

NEBRASKA MAY BREATHE NOW

Game with Kansas Ends String of Hard Gridiron Contests.

TEAM HAS MADE GOOD RECORD

Coach Cole Performs Wonders with Men at His Command—Assistant Peck Will Soon Leave.

LINCOLN, Nov. 8.—(Special.)—At last King Cole's Cornhuskers may take the rest that has been denied them for over a month. Today's game with the Jay-hawkers marked the closing of an hard string of games as a team from Nebraska university again faced with Minnesota, Colorado, Ames and Kansas to meet successively not a moment of loafing has been permitted by the coaches. Even prior to the Gopher contest there was the hard practice necessary to put the men in fix to face the northern giants. But now, with nothing more formidable than Denver and Deane to face before the final great game of the season in St. Louis Thanksgiving day, a let-up in strenuousness is imminent. For at least a week all that will be required of the players will be that they keep in good physical trim and not forget the lessons they have learned.

This fact may result in a closer game with Denver next Saturday than would be the case were the players forced to work at the top-notch continuously this week. Though the Denver players have not made a formidable record this season, the fact that the Nebraska game will be the biggest one on their schedule may lead to a repetition of what happened in Lawrence today. "Ducan" Koehler, the former Nebraska and Chicago star, is coaching Denver this year, which is another fact that will be taken account of by Coach Cole in preparing for the westerners. Koehler is well acquainted with conditions at Nebraska and may be better able to gauge the strength of the Cornhuskers than have some of the other coaches who may send their warriors to do battle on Nebraska field this year.

Great Showing by Team.

The performance of the Nebraska team this year has been, all things considered, a remarkable one. Starting with a coach wholly unacquainted with his players and with the somewhat peculiar conditions under which he would have to work, with the only veterans on the team men who had not forgotten their disastrous experiences of the preceding year, and with not a single player of acknowledged stellar attainments, the team has still gone through a schedule as hard as any faced by a western eleven, stacking up a record, meanwhile that will be hard to beat, whatever the result of the game still remaining to be played. The conclusion of the really hard portion of the schedule by today's game has furnished the occasion for the exchange of compliments of a most heartfelt nature, between the enthusiasts who have accompanied the team through its varying experiences and the players themselves.

That the season is nearly over was a fact made significant today by the announcement that Assistant Coach Peck will be with the team only one more week, leaving for Virginia to resume his studies after the Denver game. At the time Peck was engaged to assist in the instruction of the Cornhuskers, it was agreed that he would be at liberty to leave a week or so before the conclusion of the season. He has stayed longer than it was thought he would be able to at the time he came to Lincoln, working hard with his former chief to carry the Cornhuskers through the worst part of their labors. The players must still undergo a stiff course of instruction for the St. Louis game, but the time the latter was coaching at Lawrence university, Wisconsin.

Interest in Kansas Game.

Today's game meant more than its actual score, furnishing a line on the strength of Kansas for use in comparing strength with St. Louis next Saturday, when the Jay-hawkers will clash with Eddie Cochem's giants. Although the Kansas probably put up a stiffer fight against Nebraska than they will be able to do against St. Louis, the game next Saturday may furnish an indication of what the outcome of the St. Louis-Nebraska game will be. Present indications are that the struggle will be a hard one. With two weeks in which to recover from the effects of the hard string of games they have just completed, Nebraska will be in shape to put up as strenuous a battle as any it has waged this season—probably a much harder one than that against Kansas. St. Louis, meanwhile, after emerging from one of its big games today, must take on Kansas next Saturday.

The remarkable potency of field goals in winning games in all parts of the country this year has revived discussion of the fairness of the present valuation placed on a fortunate kick. The case of Nebraska itself is pointed to by the enthusiasts in Lincoln as illustrative of the unfairness of the present system. Last week Nebraska's only earned points in the game with Ames were scored on two kicks from placement by Captain Weller. Ames carried the ball across Nebraska's goal for a touchdown, yet was beaten. Almost the reverse, so far as the Cornhuskers were concerned, was true in the Minnesota game, Nebraska scoring a touchdown, yet being beaten through the efficiency of Capron's toe. So far, it is probable that fewer touchdowns have been scored throughout the country than was ever before the case.

Dr. J. T. Lees, chairman of the Nebraska football rules committee, and a member of the international rules committee, from his sole power in making or altering the rules governing the game, is emphatic in his stand for a change in the present system of scoring points on field goals. In an interview for The Bee today he declared that he would favor a reduction of the value of a field goal from four points to two. The valuation now placed on a safety touchdown were not already two points, I would favor cutting down the field goal valuation even to that point," he asserted.

Lees Would Change Rules.

When the rules were gone over by the committee last year, Dr. Lees proposed the amendment he is now advocating, but received little encouragement from the other members of the body and abandoned his campaign. It is probable that he will again bring up the matter at the meeting of the committee to be held at the close of the season. In brief, his contention is that it is unfair to score four points on a lucky kick from possibly as near the center of the field as the forty or forty-five yard line, thereby making the work of carrying the ball nearly half the length of the field worth only two, or perhaps only one, point more. He considers that it is manifestly unfair that a team on the offense be held at a good distance from its opponent's goal, only to nail four points despite the most deserving efforts of the defenders.

