RANK INJUSTICE IN RATES

Omaha, St. Joseph and Kansas City Suffer on Freight.

GROSS DISCRIMINATION EXISTS

John L. Webster Shows Eastern Cities Can Invaade Territory of Western Competitors with Rich Results.

"The jobbers of Omaha, St. Joseph and Kansas City, whom I represent, are paying $400,000 a year more than they should pay in freight rates," said J. L. Webster as he was leaving for St. Joseph to attend a meeting of the Missouri Valley jobbers to consider the evidence which is being prepared to present to the Interstate Commerce commission when the case against the railroads comes up for a hearing.

Case of Sioux City

"Take the case of Sioux City" (and Mr. Webster produced an elaborate chart, and showing that while the discriminating rates exist, "St. Louis merchants can get goods from New York to Sioux City for $2.25 for first class, whereas the Omaha jobber has to pay $1.85, or 9 cents more per hundred. This seems strange when the goods have to travel around via St. Louis.

Omaha-Chicago Lines

"The Chicago-Omaha lines charge the jobbers 7 cents per hundred on first class goods between Chicago and Omaha, but should this same class of goods be destined for some point beyond or to the Pacific coast, the road hauls it for 33 cents per hundred or less than one-half.
