EUROPE'S ROYAL NURSERIES

Children in Fourteen Out of Eighteen Courts.

NATIONS OF ROYAL YOUNGSTERS

Little Prince of Norway Stands Up for His Parents' Rights-Infante of Spain Grants A a Petition.

Certainly in fourteen and probably in fifteen of the eighteen empires and kingdoms of Europe there are families of young children who are growing up as heirs direct or presumptive to the throne. In a few cases they are children of the sovereign; oftener they are grandchildren or nephews. In the case of Sweden there is a great grandson.

The most pathetic of the childless courts is that of Holland. In Austria and Portugal the ultimate living heirs are young men

The doubtful case is Turkey. The "Almanach de Gotha" gives no particulars as to the domestic status of Selim Effendi, he sultan's eldest son. But he is 37, and it is highly probable that he is childless.

"As a rule efforts are made to bring royal children up simply and modestly and to shield their nursery life from the public gaze, but it is inevitable that a great many One little prince who has been very much

He is said to be a very self-willed young gentleman; with a large aixed idea of his wn and his parents' rights. The last story told of him represents him as stamping his foot when a little playmate climbed into a big armchair in one of the private salons in the palace at Christiania. "Get out of there!" he ordered, "that is

How to Avoid It and Escape a Surgical Operation, Told by One Who Knows.

She had repeatedly made application through the ordinary channels, but without results Then she hit on the device of addressing a memorial to his royal highness, Alfonso, infante of Spain.

The letter was opened by the prince's secretary-he has a whole suite of officials and equerries to re-enforce his buxom-Andalusian nurse-who of course referred the memorial to the king. The king read it and smiled.

The young man who used his lady love so shamefully was Charley Johnson, young man who had been working over in that neighborhood and had incidentally paid his attentions to the girl. Monday borrowed her pony on the plea that he desired to ride over to Central City, and straightway brought it over and sold it to William Dinney, proprietor of the Gray Stone barn. He took the money and at once got out of town. After awhile the girl suspected that all was not right and followed him. She inquired at several places and finally found that the fellow had sold the pony to Mr. Dizney. She soon affected a nettiement with Mr. Disney, who had ready disposed of the animal, the latter buying the horse again, this time from its rightful owner and securing a Lill of sale. glars entered the residence of Mayor W. D. Haller between 1 and 4 o'clock this morning, and, chieroforming Mr. Haller and his wife, proceeded to ransack the lower story of the house. They secured a gold watch and chain valued at about $80, some trinkets, two pairs of shoes and a cloak and other wearing apparel belonging to Mrs. Haller. The watch, besides the value in money, was valuable to Mr. Haller, as it was a gift from a little daughter who was burned to death some years ago. Two rag balls were found beside the pillows, on which it is supposed the chloro form was poured.