Admitting that the work of the committee has been aimed for the past two years at opening the game and making the kicking department stronger, Dr. Lees believes that sufficient has already been accomplished in that line to justify a tightening in the regulations. He declares that he would even go so far as to effect a partial reversion to the old five-yard rule. Within the fifteen or twenty-yard line he would lessen the distance to be made in three downs from ten yards to five. His reason for suggesting this change is the fact that when the ball has been carried as near to the goal as that, or that, or the other plays inspired by the rules under which the game is now played, are of little use. When the ball has been carried inside the twenty-five-yard line it is now usually necessary for the team on offense to resort to old-time formations and line-bucking tactics such as were used before the game was liberalized. With this condition true, Dr. Lees insists that the yards to go should also be lessened to what they were previously.

Cross-Country Preliminaries.

Preliminaries for the selection of the team which will represent Nebraska at the annual meet of the intercollegiate cross-country association in Chicago, the Saturday night prior to Thanksgiving will be held Monday afternoon. Five men are to be selected from a squad consisting of from thirty to forty runners. The course will be five miles in length. Some excellent material has so far shown up, and competition for places on the Cornhuskers team is expected to be closer than ever before.

FOOT BALL FOR THE GRADUATE

Harvard Man Proposes to Have Alumni Games.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Nov. 8.—One of the most powerful arguments brought against football as a college sport by its opponents is that by its very nature it prevents men from keeping it up after leaving college. It is also alleged that very little real fun is got out of the game by those who play it, and that its participants go in for it vastly more on account of the glory and publicity attached to it than for the sport itself.

A suggestion coming from C. G. Osborne, right tackle on last year's Harvard team, in the form of a letter to the Harvard Crimson, may do much to abolish these evils of the game in so far as Harvard is concerned, provided the suggestion is carried out. Osborne was a player who enjoyed the game himself every minute he was playing. He played foot ball purely for the fun he got out of it, and he is reluctant to abandon the game now that he is no longer in college. For the last few weeks he has been at Harvard coaching and playing regularly on the scrub team. Osborne's idea is for the Harvard graduates to form a foot ball team for a few weeks every fall, play a few practice games and end up with a game against the Harvard varsity somewhere near the middle of the season.

There is much to be said for the plan. Every year a number of graduates come back to Cambridge to coach the team and sometimes play on the second team. If these men were to be brought back at the same time a very strong team would be organized from among them. And there is enough foot ball talent around Boston to make it easy to organize a very strong eleven. The plan seems to be a good one from all its aspects. The grads would be enabled to keep their foot ball for a few weeks every fall, they would be brought into close touch with the varsity team each year, and the varsity itself would be enabled to profit by playing regularly against the strongest possible kind of scrub team.

Osborne's suggestion was limited to Harvard, but if the plan proved to be a success there it might be followed by other colleges. In the future the regular Harvard-Yale foot ball game might be the occasion of a contest on the preceding day of teams composed of graduates of the two institutions. Such a contest regularly takes place at New London, where a race for "Gentlemen's Eight" has come to be a regular part of the program.

NO MORE ENTRIES FOR BIG SALE

Faust-Tipton Have Over Eight Hundred Head on Hand.

LEXINGTON, Ky., Nov. 8.—The local representatives of the Faust-Tipton company have been instructed not to accept any more entries for the sale of thoroughbreds which is to open here November 25. Over 800 head have been listed, and it will be the biggest sale held here in years. Jockey Club Season Opens. SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Nov. 8.—For the opening of the California Jockey club's season the weather was ideal and the track in perfect condition. Today's feature was the racing of the "Gentlemen's Eight" and numbered among the entries were such well known stakes horses as Uncle Montgomery, Vol. 1, and others.

MICHIGAN TEAM UP ON EDGE

Wolverines Expect to Win a Victory from Pennsylvania.

DO NOT LOOK FOR SNAP, HOWEVER

Coach Yost Careful Not to Use Any of His New Formations at Nashville, Where Penn was Watching.

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Nov. 8.—(Special.)—In another week Hurry-Up Yost's foot ball machine will have reached its maximum efficiency for 1907. Barring accidents he expects to give Pennsylvania a drubbing on November 15. It is not difficult to see that Penn is marshalling every possible resource to repeat its performance of 1906 and beat Michigan again, this time on its own grounds. At the Michigan-Vanderbilt game at Nashville last Saturday Penn was represented by two coaches, Torrey and Maurice. They didn't introduce themselves to either McGugin or Yost, but writhed at the side lines and gathered what information they could. It was for that reason that Michigan relied upon straight foot ball, and all the tricks with which Yost has been stocking the repository all season were kept in the background. When asked what he supposed the Penn coaches thought of the Michigan team, Yost grinned.

