

GRAIN AND PRODUCE MARKET

Better Feeling in Financial Circles Helps Opening Prices. LIVERPOOL IS DISAPPOINTING Exchange Says There is No Demand for Wheat or Oats, While a Little Interest is Manifest in Corn.

OMAHA, Oct. 31, 1907. After some exciting advances in the wheat market, a bull market was formed, and a strong rebound shortly after the opening, which sent prices up in a hurry. Disappointing cables, however, started selling and wheat bought on the advance was dumped.

December wheat opened at 82 1/2c and closed at 82 1/2c. There was little or no corn for sale at the start and the market was firm. Some bad buying reports from Illinois and other bull reports gave the market strength at the opening. There was a slight weakening due to the decline in wheat, but on the strength of the corn market, the market closed at 82 1/2c.

Primary wheat receipts were 342,000 bushels and shipments 280,000 bushels. Corn receipts were 1,000,000 bushels and shipments 1,000,000 bushels. Local range of options: Wheat, 82 1/2c; Corn, 82 1/2c; Oats, 82 1/2c.
