NEWS OF THE BUSY HOME BUILDERS

BRICK-VENEER IS POPULAR
Style of Construction that is Coming Much Into Vogue.

OMAHA ADOPTS PLAN READILY
Many Houses Already Constructed of Combination Frame and Brick and Many Remodeled Along These Lines.

A method of construction of dwelling houses in Omaha which is finding considerable favor in the eyes of home builders, and particularly in the eyes of those who want a moderately priced house as well as one that looks well and wears satisfactorily for the amount of money that has been expended in its construction, is the house of veneer brick. It is a simple matter to build a house of this kind. There is nothing to do but proceed as though a frame house was to be constructed. When the frame work is up, and the rough boards nailed on and the weather paper tacked to the boards, a course of brick is built up conforming to the shape of the house framework. The mason drive spikes into the framework every few courses of brick, so as to give the narrow masonry a stable hold on the solid framework. After the mortar has set, the framework and the masonry are held together as solidly as though it was all one wall of goodly thickness.

The weather paper gives warmth to the house, and more than anything the narrow space between the brick and the framework affords an almost impassable barrier to cold during the winter or heat during the summer. The finished product of this method of building houses is very pretty, and for wearing qualities there is nothing to surpass it. Brick walls may crack and cement houses may yield to the effects of sudden heat or cold, but the veneer brick house combines stability and tends around the city in all directions is a great aid and lure to the home builder. These are avenues as it were, leading from the center of the city, from the busy mart to the freedom and fresh air of the suburbs and of the country. Every city which goes beyond the 100,000 mark has to have a boulevard system of this kind to give it outlets to the suburbs, to give easy and pleasant avenues by which the suburban dweller and the owner of a country home can come and go from his home to his business.

"Omaha is acquiring a fine system of boulevards of this kind. The money for their construction and maintenance is being expended wisely and in a manner which makes the improvements permanent. All along these boulevards there are desirable places for the building of homes with the surroundings of the country and yet within easy reach of the office and shop, and here many homes are being built in beautiful surroundings and yet at a very moderate cost, considering their great natural advantages.

"The parks which the Park board is acquiring and improving with wise hand and artistic eye are also giving a great impetus to home building. Take the Cut-Off proposition, for example. There is a great waste of land with magnificent natural advantages, yet which is now given over to nothing better than railroad tracks, ice houses and the like. The land surrounding it on all sides is, in consequence, given over to only a cheap type of houses and is largely the dwelling place of the poorer classes of people. But when that plan has been carried out and the land around the lake has been turned into a park with pavilions and driveways and lawns and flower beds, the lands surrounding the park will become available and desirable for dwellings of the best class. Omaha must have room to expand and the park system is supplying it to the best advantage possible."

President of Navigation Congress

Edgar C. Ellis, congressman from the Fifth district of Missouri, who was elected president of the Missouri River Navigation congress at St. Louis City, is the original Missouri river congressman who went before the rivers and harbors committee of the house and declared "the way to navigate is to navigate," and we will "show you that the Missouri river is not only navigable, but navigated."

For several years the committee on rivers and harbors has maintained the policy of appropriating nothing for embankment. When Congressman Ellis became a member of the committee he heartily endorsed the policy and said "not one cent for any river which does not have boats on it." Since then he has consistently squelched any advocate of embankment work on the Missouri river, and means to let the counties, cities and townships take care of the embankment work and prevent losses which are threatened by the abnormal hush of the river for farms and railroads.

Mr. Ellis was elected to the Fifty-ninth congress and made his campaign on the improvement of the Missouri river. He was re-elected to the Sixty-first congress, receiving 21,000 votes to 12,000 for his democratic competitor. He is a member of the law firm of Ellis, Cook & Ellis of Kansas City and a native of Michigan.

At the banquet given in Omaha by the Commercial club in the interests of opening the river to navigation, Congressman Ellis was the principal speaker. Among a score of strong men at the St. Louis City convention, Mr. Ellis was said to be the strongest, and no other candidate was considered for the presidency when it learned that Mr. Ellis would serve as the head of the permanent organization to be known as the "Missouri River Navigation Congress."

During the summer the Missouri congressman made an extended trip up the Missouri river, talking to the business men at various South Dakota towns, always emphasizing the idea that if "this movement means anything it means boats." The congressman will insist that all the Missouri river needs is boats and some work on the crossing to start the traffic, but later he will favor the permanent improvement of the river under competent engineers at an expense of $60,000 per mile from the mouth to the farthest point where river traffic will pay. The scheme for the permanent improvement has not been worked out, but the president of the new organization has the authority of the best engineers in the United States, that it can be done for the amount he suggests.

GOVERNOR SHELDON PRESIDES
Chief Executive Will Direct Opening Session of Charities and Corrections Convention.

Arrangements are complete for the opening session of the Charities and Corrections Conference at First Methodist church Sunday afternoon at 2:30, when Governor Sheldon will preside. It had been arranged for Mayor Dahlman to preside, but he and Mrs. Dahlman were called out of the city and Governor Sheldon will take his place. The meeting of the executive committee called for Saturday noon to complete arrangements was cancelled, as there was no necessity for the meeting. On invitation, Governor Sheldon and Alexander Johnson of New York will speak at the First Methodist church Sunday evening. The first regular business session of the board will be held at the Hotel Rome Monday morning at 9 o'clock.

BANK CLEARINGS STILL BIG
Omaha Shows Gain of Seventeen Per Cent for the Last Week of Business.

Omaha bank clearings continued to forge to the front during the last week, the gain being 17 per cent, which is greater than they were a year ago at this time. The situation is similar to what it was a week ago when Omaha showed the greatest gain in clearing of any city of importance in the country except Minneapolis, which shows a gain of 21 per cent. Three other cities show a slight gain this week, Milwaukee, Cleveland and Detroit moving to the right side of the ledger.
