

CONDITION OF OMAHA TRADE

Reorders for the Holidays Kept Business Brisk During Week.

PRICES STRONGER ON STAPLES

Holiday Trade Will Be Equal of Last Year in Prediction and Spring Buying Should Not Be Postponed.

Brisk holiday trade has saved the record of many Omaha wholesalers who declare that the first ten days of the holiday season made up for dullness of November and the last week has been characterized by some of the best orders from the retail trade.

This has been particularly true with the retail line of goods, especially the more expensive articles of hardware such as skates and cutlery, always popular Christmas goods.

One of the articles which have been selling well, is the silk petticoat, especially designed for the holiday trade. The market has been a very healthy condition and although the advance orders were not so great as last year, reorders have come in with sufficient frequency to more than make up for the decrease at the beginning of the season.

Moderate priced skirts, with designs from $2 to $15 at retail prices, are in excellent demand for the last ten days. The colors which have sold best are plain, blue and changeable. The retail merchants have been giving the silk petticoat some of the best attention of the volume of holiday trade.

Gloves selling well. There has been a general feeling that the gloves which have been sold in the past few days are the best of the season.

The gauntlet novelties have been good sellers and are still going out. The tan gloves with cream leather gauntlets and the black gloves with gray gauntlets are the shades which have been selling the best.

That the coming year will be a long glove season no one seems to doubt, the only uncertainty prevailing is as to the length. While the twelve-button length will predominate, twelve-button gloves are being ordered freely.

Never before have glove buyers experienced such good values in silk gloves at this season of the year. Several styles have been compelled to order out their spring stock in order to supply the demand.

Strong calls for men and women in waterproofs have had quite a run the last week. Calls for men's and women's coats to city stores, but the storm coats, the best general sellers and the cravenetted goods in all shades have been going out freely.

Veilings are helping the late fall trade of the millinery and the yards of novelty veiling demanded by each woman, has continued untouched both in quantity and price to a degree on the market some months ago.

Drug Trade Features. Few noteworthy features have characterized the drug trade, except those selling holiday goods, calendars and stationery.

These features have done a large business, particularly in leather goods, toilet sets and brushes of various kinds.

The general drug and chemical market presents a dull and uninteresting appearance. Leading articles are not receiving much attention and the quotable changes in values will scarcely attract the attention of buyers.

Opium is dull, with the limited movement slow and unimportant. Only small jobbing quantities are receiving attention, and quotations are entirely nominal at $4.50 for gum and $5.00 for powdered, as those figures can undoubtedly be checked. Most advices from Smyrna report primary markets steady, with higher prices looked for in the event of an unexpected demand.

Quinine is finding only a moderate continuing outlet, and business continues wholly of a steady character, with manufacturers quoting at old basis of 100 for bulk in 100-cane tin.

Manna was reported in better consuming request, but only small jobbing parcels received attention, and there was no improvement in values. The ruling quotations are $2.00 for large flake and $2.50 for small.

Alces in gourd are rather slow of sale, and the tone of the market is such that quotations reduced to 100,112, as to seller. Cape also is 100,112, Curacao is without further change and quotations are 100,112, as to quantity and seller.

Japan wax is again easier, with an absence of important demand, and quotations have been further reduced to 11,112, as to quantity.

Staples Which Advanced. A surprising number of staple articles in the grocery and produce lines are inclined to advance, while the current quotations shown on corn meal, which is down 25 cents on a 100-pound sack. Some manufacturers are advancing prices on catsup and others on all varieties of syrup, jellies and jams are very firm, and the demand especially vigorous.

There is some interest in tomatoes and a little more in canned corn, but it is not late enough in the winter for a heavy trade in either canned fruits or vegetables. Prunes continue very firm and very scarce. A few lines of beans are steady. Pumpkins, squash and succotash are in good demand and prices are firm.

Almonds are receiving slightly lower quotations on Alaska salmon and advise to buy haddies and herring. The price is normal, and an advance is predicted. Prices of canned meats have advanced, and packers say the current quotations are cost of manufacturing, not the price of cattle and hogs.

There is small demand for most varieties of dried fruits. Some are lower, such as prunes, either the Italian or California prunes. The demand for dried apples is good and the quality of the goods first class.

HAPPENED DOWN IN GEORGIA

Pictureless Fall Festivities in Land of 'Possum and Taters.

MOVING SCENES ON MOVING FLOAT

Colored Folk Show How They Can Thrill a Crowd of Spectators—A Fair that Was the Real Article.

Omaha's annual fall festival under the auspices of the Knights of Ak-Sar-Bon is justly esteemed the best that happens in this section of the banana belt. The electric float parade draws a multitude, and all who are attracted are the comic and serio-comic parades which precede the main event. Then there is the street fair with its stirring aggregation of thrillers.

All these neatly dovetail into the festival scheme from which spring kings and queens who rule a mimic realm for an hour and take the toboggan to common earth. It is a wonderful show, but it is not the only one. There are others even more picturesque if not so brilliant. In the picturesque class the prize winner is the state fair and float parade of the negroes of Georgia recently held at Macon. A correspondent of the New York Post sketches the main events in this fashion:

There were gaudy bedecked floats, with Cleopatra and Mark Anthony reclining on pink chaise-longues, white canopies of yellow and red waved lazily over their heads. The polar region inhabited by brown teddy bears and sprinkled with flour, was another scene. Aurora and her gorgeous attendants were received with small favor, as were the mules. A pine tree hung with bananas, apples and small bags of ground peas caused cheerful comment.

Then something came in sight that caused the pulse of the crowd to quicken. You could tell it by the swaying forward of bodies, the fine disregard for a passing street car, which had to stop until the "sweet taters" were accustomed to see each day-old friend. The little log cabin followed next, and the old man sat on the front steps under the vibrating shade of the palmetto tree, and picked in sweetest strains on his banjo. "My Old Kentucky home has just the same as I used to get in the general merchandise business, and still own the store property."

Mr. Clanton, a colored man, was the first to speak. He was a fine fellow, with a good attendance and very much interest taken. A campaign will be started for new members in good standing at the present time.

Mr. Rose, an old settler of Florence, died at the Omaha hospital Thursday evening. Mr. Rose has been at the hospital off and on for some time. He was a well-known citizen of Florence, and was a member of the local lodge of the Grand Old Law of the South.
