soldiers gamble in a small way. Are not some of the most influential citizens guilty of the crime of gambling? Oh, no, of course not. They only speculate. Well, it can be called speculation if desires, but it is to be doubted. Isn't any speculation a game of chance? And isn't any game of chance gambling? It isn't a soldier's fault that his speculations are confined to a few dollars and cents instead of corner lots and town property. How often has it come out in print that soldiers are a useless lot of men. kept up by the laxpayers of the United States. Well, what of it? Who protects this same taxable property in times of riots, strikes and Indian troubles? Now then, for the sake of those who are willing and ready to lay down their lives at the call of duty for the protection of your homes and families and who wear the proud uniform of the American soldier, let them have peace while they may, for you do not know how soon you may be indebted to us for the safety of your lives and property, and to those who can speak no good of us respect us enough not to condemn the shortcomings of a class of people you know nothing of except hear-say.

Christmas and New Year's at the fort was spent in the usual quiet manner by the many troops stationed thereat. The following is a menu of some of the companies on Christmas day: Oyster soup, celery, turkey, fresh pork, cranberry sauce, apple

spinach, lettuce, green onions, radishes, lobster, shrimp and tomato sauce, olives, marble cake, cocoanut cake, jelly cake, mince and pumpkin ple, doughnuts, apples, oranges, mixed nuts, wine, chocolate, coffee and cigars. This has a tendency to show that the soldler certainly enjoys his Christmas dinner.

Christmas 1908, was spent in the Philippine Islands by most of the troops now stationed at Fort Crook, and as it was their last Christmas in the islands for some time to come, company "I", Sixteenth infantry, decided that a Christmas tree would be a novel affair, which proved to be by far the most elaborate Christmas celebration of any organization at Fort McKinley.

be by far the most elaborate Christmas celebration of any organization at Fort McKinley.

Christmas eve, Colonel and Mrs. Gardener gave a Christmas tree party to all the officers and enlisted men's children of the post and the occassion was a pretty affair as each of the children were given some kind of a present and all thought the Colonel and Mrs. Gardener were even better than Santa Claus.

Later in the evening the little ones were invited to a similar party given by Captain and Mrs. W. C. Bennett, Sixteenth infantry, from whom they each received a present, and on Christmas afternoon, Captain and Mrs. Crimmins, Sixteenth infantry, entertained the little ones and gladdened their hearts by adding other presents to all present.

Fort Riley.

FORT RILEY, Jan. 4.—(Special.)—Probably in the history of the organizations stationed at this post there have never been made as elaborate preparations for Christmas day as were carried out this year. A spirit of rivairy in this regard seems to have been in the air on this occasion, and each troop and battery seems to have tried to outdo each other in their menus and dining room decorations. Plans were laid for weeks in advance and not a few dollars and many hours were spent in the decoration of the dining rooms. The money spent for the dinners, decorations, menus and sundries by the organizations will easily run into four figures. In the evening several of the troops and batteries held impromptu entertainments, in which local talent acquitted itself in a most creditable manner. Troop H, Seventh cavalry, and Battery B, Sixth field artillery, are said to have made the most elaborate preparations for the occasion of any of the organizations in the next. The sevent were and Battery B. Sixth field artillery, are said to have made the most elaborate preparations for the occasion of any of the organizations in the post. The rooms were decorated with evergreen, holly, mistletoe, crepe paper and cotton, to give the effect of snow. On the walls were hung flags, sabers, cross guns, etc., and the corner of B battery's dining room they had built an old-fashioned fireplace. The colonel of the regiment stated that it was the prettlest dining room he had ever seen in the army. During the course of the dinner the artillerymen wers entertained by one of their comrades, who rendered some very popuar pieces on the hattery piano. Troop H of the Seventh had an abundance of good things to eat and served "Seventh cavalry punch," which is said to have made every one feel happy. During the evening they had several boxing bouts, singing and dancing, speeches from several of the members who are to be discharged in the near future. The same decorations were used for New Year's day, but the menus were not as elaborate as those on Christmas. The most novel menu cards were those of Troop H. a postal card of three folds, on the inside of which was the picture of their commanding efficer. Colonel F. K. Ward, the menu and the roster of the troop. On the outside of the folder were the pictures of General Custer and Comanche, the only horse which survived the Custer massacre.

and Comanche, the only horse which survived the Custer massacre.

Nelson Perkins, a private of Troop M. Tenth cavalry, stationed at Fort Riley, Kan., was apprehended at Salina, Kan., a distance of fifty miles from the post. Monday morning about 4 o'clock. He was asked by the marshal where he was going and stated "To Utah to join his command. The officer asked for his furlough and this he refused to show. He was immediately handcuffed and searched for a gun, but it was not found, neither was the furlough. Perkins was aweated that afternoon and confessed that he had deserted at Fort Riley on Saturday and had walked to Salina. He stated to the officers that he was to have been tried on Monday by general court-martial for trouble with an officer. The authorities at the post were notifed and he was brought to the post and confined in the guard house. It is believed that the man is mentally unbalanced for last Saturday morning he asked to have his name placed on the sick report and immediately left the post. He had been in no trouble with any officer that anyone knows of and heretofore has been a very good soldier. The surgeon will make an examination of his condition.

