

Pe-ru-na as a November Remedy.

The month of November, in temperate regions especially, requires of the human body a very radical adjustment to climatic conditions. The hot weather has passed, and cold weather has taken its place. That the CIRCULATION OF BLOOD IN THE SKIN SHOULD BE FREE and active is a matter of common knowledge. And in order that the body may be protected against the lowering temperature a vigorous circulation of blood in the skin must be maintained.

It is not so generally known, however, that the inside of the body also needs protection. THE MUCOUS MEMBRANES OF THE BODY, that line every passage and cavity and duct, also suffer from the change from hot to cold weather.

A medicinal compound that gently tones up these mucous membranes, enabling them to ADJUST TO WINTER WEATHER, is not only valuable to a great multitude of people, but to another multitude is absolutely essential to health.

Whether Peru-na is a medicinal compound that meets these requirements can be judged by a hasty glance at some of its principal ingredients.

Take, for instance, hydrastis canadensis, which is an ingredient of Peru-na. The United States Dispensary says of this herbal remedy, that it is employed as a cure for DEPRAVED MUCOUS MEMBRANES, not only of the nose and head, but also of the stomach and intestines, as well as other internal organs. Hydrastis canadensis ordinarily known as golden seal, is thus very clearly classed by the highest authorities as a valuable remedy wherever the mucous membranes of the body are in need of a little medicinal help.

Cedron is also one of the principal ingredients of Peru-na. It is recognized by the United States Dispensary and all leading works on materia medica, as a TONIC OF THE GREATEST VALUE. It is also an anti-periodic and anti-malarial remedy, and is therefore frequently used as a SUBSTITUTE FOR QUININE. It is a remedy of great merit, somewhat overlooked by the medical profession of late, but its undoubted tonic qualities are sure to reinstiate this remedy in its original high-class rank as a safe and efficient tonic and appetizer.

Another ingredient of Peru-na which is of manifest benefit is cubeb. Bartholin, in his excellent work on therapeutics, states that cubeb PROMOTES THE APPETITE, ASSISTS DIGESTION, and increases the circulation of the blood. He also goes on to recommend it for catarrh not only of the head and pharynx, but also of the stomach, as well as other internal organs.

LAST, BUT NOT LEAST, IS COLLINSONIA CANADENSIS. This remedy, for many years has enjoyed a great reputation in southern states as a panacea for many diseases such as dropsy, indigestion, cramp, sick headache, and the like. Dr. Scudder, a writer of great fame, also recommends this herbal remedy for chronic diseases of the lungs and heart.

These are some of the principal ingredients of Peru-na compounded into a single remedy by skillful and experienced pharmacists. The compound has been so devised that each remedy retains its full therapeutic value, one assisting the other in their beneficial action upon the human system. MAKING OF PERUNA A VERY EFFICIENT AND VALUABLE REMEDY.

People who pass through the month of November safely and find themselves acclimated to winter weather, generally pass through the remainder of the cold season without any serious difficulty. But NOVEMBER IS A CRITICAL MONTH. The adjustment of a large multitude of people fails to meet the exigencies of approaching winter.

No safer or more appropriate remedy than Peru-na could be found. Taken according to the directions on the bottle, not only would catarrhal ailments be ward off but catarrh already acquired be corrected. It is with the assurance of knowing that we are right that we present to the public Peru-na as an IDEAL TONIC AND CATARRH REMEDY.

The truth of the above statements is absolutely unassailable, and the knowledge concerning Peru-na which it conveys places this remedy beyond all cavil as a great family medicine. If any further evidence is needed we stand ready to furnish it through the MULTITUDE OF SINCERE AND UNSOLICITED TESTIMONIALS of the people, from Canada to Mexico, from Cape Town to Cairo, from Puerto Rico to the Philippines.

LUTHER LEAGUE ON CAMPAIGN BEEF CITY NEWS

Resolves to Effect Organization Throughout the State.

PUBLICATION OF ORGAN DISCUSSED

John Helgren, President, Heads New List of Officers Selected by District Convention in Omaha.

The Saturday morning session of the convention of the District Luther League in Zion Lutheran church, Thirty-sixth street and Lafayette avenue, was one of lively interest. New officers were elected as follows: President John Helgren; secretary, Fred Miller; treasurer, Ira Beckman; Oakland; corresponding secretary, Miss Edna Peterson, Oakland.

Reports from the various local leagues throughout the district were of a very encouraging nature, showing a lively interest in the work and marked growth.

A movement was started to effect thorough organization of the Luther League in Nebraska. At present the Nebraska conference has no state organization of the league. There are several district organizations throughout the state and an effort is to be made to join these. A movement is on foot to bring about a national organization of the Luther league also.

One of the interesting questions discussed was that of "Luther League Topics," a publication especially for Luther leagues, giving a specially prepared course of study. Rev. Adolph Holt presented the convention on this topic, feeling it should be adopted by all the local organizations in the district. A committee was appointed to bring in a report on the subject.

The afternoon session was devoted to a consideration of the question, "How Can We Interest Our Young People in Greater Activity in Church Work?" Rev. E. Peterson, Fremont led the discussion.

