It is the one man ever has been and ever will be, the crowning act of human destiny. We have a hope, and we have an ideal. To live up to the hope, and be worthy of the ideal, has been the animating thought of ages. It is not the records of a life apent in the accumulation of wealth, that will answer the question of the spostle. It is not the record of a life given to control the destinies of nations, or to bring within our grasp the profits of the hour, that answers the proposition so eloquently announced by the great martyr. It is the good accomplished for others that will remain untarnished and uncancelled as the scroll of time records the doings of the day. "This afternoon, what more magnificent tribute can be given of the charity of the human heart, than the object of this meeting. In every city of our land, yes, in every land claiming allegiance to our fing. similar exercises are being held, in which a great organisation whose fing is American, and upon whose altar reets the book of life, meets to remember those who have gone in advance; no kinditer, sweeter thought can be had than to think of him who yesterday was by our side in the fullness of life, and who today from some cearly gate unseen by human eyes, unites with the spirit of this occasion."

of the lodge, delivered the eulogy, saying in part:

We stand today in the presence of voice-less lips while memory weaves hav drapery about those who have gone on before us. It is well for us to hait in our revery and ask. What is the fiber out of which this drapery is composed? Two often it happens that our pause on such a day as this is like the haiting of an army for a bit of rest in the midst of a hard march. We are refreshed by the music rendered, and the words spoken, and then we hastes on in the maddening march of life, but little if any helped by the anomantary pause. If we are helped at all, it is but to give un atreagth to push along more vigorously the paths of our own desire. This is a memorial service for those who are beyond the stiffs and turnoil of this life, and if they behold us gathering here and then he we go out no temorrow, how focilish and frivolous much of our life must seem to them. Memorial is but a step removed from the primary word memory, and what is memory? Have you, my brothers, ever stopped to ask this question? What is the warp and heart? Altention is that out of which memory is made and without memory life would be impossible. Turning our attention toward our friends and associates, we see in their lives that which is most prominent in our own, for that which constantly businesses our personality will of accessity color our memory as surely as the aniline will give to the water into which it is dropped a readish hus. We have spone in and out hefore us, and it is well for us to pause here and ask. What have we seen in them and did we see the best in them, if not, why not? Will the honest answering of these questions reflect upon those of us who are alwing? Is it true that we have been an procecupied with the things about us and in which we seen in these and out hefore us, and it is well for us to pause here and ask. District Court Reconvenes. District court will be reconvened this morning by Judge Green, who will be as-sisted by Judge Macy, the latter taking charge of the equity cases. Judge Green, it is understood, will first take up and dispose of the motion for a new trial in the case of Roy Stevens, convicted of attempted riminal assault on 11-year-old Christina

Christensen. The first jury case on the assignment is the retrial of the suit of Neille Buckley, a teacher in the rural schools at Bentley, against F. T. C. Johnson, a school director of that township, for damages for alleged libel. At the former trial Miss Buckley was given a substantial verdict, but the court sustained the motion of the defense for a new trial.

It is likely that the court will make a new assignment of cases today.

Game Warden Lincoln Will Test Recent Decision that There is No. Law Against Shipment of Game in State.

(From a Staff Correspondent.) DES MOINES, Ia., Dec. 2-(Special.)-Farmers and horticulturists and agriculturists generally will invade Des Moines next week. Several hundred of the ablest men of the state will be here to attend the various agricultural society meetings, including the state farmers' institute, the meeting of the agricultural board, the state horticultural society and the Park and Forestry association. The meetings will be held December 10, 11 and 12, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday of next Meetings will be held simultaneously in the rooms of the department of agriculture and the rooms of the horticultural society at the state house. At these various meetings there will be discussed practically every problem of agriculture. Every phase of tree planting and civic decoration and home decoration by the means of trees and flowers, the raising of all kinds of products that grow in the ground, shrubs, nuts, fruits, asparagus, celery, egg plant, turnips, weeds, apples, dewberries, seeds, potatoes, hay, corn, oats, and everything else will be discussed in all their phases. There will be read papers dealing with the relation of agriculture and horticulture to health and wealth, "why Adam ate the apple," domestic science, "purpling the grape," "our feathered friends," best sugar in Iowa, feed stuffs for cattle, feeding cattle, grasses and "the earning capacity of an eighty-acre farm." The list of speakers is as varied and widely scattered as are the subjects to be treated. Spiliman, from the farm management department of the United State Department of Agriculture, nearly every man in lowa who is prominent in agricultural and herticultural lines, H. P. Baker of the state college of Pennsylvania, several of the professors of Ames and President MacLean of the State University, Dr. T. E. Loope of Eureka, Wis., James Handy of Quincy, Ill., are among the list of speakers.

The Horticultural society will elect its officers Thursday evening, the Park and Forestry Association Wednesday evening, and the Agricultural department Wednesday afternoon

Two of the biggest features will be the display of fruits in the rotunda of the state house with $65 as premiums and the display of corn in the agricultural rooms for which premiums will be given.

Warden May Appeal. Game Warden Lincoln may appeal to the supreme court the case decided in Justice of the Peace Fred Cope's office in this city in which it was held that, in effect, there is no law against the shipment of game in this state. It is claimed that there are scores of cases all over the state in which the charge against the person arrested has been that of shipping game. The position taken is that if the shipment of game is prohibited the killing of game can practically be stopped for the hunters that do the damage are these that go from the cities to the hunting grounds and ship their

Rubbing with liniments, blistering the affected parts, the application of lasters, and other means of external treatment, are usually helpful in relieving the pains and aches of Rheumatism, but such remedies do not reach the CAUSE of the disease, and are therefore in no sense curative. Rheumatism is due to an excess of uric acid in the blood, brought about by indigestion, poor bowel action, weak kidneys, and a general sluggish condition of the system. The circulation deposits this irritating poison in the different muscles, nerves, tissues and joints of the body, and soon the painful symptoms of Rheumatism are produced. The pains at first may be wandering and slight; but as the blood becomes more fully saturated with the uric acid poison, the disease grows worse and after awhile gets to be chronic. The slight, wandering pains now become sharp and cutting at the least exposure to dampness or night air, or any constitutional irregularity, the bones ache, the muscles are not as free in action as before, and where the acid poison is allowed to remain in the blood the joints often become so clogged with corrosive substances that they are left permanently stiff and useless. Rheumatism can never be rubbed away, nor can it be con-quered and driven from the system until the acid-laden blood has been cleaned and purified. No other medicine does this so effectually as S. S. S. It dissolves and removes the impurities and sends a stream of rich, strong blood to the affected parts, which soothes the irritated nerves, inflamed muscles and flesh, and the sufferer obtains relief that is permanent. Special book on Rheumatism and any medical advice desired free. THE SWIFT SPECIFIC CO., ATLANTA, GA.
