Owing to the rule, of procedure there by which leans made on Friday carry over until Monday of the following week, the horrowing of money was to a great extent in abeyance. The representative and the influence toward representative activity or deal-ings on margins was associed with un-diminished force. The tone of the market was regarded, nevertheless, as a reliable infancial position. The expression of in-dreased confidence throughout the medium reactions and some individual stocks, es-positive toward resistance of any elements of depression and the closing tone was at a strong. alfalfa. $11.00. pressed. The action of the market was clearly toward resistance of any clomenia of dopression and the closing tone was still strong. The bank statement caused a momentary wavering, a report of a deficit below the legal reserve exercising an inevitable sen-timental influence. Consideration of the statement deiracted from its depressing influence, in view of the extraordinary revents of the week, and the complicated cross currents in the situation, the de-crease of least than $12,000,000 in the reserve hold, was considered not immoderate. The meccasily of the situation and the courage-to as fortunate under the clicoumainces that the clearing house banks had started the week with so considerable a surplus position. For the conservation of this po-sition the decision of the United Clearing house today to issue clearing house oer-tificates seems to offer entire security. By acceptances between the banks of these cortificates for settlement of debit bal-ances, the preservation of the basis of banks forms another safeguard. Finally, the inauguration of sold imports opened a channel of replenishment of the basis of banking credits which promises effective was the feeling of encouragement with which the week closed in Wall street. lambs, with the result that prices at the close of the week are at the low point of the season thus far. Packers have been very weak buyers, both here and at all other market points, with the result that a heavy decline in prices has taken place everywhere. Besides being bearish in their views the amount of their purchases has been much smaller than usual, which of itself was sufficient to give the market a downward tendency. Owing to the general lack of buying support, as well as the bearish tendency of packers, the market at the close of the week is safely 2000 lower than last week. As a matter of course some kinds have shown more decline than others, and as usual when prices are going down bill rapidly there has been more or less unevonness to the trade. Thus something else equally good would have to sell a good deal lower. The market on feders came in for its share of the decline. The trade on most days was inclined to be rather duil, buyers throughout the week acting on the bear side. Still prices were very uneven and there were plenty of cases where good fed-ers which happened to find favor in the eyes of country buyers sold at steady prices, even as late as the middle of the week.  Maximum Prices on Staple Commoniities Reached Last March, but

Vielding in Value Now Noticed in Omaha.

Like the useful citizens who manufacture unibrelias and sell waterproof coats, the wholesalers of Omsha who have been sell-ing duplicate orders of winter goods have taken a rest. October refunes to be classed as a winter month and several weeks of warm weather has caused a slack in the selling of everything from stovepipe to fannel shirts. Otherwise trade is active, wholesale grocors being too busy to quote prices, and in need of help to get the goods from warehouses to trains. Eimilar con-ditions have existed in the hardware lines as well as in drugs.

as well as in drugs. Predictions are made by dealers in all Predictions are made by dealers in all lines that there must soon be a break in prices. Few articles are sold by the whole-salers of Omaha which have not been ad-vanced in price during the ten months of 1907. This is sequecially true of dry goods and grocery lines. But it is believed prices have reached their maximum.

Linings Not in Demand.

Linings Not in Demand. Trade in bleached goods is vory quiet, while the dry goods men of Omaha say they are selling no cambric linings. They are practically off the market, and there is little hope of a demand for linings in the future. Dealers say few dresses are lined with cambric and the new method of making women's clothes has demoralised the trade on linings. In underwear and hosiery the situation is interesting. It has kept the manufacturers musy mixing cotton with the best of all wool underwear in order to keep the price' down. "A pure wool law would not be a bad thing," said a dealer this week, "but both comsumers and retailers are respon-sible for the mixing of cotton with the best of wool. They get in the habit of pay-ing about so much per dozen for underbest of wool. They got in the habit of pay-ing about so much per dozen for under-wear, and they don't want to so higher. The customer gets underwear from one year to another for a certain price, and it is hard for the dealer to secure more. The manufacturer accommodates both by leav-ing the price the same, but making a gar-ment with more cotton in ft."

Pays High for Hosiery.

Bodge-Ekouenpts of hogs this morning were the lightest that they have been for a great while on Saturday, only twentyfour cars being reported in. This was hardly enough to really make a market, but in addition to the fress receipts there were tweive cars carried over from yesterday. The market opened is higher with very little buying on the part of packers, in fact, there was really only one packer in the market to any extent. The most of the buying was done by shippers who had orders to fill. After a dozen or fifteen loads had changed hands the trade practically came to a standstill, packers leaving the business. Later on shippers were the buying was done by shippers who had orders and not trying to de any further business. Later on shippers secured fresh orders and cleaned up the balance of the boys and so the bogs sold at $5.40%0.50, with a top at $5.60
A phenomenal break has taken place in how at the barg a speculative commodity, would naturally reflect the unsettled conditions prevailing in financial circles and the provision market for live hogs. Slight Changes in Drug Prices. Dealers in drugs are buying goods in a hand-to-mouth manner and do not appear to be interested in the slight changes re-corded in opium, salad oil, baim of Gilead buds or coccas butter. Opium is higher, but there is a lack of demand for it. The de-mand for quinine shows no increase, and the market has developed nothing in the way of new features. Prices on some olive oils have been reduced from a cent to a cent and a haif. Cocca butter is gener-ally firm, but the higher prices have acted na more or less of a restraint upon the buy-ing interests. In a limited way, German goods can be had at 45 cents, but higher prices are generally asked.