Rev. Dr. S. P. Lindahl of Rock Island, Ill., editor of the Augustana, was in attendance at the convention.

Rev. C. F. Sandahl of Oakland will fill the pulpit Sunday morning at Immanuel Swedish Lutheran church, Nineteenth and Cass streets. In the evening, Rev. F. N. Swaberg of Immanuel Deaconess' institute will preach in Immanuel church.

HE SAW NAPOLEON'S RETREAT

Remarkable Career of a Rabbi Who Has Reached the Age of 109.

One hundred and five years old, Rabbi Barnett Wolinsky of New York City, who on Sunday night at his great granddaughter's marriage danced the wild steps of two Russian dances, performing this feat despite a lameness which compels him to wear one shoe with a sole an inch thicker than the other.

His eyes, that watched Napoleon's broken legions struggle westward again in the Russian snows, ninety-five years ago, shone as brightly on fifty-five years ago, as they shone on Sunday night, as he danced. He carried him briskly in boyish pants from the French soldiers in 1812, twinkled almost as merrily in Forsyth street in 1907, as he danced with his great-granddaughter and drem in the stride of the old, twinkled and later broke into the wild rhythm of the Komarabliki.

The only thing that tired Rabbi Wolinsky on Sunday night was the length of time he had to go without his pipe. He smokes twice a week, and if the men can keep this average up the city editors will not grumble. The president's annual picnic, when he camps out all night in some isolated spot on the shore of the sound; his numerous trips on horseback around the surrounding country; how he works on his farm; the many visitors who arrive all summer long, and the cranks that the secret service men have to deal with, are all profitable sources of news and serve to keep the men constantly on the jump. Not much escapes their ceaseless vigilance, but sometimes a good story gets away, as, for instance, the fact, which was not known generally until this year, that the president, while riding last summer along a country road, was thrown by his horse and received a severe shaking up. Sometimes a "beat" by a representative of a foreign paper who has obtained an interview with the president is slipped in the bud. Such was the case of the correspondent of a London paper this summer, who had a long talk with the president on important matters and filed a long story with the village telegraph operator. One of the regular reporters was an expert telegrapher himself, and while pretending to write a story of his own, he read all the London news as it came over the wire, and several times a day all the men drop in upon Mr. Losh, and at least once a day they drive out to Sagamore Hill and talk with anybody they can find. Oftentimes a story breaks loose late at night, and there is a wild scurry to get it while the papers go to press.

While there is always plenty of work, next year promises to be a particularly interesting one from a news standpoint at the summer capital. On the eve of a presidential election visitors will naturally be even more in the public eye than he has been this season.—Leah's Weekly.

"Do you think you could do a high dive across the river in about thirty minutes if I should discharge you?" the judge asked. He had forgot to stop up the chimney hole in an adjoining room and sparks flew out of the hole into the room, lighting some clothing. At 12:45 an empty house at 1720 South Ninth street took fire from sparks from a nearby chimney, but

NEWS-GETTING AT OYSTER BAY
How Correspondents on the Spot Fared at the Nation's Summer Capital.

The return of President Roosevelt from his summer vacation at Oyster Bay in Washington marked the end, also, of the summer labors of the staff of newspaper correspondents who are detailed to "cover" the president from the moment he reaches Sagamore Hill each year until he returns to his official duties. Ever since the president has been spending his summers at the little Long Island town, the assignment has been unique in the history of newspaper work. Nearly every New York paper and the two press associations have men stationed there all summer, year after year, and naturally they form a considerable portion of the life of the town. This year's vacation was the longest that any of the world has had so much written about it as has Oyster Bay during the last six or seven years. When the reporters run short of presidential news, they fall back on the inhabitants of the town, and every "character" has been exploited many times over in the public prints. Therefore, it is not to be wondered at if the staid, urbane

BREAKS A COLD IN TWENTY-FOUR HOURS
Or Cures any Cough that is Curable—Prescription of a Noted Physician.

Mix one half ounce of Concentrated oil of pine, with two ounces of glycerine and half a pint of good whiskey. Shake thoroughly and use in doses of a teaspoonful to a tablespoonful every four hours.

The renowned throat and lung specialist of Philadelphia Clinics who established a camp for consumptives in the pine woods of Maine, and whose remarkable cures there attracted international attention, declares that the above formula is one of the very best remedies obtainable for an acute cold and that it will strengthen the lungs, relieve coughs and heal the bronchial tubes. Also, that it will cure any lung trouble not too far advanced if the patient will assist by plenty of outdoor exercise, inhaling deep, long breaths every few minutes.

These ingredients are procurable at any good prescription drugist and easily mixed at home and it should take its place as one of the most valuable remedies in the family medicine chest. Remarkable inquiry at one of the leading drugists elicited the information that Concentrated oil of pine is put up for dispensing only in half ounce vials securely sealed in birch wood cases to protect it from heat and light. The oils sold in bulk and some patent medicines sold as "oil of pine" should be avoided because owing to their impurities they only produce nausea and are rather harmful than effective.
