

SQUALLS ON THE TRANSPORT

Bachelor's Account of a Voyage on a Troopship.

WHY HE ENJOYED THE TRIP

Homecoming from Manila of the Babes and Their Mothers—Conditions When It Isn't So Nice to Be a Bachelor.

June 14, at wharf, Manila, on board United States army transport Logan...

An occasional soldier mare what otherwise would be a perfect military picture, at beholding which I am so filled with enthusiasm...

June 15, at wharf, Mariveles—The enlisted men's belongings are spread about the wharf, preparatory to being steamed, and the children ramble about, selecting playthings from them...

June 16, at wharf, Mariveles—The enlisted men's belongings are spread about the wharf, preparatory to being steamed...

June 30, at wharf, Mariveles—The enlisted men's belongings are spread about the wharf, preparatory to being steamed...

Also escaped innocent prattle and the patter of little feet...

June 20—Spent the day in Shanghai sight-seeing. Chinese babies are reticent to the point of tactfulness.

June 21—Likewise.

June 22—Sailed at 8 p. m. for Nagasaki, Japan. Everybody sleeping to recuperate from Shanghai sightseeing and Shanghai whiskey.

June 23—Came to anchor in the harbor of Nagasaki at 4 p. m. Japanese quarantine officials discovered serious epidemic of typhoid aboard and will not let us land until tomorrow.

June 24—Went ashore and spent day in Nagasaki. Japanese grapevine telegraph is busy sending out to surrounding country the message "American army transport in harbor. Drop what you are doing and come help skin 'em."

June 25—They do.

June 26—Sailed for Honolulu. We lost nineteen children, fourteen ladies and one officer—his is on leave and intends either to take a liner of swim across at Nagasaki, but gained twenty-four children and nine ladies. This necessitates a rearrangement of staterooms. A bachelor, if he is still fortunate, is still allowed to retain one-third of a stateroom intended for two persons.

Ergo, on a principle analogous to the one that it takes nine tailors to make a man he is one-third of two men or two-thirds of one man; quod erat.

A married officer with, say, a family of five draws six berths; therefore he is six judged by the rule of the table of army allowances. Every benedict approves of this.

It is rumored that at the coming session of congress legislation will be urged looking to the application of the rule to pay, quarantines and medicine.

June 27—At sea. Sea very rough—so rough that the children are unable to build castles of the deck chairs and one cabin attendant is waiting until one of the ladies becomes seasick and gives it up her chair, I mean.

Steward sees his chance to get get even and serves such delicacies as canned shrimp with clotted cream, boiled pork in olive oil, anchovies with maple syrup, larded cabbage, sauce perique.

June 28—At sea. Sea smooth. First officer of the ship allowed a sea to be shipped yesterday, which wet the toy room in the hold. On hearing that he was to be haled before the court-martial he commences to eat a ship's pie.

June 29—At sea. Sea so smooth that children are again able to play with the standard compass and amuse themselves by badgering the quartermaster on watch because he doesn't turn the wheel often enough to suit them.

June 30—At sea. Amid the shrill buzz of conversation on the promenade deck an acute ear may distinguish: "Lead a bear."

June 1—At sea. A better view of the flying fish than mine, and I rank her. "Pinned the queen, we would have gotten the odd." "It's a bitty wriggler."

June 2—At sea. "Wah-hah, yaaah-aaah!" "Gorgeous piece of lace insertion." "And I just told her." "Naughty naughty, papa pank."

June 3—At sea. Court martial set again today for trial of Lieutenant—on the following serious charges:

1. Looking as if he were congratulating himself on being unmarried.

2. Allowing women to get in the way of a perambulator while at drill.

3. Being an infantryman.

4. Coming from sea. Sea so smooth that children are again able to play with the standard compass and amuse themselves by badgering the quartermaster on watch because he doesn't turn the wheel often enough to suit them.

June 4—At sea. The cigarette cases with dragons in relief, fans, kimono, card cases, dagger paper knives and other curios bought in Japan are beginning to fall apart.

June 5—At sea. George, sabbie monarch of the tubs (the bath stewards) regrets that he cannot let us bathe, as the tubs are in constant demand by the children, who have discovered that they are admirably suited for the sailing of boats. Hope it rains soon—at night.

June 6—At sea. Independence Day and our floating madhouse is a scene of festivity. The salute to the union was fired at noon and served the twofold purpose of demonstrating our patriotism and amusing the infants, who added their discordant whoops to the din. Captain B— suggests a plan to train them all to howl in the same key.

Had boxing bouts among the men in the evening, at which all the best seats were occupied by an appreciative audience of little girls.

The Misogynists association, limited, was founded today, with following officers: Exalted chief confirmed bachelor, Major B—, hateful thing, Lieutenant C—, assistant hateful thing, Lieutenant O—.

July 5—At sea. Great scandal aboard. It appears that one of our cherubim drank up Mrs. —'s hair dye about two weeks ago. It being impossible for that lady to renew the supply at sea, her hair is now of that variegated hue of which it may be said that the ends do not justify the roots.
