be fine. Our sailors, you know, have done good work in sailing the defenders to victory."

Judge Fawcett was not in the city Tuesday atternoon. Whether he will accept is not known.