First Lieutenant Daniel H. Gienty, Seventh cavalry, left this post December

this post New Year's eve. About eighty couples were present. The decorations of the room were very beautiful and every one had a very delightful time. Supper was served by the post caterer. Captain Louis T. Boiseau, Sixth field artillery, returned to the post the first of the week from a leave of absence of forty-live days.

the week from a leave of absence of the five days.

Mrs F. K. Ward gave a delightful teato all the ladles of the garrison on last. Thursday afternoon. The Mesdames Gullfoyle, Nichotson, Waterman, Roberts, Lee, Spring and Herr assisted the charming hostess in receiving. The rooms were made beautiful with Christmas decorations, holly predominating.

beautiful with Christmas decorations, holly predominating.

The usual New Year's receptions were in order at the post New Year's day. At 11:30 Colonel F. K. Ward, the commandant, officially received the officers in full dress at his quarters. At 12:30 Lieutenant Colonel Guilfoyle, Seventh cavalry, commanding the cavalry subpost, received the officers and ladies of the garrison, and at 2:30 they were received by Colonel M. M. Macomb of the artillery subpost.

First Lieutenant Joseph E. Myers, Sixth field artillery, who has been for the last few weeks on a court of inquiry at Fort Terry, N. Y., has been granted a leave of absence for fifteen days upon the completion of his duties at that place.

FOWL-STOCK SHOW BIG HIT Immense Exhibition at Auditorium

Insures Repetition Next

Year. Saturday evening saw the close of the hird annual exhibition of the Tri-City Poultry and Pet Stock association. It was Stock association. The third was by far the most successful of all the exhibitions given by the association. The first two given by the association. The first two given by the association. The first two given by the association. the last given under that name, as the hows lost money, while the show just closed left a balance of several hundred dollars in the association treasury after having paid up a deficit from last year. "The smile that won't come off" was apparent on the faces of all the directors of the show as they watched the conclave of people drill down the aisles beween the cages of birds. They took a chance in spending big money to pull off the show in Omaha, but the end has justified the means and the association is a big winner by having used the Auditorium. The big building proved itself admirably adapted to the use of a big show, and by a judicious use of space twice as many cops may be taken care of next year. The campaign for next year's show already is on and the entries will not be as slow in coming in next season as they were this, as the exhibitors have found what a splendid place Omaha and Auditorium is for holding such a show. The sales far exceeded the expectations of all the exhibitors and all have gone away happy.

Reputation Has Gone Abroad. That the reputation of the Tri-City Poultry show has spread to all parts of the ountry was demonstrated not only by the entries which came from abroad, but also from the dispatches being received from distant points. Secretary Talbert received a telegram Saturday from one of the largest poultry concerns in the east, nstructing him to buy the winners in the Rhode Island Red class, regardless of cost. These larger concerns have the habit, of buying the winning birds for their yards, and then when buyers come around they can point them out and say, "Here is the prize winner from Nebraska," and thus get the highest price for their eggs. In response to a telegram from Washington, D. C., Secretary Talbert of the Tri-City Pouitry and Pet Stock association cil Bluffs, paying $150 for the pen of cockerel and four pullets.

The Year 1908

Presidential Year

Every good citizen owes it to himself and to the country to keep well informed on the political events which will culminate in the election of a president, who will be charged with the administration of the national government for four years.

Every good citizen owes it to himself and to his country to post himself about the candidates competing for high political preferment and about the issues on which the great parties will divide in order to decide intelligently how to cast his vote.

The preliminary skirmishing for the great political battle of 1908 is already begun and the position of the principal participants is constantly changing with new developments nearly every day.

The big nominating conventions in prospect, particularly the republican national convention which is to meet in Chicago in June, promise to be the most stirring and interesting gatherings of the kind in the history of the country.

The moving panorama will be vividly and accurately pictured in The Bee from day to day-the candidates will be presented in their own pronouncements and speechesthe issues will be discussed and all the current political happenings will be chronicled as they occur.

NEBRASKA

IOWA

Politics in Nebraska promise to be at a boiling point throughout the year. The Bee's special staff correspondent at Lincoln furnishes the political gossip generated at the state capital and special attention is given to politics locally by experienced political writ-

Politics in Iowa are sure to turn about the contest for the senatorial succession as well as about the presidency. A special staff correspondent at Des Moines is charged with keeping readers of The Bee in touch with all the political currents of the Hawkeye state.

WASHINGTON

National politics center largely in the national capitol where the president and his advisers are at the helm of the government and where congress is in session. The political focal point is at the seat of government where a staff correspondent of The Bee is on the lookout for everything of keen interest to people of this section of

CHICAGO AND DENVER

The Bee will have its own representatives on the spot at both of the big nominating conventions and readers of The Bee will get the best inside information of what is done by the president makers and how it is done.
