PENN MEN AMAZED AT OMAHA

Officials of Eastern Road Open Eyes at Industrial Magnitude.

SPEND TWO DAYS IN THE CITY

Nine Leading Pennsylvania Officials Come West to Study Methods of Railroadings Out This Way.

Nine leading officials of the operating department of the Pennsylvania railroad spent the last couple of days in Omaha looking over the Omaha terminals of the various roads. While it is a common occurrence for traffic officials of eastern roads to work their way this far west, it is an unusual sight to see operating officials so far from their own lines. Acting on the suggestion of the president of the Pennsylvania, these nine officials are making a ten days' trip through the west to observe how the west runs its roads. They spent two of the ten days in Omaha and will not go to Kansas City, having left Friday morning for St. Paul, thence to Chicago, St. Louis and home over the Vanderbilt.

They went to South Omaha, where they inspected the stock yards; to Gilmore, to Council Bluffs, through the Omaha terminals, the new freight depot of the Northwestern, the Union Pacific shops and other points of interest. During the forenoon Thursday Mr. Buckman took the party for an automobile trip through the residence districts of Omaha.

Surprised at Omaha's Growth. "You can say for me," said General Superintendent O'Donnell, who was a casuist of General Passenger Agent Wakely of the Burlington at West Point, "that we all were greatly surprised at the magnitude of the industries of Omaha. An easterner has little conception of the wonderful growth of the west unless he runs out here every year or so. This motor car which Mr. McKean is making for the Union Pacific is a wonder and you need not be surprised if some of these men are not found trying to make one like it when they get home."

The personnel of the party was: R. L. O'Donnell, general superintendent, Buffalo, N. Y.; J. B. Baker, superintendent terminals, Pennsylvania railroad, Buffalo, N. Y.; Victor Wielman, superintendent Pennsylvania railroad, Cremona, Pa.; C. A. Preston, superintendent Pennsylvania railroad, Harrisburg, Pa.; J. B. Fisher, superintendent terminals, Pennsylvania railroad, Philadelphia, Pa.; E. J. Chave, superintendent Pennsylvania railroad, Altoona, Pa.; J. B. Fisher, superintendent telegraph, Pennsylvania railroad, Philadelphia, Pa.; A. H. Culbert, principal assistant engineer, Pennsylvania railroad, Altoona, Pa.

SONS OF REVOLUTION BANQUET

Annual Affairs of Society a Most Pleasant and Profitable One.

The annual banquet of the Nebraska Society of the Sons of the American Revolution, held at the Hotel Rome Thursday evening, was in all respects an interesting affair, both socially and historically. Covers were laid for sixty, including the women of the families of the members. The tables were beautifully adorned with flowers, ferns and palms, the dinner being given in the ladies' ordinary, beginning at 6:30. James H. Adams, president of the Nebraska Society of the Sons of the American Revolution, acted as toastmaster. Among the distinguished guests present were Nelson A. McClary, president general of the National Society of the Sons of the American Revolution, Dr. George L. Miller, W. F. Gurley, Rev. F. L. Loveland, De- James H. Adams, president of the Nebraska Society of the Sons of the American Revolution, acted as toastmaster. Among the distinguished guests present were Nelson A. McClary, president general of the National Society of the Sons of the American Revolution, Dr. George L. Miller, W. F. Gurley, Rev. F. L. Loveland, De- James H. Adams, president of the Nebraska Society of the Sons of the American Revolution, acted as toastmaster. Among the distinguished guests present were Nelson A. McClary, president general of the National Society of the Sons of the American Revolution, Dr. George L. Miller, W. F. Gurley, Rev. F. L. Loveland, Deative to American customs and the opportunities afforded for education and to instill in them a patriotic interest in the country, and thereby increase their value as citizens. S. S. Peters gave a short sketch of the famous revolutionary clock of which he is the possessor and which has been in his family for nearly 200 years. The clock was on exhibition in the banquet room and attracted the most reverential attention and interest.

Dr. George L. Miller responded to the sentiment of "The Oregon Trail," and paid a glowing tribute to the soldiers of peace who sixty-four years ago gave to the United States this western empire. W. F. Gurley responded to the sentiment of the "Modern Patriot" in an eloquent address.

Rev. Frank L. Loveland was the closing speaker. He talked upon the "Righteousness of the Revolution." "No logic has yet developed the fact that war is wrong. If a single combatant in the country, at a right by force, how much greater is the right of combined effort to adjust wrongs of tyranny and oppression," said he, "and the world can never repay the embattled farmers of the revolution for what they did. Washington and his compatriots were just instruments of God to accomplish a mighty task and they did it well. War will continue as long as tyranny seeks to throttle human rights."

All Mapped Out. I suppose you are going to make some speeches? "Yes," answered Senator Borghum. "I shall deliver a few timely and significant utterances." "Have you thought out what you will say?" "Yes, I shall follow my usual formula. To a few extemporaneous remarks about what I have done for the good of the country. I will add a humorous anecdote and conclude by assuring my constituents that I rely on the wisdom of the plain people."—Washington Star.

Dame Fashion's Dictum

WHERE does style originate? Who starts it? Style is elusive and undefinable; but it is no less a reality. The man who wants to be well dressed is subject to its laws, just as much as if he could tell exactly what they are.

All you need to care for in the matter of clothes—is to have confidence in your tailor. If he don't know what's right and proper quit him—and try Nicoll.