"We didn't give them anything to think about," he answered. "I guess they know about as much of Michigan's resources as they did two weeks ago and not much more. They carried a sweet smile, and I guess they are expecting something soft." "What they will get is known only to Yost himself and the team. At the close of last Saturday's game Bob McKechney, the captain of the Commodore, said to his opponents: "Michigan has a great team. I wouldn't be surprised if it were the best in the country." So in spite of the fact that Penn coaches seemed to think Michigan would trick plays they realize that the fight will be a hard one if Penn wins it.

Pennsylvania in West.

No more games will be played by the Wolverines until the one with Penn. On Saturday, the 9th, a game will be played with the Reserves, as it is thought inadvisable to let two weeks go by without a game, when the men are in the pink of condition. The coaches intend that there shall be no loafing in the two weeks. It was given out as official orders early in the week that any man who shirked, no matter how great his known ability, would be derelicted and a sub given a chance at his place. The three-hour daily secret practices must keep up their vigor and dash up to the last moment.

Michigan's defense, which remained inviolate until the game with the champions of the south, will be counted upon as the strongest factor in its favor. Vanderbilt was the first team to make a first down, and in the whole game they gained only 128 yards on downs to Michigan's 237. The southerners were not held for a day, because every time they found themselves in danger Bob Blake's foot was depended upon to get them out. Michigan punted less and was held for downs twice during the game. Even Yost, who is usually reticent, waxed enthusiastic when questioned about the line, and had to be repeatedly declared that it cannot be beaten any more. "If the back field was up to the standard of the line," says the coach, "no one could hold us."

Schulz the Keystone.

The keystone of the line is, of course, Germany Schulz. In every game this year he has been the most conspicuous player on the field. He does a greater share of the tackling than any other man, and Bill Stone of Vanderbilt was the first man who came anywhere near holding him. His defensive and offensive play both are greatly enhanced by the fact that he is able to snap the ball back with one hand, and thus use the other to steady himself. His passes are always swift and accurate and he never fumbles. In the Ohio game an amusing incident occurred when the Ohio State university players misunderstood the signals of the Michigan quarter and thought the ball had been put into play. The result was a small sized scrimmage and the teams tussled together for a moment, but when the referee's whistle brought them back to position it was found that Schulz was still bending over the ball in his place. He had not even been jostled into straightening up. He has 20 pounds on him and "Oaty" Graham, who graces his right side, has 215 pounds more. "Oaty" was responsible for both the scoring field goals in the Vanderbilt game. Another line star is Rheinschild, who like Graham and Schulz, is a veteran of the 1904 and 1906 teams. At tackle he helps to stiffen the right wing and he is frequently used for carrying the ball. Casey, who plays the other tackle, has never allowed an opponent's formation to play through his position. The others, Embs, the left guard, and Rumney and Hammond, ends, are all first class men. Hammond is another veteran, valuable especially for his punting.

Wasmund, the quarterback, who had been playing a rather indifferent game before, showed up wonderfully at Nashville and will be counted on for first class engineering of his men. It is generally believed that Yost expects his team to beat the easterners, but he will not commit himself, and is afraid his men will not realize the seriousness of the task. Seats have been placed on sale for the game, and 10,000 were sold in the first twenty-four hours. Twenty-five thousand people or more are expected and a new addition to the bleachers, completing the circle around the field, is being erected.

Spokane to Challenge Chicago.

SPOKANE, Wash., Nov. 8.—(Special.)—George Rouse, manager of the Spokane High School Foot Ball team, which by defeating Seattle last week, has won a few days ago, practically clinched the inter-scholastic championship of the northwest, with Tacoma and Butte to play, announces he will challenge the North Division High School team of Chicago to decide the inter-scholastic championship of the United States.

"Hanna" Has Returned? Know "Hanna?"

After a long absence from the Omaha market, our mutual friend, "Hanna," has come back.

"Hanna" Has Returned? Know "Hanna?"

"Hanna" has so many points of excellence that we can't frame them in so small a space.

Most Everybody Knows "Hanna"

"Hanna" goes through the streets in Yell-O, with fine, splendid horses, in charge of drivers who know their business and attend to it.

The real, genuine, Wyoming "Hanna" is black—a nice shade of black, sort of shiny, glossy blue black, with occasional peacock tints.

"Hanna" was discovered out in the wilds of Wyoming ten or fifteen years ago and has made a "decided" hit. So striking a success, in fact, that there never was a red-hot favorite. "Hanna" has been in Omaha before and while here made hosts of friends who will now no doubt be glad to extend a hearty welcome.

SUNDERLAND SAYS:

When you buy coal to cook with the quality should be peculiarly adapted to that purpose. If you have used Hanna Coal you know it is just that—"a remarkable cooking coal."

MAYBE WE HAVE ENOUGH TO GO ROUND

Two hundred tons of Hanna Nut won't last long and we therefore suggest that you order at once. Price, $8.00.

What we have is extra nice. The Nut Coal is separated from the other sizes by means of screens; it is then loaded into ear over shaker [shaking] screens, through which the dust and dirt are carried away. In order to give you best possible value we screen the coal again at our yards, in order to remove dust and screenings due to breakage in transit from Wyoming to Omaha. This means you get what you pay for—all coal—100 per cent coal. And 100 per cent of 2,000 pounds is 2,000 pounds.
