Loneliness and discouragement must have ensued unless they were more than human, for the place afforded nothing in the way of social or educational diversion. Several months ago Miss Helen Varick Boswell was sent to organize them into women's clubs. Miss Boswell has told her own story of the American women of Panama and her work among them in the December Federation Bulletin. There is also the story of the organization of the Canal Zone Federation. These clubs have commenced a work of supplying many things lacking in the social and educational life of the families there. What a field for club activity and what an example of the sociological value of the club movement. A recent copy of the Canal Record gives enthusiastic accounts of the work of the clubs in the interest of their new homes and communities.
