Dun's Report of Bank Exchanges

The extent to which the restriction of business, caused by the flurry in the money market late in October, affected payments through the banks is shown by November bank dearings, late in October, affected payments through the banks is shown by November bank elearings, total bank exchanges at all cities in the United States for that month, as reported by R. G. Dun & Co., being $6,064,851,523, a decrease of 29.3 per cent compared with last year and 26.6 per cent, under the corresponding month of 1995. The full force of the money market disturbance is here shown and nearly every city reports a decrease compared with both preceding years. At many cities the decrease is very large. The loss is greatest in the New England cities, Middle Atlantic, Middle South, Central West and at Pasitic Coast points. At South Atlantic cities and in the Far West there is a decrease, but it is not as heavy as in the other sections. There has been a comparatively small loss each month this year compared with 1996, with the exception of two months, but this loss such minute this year compared with 1996, with the exception of two months, but this loss whelly at New York City and was due to the greatly reduced volume of approximative luminous in the New York city and was due to the greatly reduced volume of approximative luminous in the New York city and was due to the greatly values prevailing to Newsman, however, the loss York stock market and the lower security values prevailing; in Nevember, however, the loss is marky one-third. Comparison in made below of bank exchanges by sections covering thruc years; also the average daily figures for the year to date :
