In the Church of of chest vibration is evidently intended to England, which is a state church, it has ease the strain on the hat. been common for a long time for a curate at about $500 a year or less to perform the duties of his superior, who receives thou sands. This, however, may fairly be called one of the evils of a state church. Among he average clergyman receives little more than the curate. Here in the United States the average minister of the gospel does not get a salary equal to the wages of a thrifty laborer. It would, therefore, seem that no elaborate investigation was necessary to determine the reason for the difficulties i of method was advisable. There are able unright and worthy men in the ranks of much money and do not seem to troubled by the fact, but they do make enough to live upon comfortably. There are ndreds of clergymen in this country educated, cultured and possessed of gen uine ability, who would suffer for necessaries of life but for the charity of the copie to whom they minister. sight of the glittering prizes of the church are men tolling sealously for their fellow rovided with the necessaries of life. This seems to be the outgrowth areless management. Many millions dollars are collected every year for this or that charity and for other coatly features of church administration, but the little fund doled out to the clergy whose congregations do not pay them enough to live on rarely grows any larger, and must be around. There are some housekeepers who pinch and try to save year in and year out, and who never live as well as their neighbors with only half the means at their disposal. The former try with all their souls to be economical and judicio but they have not the gift.
